RUHR HUNGRY RIOT; 138 FALL

CUT IN SURTAX WINS THE CHIEF OF FARM BLOC

Favors Reductions for All Taxpayers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Willingness to accept a reduction in surtaxes on large incomes was expressed today by Representative Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], leader of the house farm bloc, who led the fight against such a cut in 1921.

Mr. Dickinson said that if reductions are to be made all along the line, benefiting small taxpayers as well as large, he believed that it is now proper to make proportionate decreases in the other surtax rates. He said he would favor a maximum surtax quite as low as the 25 per cent rate proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Sentiment Strong for Tax Cut.

Another development in the tax situation was an admission by Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah] that the sentiment for tax reduction has gained such headway that he believes it will be impossible for congress to avoid giving serious consideration to a comprehensive revision of the revenue law. Heretofore Senator Smoot has opposed revenue law revision at the coming session and is still doubtful if it will be possible to get a majority of either house to support a bill acceptable to the administration.

Senator Smoot stated that a canvass of the situation would be made and a report made to President Coolidge, who is expected to champion the Mellon tax program. At present it is the understanding that the senate Republican leaders do not count on more than forty Republicans and possibly four Democrats to support the administration program in the senate. On this basis the administration tax bill would lack five votes of a majority.

Smoot Sees Bonus Bill Pass.

Senator Smoot, who, although an opponent of the soldier bonus bill, has predicted its passage over the President's veto, said that he now understands that two Republican senators who voted for the bonus before may change their position, in which case the passage of the bill over the President's veto may not be as much of a certainty as seemed to him previously.

Representative Dickinson said that he favored a maximum surtax rate of somewhere between 32 and 40 per cent, probably 35 per cent. He said that there undoubtedly is good reason why there should be a reduction below the present maximum of 50 per cent if all surtax rates are to be scaled down.

Mr. Dickinson's statement possesses more than ordinary significance in view of his part in fixing the present 50 per cent maximum surtax rates. Under his leadership a group of western Republican members of the house, mainly from agricultural districts, but by most of the Democrats, forced a house to concur in a senate amendment to the 1921 revenue bill fixing the maximum surtax rate at 50 per cent.

Committee Approved Low Rate.

The bill as previously passed by the house had reduced the maximum surtax rate from 65 per cent to 32 per cent and the low rate had been approved by the senate finance committee. Advocates of higher surtaxes in the senate fought through an amendment on the floor to raise it to 50 per cent. Although Senator Harding exerted his influence in favor of a lower rate, the house in a fight led by Mr. Dickinson concurred in the senate amendment. Representative Green [Rep., Ia.], who is to be the new chairman of the house ways and means committee, also voted at that time for the 50 per cent maximum rate, although the other two Republicans conferees on the tax bill, forRepresentative Fordney of Michigan, and Representative Longworth of Ohio, favored the lower rate.

Raises Issue with Radicals.

In indicating a willingness to accept reductions in high surtax rates under certain conditions, Mr. Dickinson takes issue with the extreme radical Republican group in the house which has been in opposition to oppose any reductions on large incomes although favoring substantial cuts on the small taxpayers. Representative [Rep., Wis.], spokesman of the La Follette group on the ways and means committee, has already announced that he will resist any reduction in high surtaxes. There appears no serious effort to further reduce surtaxes.

Dickinson said that he is against the repeal of the excess profits tax which has been advocated by some of the republicans. He expressed the opinion that the government for an excess profits

FIND MAN DYING, I SHOT; WOMAN TELLS OF BATTLE

Patsy Montano, otherwise known as Pasquale Merede, died last night a few minutes after police found him lying on the floor at 637 Aberdeen street with bullet wounds in his chest and abdomen. They took into custody Carp Esposito, who also had been shot, and the wife and seven children of Phillip Mazzio, in whose home the shooting occurred.

Mrs. Mazzio told detectives that Montano and another man entered her place and ordered Esposito to go outside. He refused.

"All right, then; I'll shoot you here," Montano declared, according to the woman's story. She added that he wounded himself while her husband and Esposito were trying to take the revolver from him. The police are looking for Mazzio and the man who accompanied Montano.

HOFFMAN FLOORS A SPEEDER WHO OFFERS BATTLE

Sheriff Peter Hoffman concluded his half mile chase of Arthur M. Maas, speeding automobile last night by sending Maas crashing to the pavement when the latter disputed Hoffman's right to arrest him.

Maas, an iron worker, living at 2235 West Adams street, passed the sheriff's automobile in Washington boulevard at a dangerous speed. His ride ended at the Lincoln street crossing, where Maas' car collided with a taxicab. Two occupants of the cab, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Miner of 2544 Washington boulevard, were cut and bruised.

"You can't pinch me!" shouted Maas, as Sheriff Hoffman rushed up to him. He struck at Hoffman, Hoffman struck at him—and the argument was over. In Maas' car was found a partly filled bottle of liquor.

Standard Boosts Gasoline 2 Cents in South Dakota

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana raised the price of gasoline in South Dakota recently to the extent of 2 cents a gallon "to restore the usual 2 per cent differential between tank wagon and service station prices," it was announced yesterday, following a meeting of the directors of the company. A charge that the boost was made through an "understanding" with independent dealers was denied.

Mother of Quadruplets Gives Birth to Triplets

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Michael Salso, mother of the Salso quadruplets, whose birth in 1921 attracted country-wide attention, is now the mother of triplets, born yesterday. The children born to Mrs. Salso now total fifteen.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17.—Rolla Wells, former treasurer of the Democratic national committee, and Mrs. Carlotta Clark Church, widow of Alonzo Church, were married here today. Both are prominent and wealthy local residents.

BOY HANGS SELF MIMICKING FILM

Efforts of Brother to Save Him Fail.

Fred Roach, 11 year old son of Dr. Richard A. Roach, 2446 Wilson avenue, accidentally hanged himself with one of his father's knit ties yesterday afternoon in the attic of his parents' home while mimicking the death of a villain in a movie thriller he had seen several days previously.

The boy, who was in the sixth grade at the Queen of the Angels parochial school, was a favorite among his schoolmates because of his ability as a mimic.

His principal pastime and that of his 9 year old brother, Richard, during their play hours, was to reenact a movie they had seen.

Finds Brother Strangling.

They had been rehearsing a western melodrama all morning yesterday in a room on the third floor of the home and had returned to the attic after lunch to complete the play, when Mrs. Roach called to them to come downstairs and take their baths. Richard heard her call and came bounding down the stairs. Mrs. Roach sent him back to the attic to fetch Fred.

As the boy entered the room he saw his brother struggling to release the tie knotted about his throat. Fred had thrown the tie over a pipe of the hot water heating system running along beneath the low ceiling under the eaves. He had knotted it just once, but its texture caused it to hold taut. Richard struggled to unfasten the knot, which was cutting deeper and deeper into his brother's throat, and, failing, rushed screaming to his mother.

When Mrs. Roach reached the attic the boy had ceased to struggle. She cut the tie and carried him downstairs, and called the police and a doctor. Members of squad 4 of the fire department worked over the boy with an oxygen machine for nearly an hour without success.

Boy of Happy Dispotition.

"Fred possessed one of the happiest dispositions I ever saw," Dr. Roach said. "He was unusually happy today and had romped over to a bank this morning to deposit some money for me. He was getting along well at school, and there was certainly no reason for him to grieve over anything. He was a great mimic of everything and everybody, and we figure that was what he was doing when he was strangled—mimicking some scene he had seen on the screen."

500 MASSACRED IN JUGO-SLAVIA, LONDON HEARS

LONDON, Nov. 17. — [By United Press.]—Massacres, in which some 500 persons are believed to have been killed, have been going on for ten days in and around the towns of Kotchana, Radovishta and Istib, Jugo-Slavia dispatches to the Daily Express from Sofia said today.

The massacres were said to have been perpetrated by unorganized Serbians, assisted by regular Jugo-Slav troops.

The whole district is terror stricken, the reports said.

The terrorized district is close to the Bulgarian border, and it is believed the persons reported massacred must have been Bulgarians.

MEN IN UNION MEETING HELD UP BY ROBBERS

Fourteen members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union were at tables in the headquarters of the organization at 1939 Milwaukee avenue early this morning when four men armed with revolvers entered and held them up. Most of the members who attended the regular weekly meeting had gone to their homes when the robbers entered.

As the robbers were about to leave they picked up two overcoats.

H. H. Emmons, business agent of the local, reported the robbery to the Shakespeare avenue police. He estimated that $400 was taken by the robbers.

"MASTER MIND" IN $1,000,000 THEFT NABBED

'Dr.' Spencer Brown Is Identified.

"Dr." Spencer Brown, chemist and maker of dental supplies, alleged master mind of the gang of acetylene torch burglars who obtained approximately $1,000,000 in loot in the Werner Bros. safety deposit vault robbery, was captured last night hiding on the roof of his office at 1617 North Wells street and identified by three men as the person who turned over to them $24,500 packing house bonds taken in the burglary.

Through the arrest and identification of Brown, said to be one of the cleverest criminals who ever operated in Chicago, Chief of Detectives Hughes announced last night that the entire gang will be rounded up within a short time.

Also Nab a Safe Blower.

At the same time it became known that for the last two days Chief Hughes has been holding at the bureau William "Chilly" Evertson, a notorious safe blower and one of those convicted of the safe robbery in the office of George F. Harding, former city controller, as one of the men who actually handled the torches in the Werner Bros. job. Evertson, who was recently released from Joliet penitentiary on a writ of supersedeas pending an appeal to the United States Supreme court from his conviction in the Harding robbery, was captured by Lieut. William O'Connor and his squad following a desperate battle in his home at 3134 Emerald avenue.

Theft Traced by Wharton.

The tracing of the recovered stolen bonds back to "Dr." Brown was largely due to the efforts of Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Wharton. They were traced from Attorney Julian Ryer, who was questioned after he had attempted to dispose of them to the Continental and Commercial National bank, back to Fred E. Frain and George Pickford, bond salesmen. It was learned that these two obtained them from Thor Wassburg, a stock salesman. Wassburg said he had received them from Graham S. McGill, another stock and bond salesman.

Until last night McGill stubbornly denied that he had given the stolen securities to Wassburg and it was not until his office partner, Herbert Hannah, broke down and confessed he had been "Dr." Brown give the bonds to McGill that the latter confessed. Hannah, McGill and Wassburg all were being held at the South Wabash avenue station when Brown was captured and he was rushed to that station to confront the three.

Brown Known to Police.

But even before Hannah's admissions, Chief Hughes had been searching for Brown, who was driven out of business on Wabash avenue three years ago when the police discovered he was "cooking" nitro-glycerine for a band of burglars. For years the police had known that the man, busy over his chemical retorts and teeth molds, was a receiver of stolen property. He had testified in court for safe blowers and burglars. He had been one of the alibi witnesses for Earl Dear, who was hanged, and later was arrested for perjury. An indictment still stands against him over in the Criminal court, but it never has been prosecuted for lack of sufficient evidence.

"Dr." Brown and Dr. Warren O. Wheelock were arrested in 1921 for failure to report giving medical attention to August Meyers, an ex-convict, who died of gunshot wounds.

Melted Jewelry, Police Say.

"We know that Brown was the brains of a gang of safe blowers when we broke him up on Wabash avenue, but we couldn't get enough evidence to convict him," said Chief Hughes. "At that time he held tickets for eighteen large diamonds he had pawned, but we never could trace a single one of those diamonds to its original owner. He's a clever one, all right. He would take the stolen jewelry and melt the gold into teeth and crowns and sell them. Those plaster casts he was working over whenever our men would drop in, we now know, held the settings taken from the articles of jewelry."

So three days ago detectives began dropping in at "Dr." Brown's office on North Wells street, only to learn he was out of town. Two and three times a day they would visit the place, but no Brown. Last night a private detective saw a man sneaking along on the roof and notified the police.

They scampered up the fire escape and found the "doctor"—he never was a dentist, although he is said to

Johnson Picks Wrigley as His Illinois Chief

BY PARKE BROWN.

William Wrigley Jr. will be the "top man" in the Illinois campaign of Hiram W. Johnson for President.

Senator Johnson made the announcement yesterday shortly before he left for Washington, apparently to put an end to conjectures concerning the identity of his Illinois manager.

"Speculation on that subject," he said, "has been idle. There will be a committee announced. I have asked William Wrigley Jr. to become chairman of that committee and he has consented. The committee has not been formed—it is in the process of formation—and when the personnel is determined it will be announced."

Wrigley is a close personal friend of the California senator and has declared he will "go the limit" in support of his presidential aspirations.

Other Probable Members.

Other members of the committee probably will be A. D. Lasker, former chairman of the shipping board; Harold L. Ickes, former Bull Moose leader in Illinois, and Edgar J. Cooke, one of the "original Johnson men."

In an informal way Senator Johnson again made it plain that there is no connection between his candidacy and any other candidacy in Illinois. He emphasized his intention to avoid taking sides in local battles.

Before leaving with Mrs. Johnson, he said his stay in Chicago had been a pleasure which was increased by messages he received following the announcement of his candidacy. He was asked to make public some of the telegrams, but he said he always had been reluctant to make public communications which the senders might have considered strictly personal.

"Third Party" Moves.

Having been host to two presidential candidates of the major parties—Senator Johnson and William Gibbs McAdoo—in the last week, Chicago today becomes the center of a third party agitation promoted by the "Committee of 48," the Farmer-Labor party and the "Ford for President" groups.

In connection with the gathering Senator Magnus Johnson is billed to speak tonight at Garfield hall, Madison street and California avenue.

SEEKS MID-WEST VOTE

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Although Senator Hiram Johnson, in tossing his hat in the ring declared his intention of carrying the contest for delegates into every state, it is expected here that he will devote a large part of his campaign to the important pivotal states of the middle west such as Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio, with occasional forays into the east.

How President Coolidge will combat the Johnson campaign has become a matter of much speculation among political observers in Washington.

He may assume a passive attitude and refuse to participate in the primaries in any way. This course would eliminate all risk of an embarrassing defeat, it is pointed out.

Senator Johnson's friends believe that he will show great strength in the primaries in the middle west and they contend that even if he should fall short of a majority of delegates on the first ballot he will furnish convincing proof of his strength by the large number of delegates he will control from the middle west.

The combined delegate strength of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio, is 174; a number sufficient to insure powerful influence in the convention.

One Hundred for La Follette.

President Coolidge's boosters think Mr. Coolidge will have the largest number of delegates, but even Senator Moses [Rep., N. H.], one of the first to declare for Coolidge, doubts whether he will have a majority. Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.], leader of the radicals, probably will carry his own state, and several others in the northwest and may go into the convention with as many as 100 delegates.

24 KILLED AS PEASANTS ROUT RHINE TROOPS

French May Arrest Industrialists.

BY VINCENT SHEEAN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUSSELDORF, Nov. 17.—Food rioting and communistic demonstrations continued today in Dusseldorf, Oberbilk, Gelsenkirchen, Essen and Bochum, with a constantly growing casualty list, which reached 138 tonight for the last twenty-four hours.

The French armed the German blue police and instructed them to protect property.

Comparatively few lives were lost, the hungry villagers being unarmed, and the police attempting to shed as little blood as possible. Four were killed at Oberbilk and three at Essen. In addition, there was an undetermined number at other places, which the French say number more than ten. Conditions are rapidly drifting towards chaos here as the mark fades towards nothingness.

Ready to Arrest Industrialists.

Gen. Degoutte, French commander in chief, today signed an order imposing five years imprisonment and 100,000 gold marks ($25,000) fine upon any industrialist who attempts to discharge all or any portion of his workmen. Hugo Stinnes, who notified all his workmen that the Ruhr will be plunged into total inactivity on Nov. 30, is directly attacked by Gen. Degoutte in the proclamation.

The preamble of the French order says that in view of the fact that "some industrialists" have menaced the population in the occupied territory with untold suffering by the threat of cessation of work on Nov. 26, the occupational authorities must take upon themselves the task of guaranteeing order and maintaining the livelihood of the Ruhr.

Twenty-Four Killed in Rhine Battles.

DUSSELDORF, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—At Himberg, in the district of Neuwied, a battle occurred yesterday between the separatists and peasants. The peasants were armed with revolvers and hand grenades and fifteen were killed and a number injured. One peasant was killed.

Fighting was resumed this morning at Honnef and eight persons were killed and more than sixty wounded. A children's sanatorium at Neuwied was converted into a hospital for the care of the injured.

At the request of the delegates of the allied high commission at Bonn a company of infantry was sent to Honnef to restore order and disarm the populace. A thousand separatists fled and a detachment was sent in pursuit.

French dragoons have surrounded the woods where the anti-separatists took refuge, and are searching for them.

At Cologne, systematic looting which has been going on for the past three days has extended to private houses.

FRANCE BACKS DOWN

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 17.—THE TRIBUNE learns tonight that France is willing to forget its proposed sharp protest against the return of former Crown Prince Frederick William to Germany and that it will consent to leaving a resumption of investigations of the interallied military control commission to Gen. Nollet, head of the mission, in order to avoid an open rupture with the British when the council of ambassadors reconvenes on Monday.

Premier Poincare will content himself with warning the German government not to permit a monarchist coup.

The premier also has practically decided to accept the British suggestion for a note to Chancellor Stresemann urging the latter to make it possible for the allied control commission to function again and to permit Gen. Nollet to investigate wherever there is no danger of a riot.

THE TRIBUNE understands that M. Poincare by this new policy of conciliation and concessions hopes to obtain an accord and to reestablish the entente.

France Behind Poincare.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Premier Poincare can count on countrywide support of the French nation should next week bring a parting of the ways between Great Britain and France. This was the almost unanimous comment in political circles this evening.

Following the meeting of the ambassadors' council Monday, a council of ministers, presided over by President Millerand, will assemble in Elysee palace "to examine the decision of the council reached or the proposals drawn up," according to a semi-official communique issued this evening. That M. Poincare will maintain the view point so often expressed by him was conveyed again to friends and foe alike tonight when the premier spoke at a banquet of the reparations committee of commerce, industry and agriculture.

"We are loyal friends of humanity," said M. Poincare, "but I cannot conceive of humanity without a prosperous and respected France which has been given full satisfaction on reparations and security. Recent events in Germany are not likely to cause us to show weakness in our dealings with her, or make us regret the occupation of the Ruhr. On the contrary, we may deem ourselves fortunate in holding today Germany's principal mining valley and the great manufacturing center of arms and ammunition of our former enemies, who are now suffering from a recurrence of nationalist passions and are fostering hopes of revenge.

"We are thus in a position to defend peace and safeguard our victory. We will not suffer, I solemnly affirm to you. The hour of concessions has passed; the treaty will be executed, whether Germany is willing or unwilling. To leave Germany the time and means to prepare for a new aggression would be a crime, against posterity. We will not commit it."

The entire audience, composed of senators, deputies, leaders of big business and professional men, arose and cheered the premier.

French Plans Kept Secret.

The measures which the French government intends taking should France be compelled to act alone are being jealously guarded. No military operation on a large scale is intended, according to interpretations placed on a semi-official communique which appeared this evening, expressing surprise at "the gullibility with which a portion of the Spanish press has welcomed the grossest lies of the German propaganda." This had reference to a dispatch published in Madrid under a Berlin date, announcing France's intention to occupy Berlin and Munich.

"There is no need to say that the aggressive intentions attributed to the French government are absolutely groundless," adds the communique. "Moreover, events in the near future will give the lie to these fabrications."

Pleads for "Winter Truce."

The press, while pessimistic concerning prospects for an eleventh hour agreement with Great Britain, supports the French government's determination to see the thing through, but some of the comment is tinged with melancholy at the possible rupture. The Tempo says:

"All Europe knows that the only remedy for the situation is for France and England to get together. It is not toward Germany one can turn to reestablish union among the allies. It is not to another allied power—Mussolini's speech yesterday is proof thereof—that a request can be made to intervene impartially. It is still less upon a great neutral power that we may impose such a heavy role. So why cannot the Britons and French reach a common accord and come to an understanding one with the other before it is too late? Winter has come; let us have an armistice of our own."

Little Entente Back Allies.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 17.—The little entente has taken a united stand, pledging to support any measures the allies may take for safeguarding peace and respect for the Versailles treaty by Germany. Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, and Jugo-Slavia consider the former crown prince's return to Germany and the German refusal to restore allied military control constitute serious menaces to peace.

Ludendorff to Go Free.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Bavarian administration will not press proceedings against Gen. Ludendorff for his part in last week's revolt.

The general's "honorable conduct as a retired officer" in the affair has been investigated by the Bavarian branch of the German officers' association, and his behavior is said to have been found "spotless." The association declares he was deceived by Adolf Hitler, the Fascist leader, whom he had repeatedly warned against any act hostile to the state or central government.

The general committee of Catholic laymen in Munich has issued a declaration repudiating reports that the clergy or Cardinal Faulhaber were in any way concerned with recent events in Bavaria.

COOLIDGE MADE HONORARY HEAD OF NEW INSTITUTE

President Coolidge has accepted the honorary presidency of Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine, a research institution to be founded in Panama, according to announcement yesterday of Dr. Franklin H. Martin, a director of the institute.

The institution is named in honor of the late Surgeon General William C. Gorgas of the United States army, who waged a successful fight against yellow fever in Panama and Havana. A drive to collect a $5,000,000 fund for the institute is to be gotten under way at once, it is announced.

Chicago members of the board of directors, besides Dr. Martin are: Dr. Frank Billings, Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, Dr. W. H. G. Logan, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, and Fred W. Upham. George M. Reynolds is treasurer.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR. Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and thirty-five leading universities and found to be superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 699 West Lake street, Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on ten days FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $380 to $568 per month.—Advertisement.

STINNES GROUP RIDES HIGH ON HUNGRY TEUTONS

U. S. Buyers of Marks Out Billion Dollars.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

"The Americans have their hands full of German marks, and the Germans have their pocketbooks full of American dollars."

This is Berlin cabaret stuff, supposed to be funny. But one has to return to the states to realize how many persons—perhaps millions—have been duped by cheap Germany money. To many it is more of a tragedy.

About $1,000,000,000 of good American gold, it has been estimated by financial experts, have been reduced to about 70 cents worth of German paper in the last five years. There still are persons buying now when the rate is as many trillions as it was single marks to the dollar in 1915.

Plenty of Other Easy Marks.

Americans are not the only mourners at this funeral of speculation passion. The Copenhagen Landmanns bank failure showed how Denmark was involved, and in Sweden, Holland, Switzerland, even super-patriotic France and a score of other countries, many thousands of persons have lost millions buying marks.

Who is responsible for the mark collapse and who has the billions of dollars profit?

The usual charge is that the German government was coined foreign gullibility. It is vaguely believed that "Germany" profited. But so far as this charge refers to the German government, it is true only to limited extent.

The government has no money laid by. It has been able to buy food cheaply, to keep employment going, to help ward off bolshevism through mark inflation.

Actually the great gainers have been two elements, the big industrialists who paid starvation paper wages and turned their profits into dollars, and the hundreds of thousands of persons termed "schiebers" or smugglers who have systematically "shoved" their money abroad.

Sets World Record.

This has been done on a scale unprecedented in the world's history and constitutes probably the world's greatest swindle. Generally it is estimated that the equivalent of 50,000,000,000 gold marks or $7,500,000,000 mostly in cash, some in other valuables, has been smuggled into foreign countries, or kept there (when the money was due in exchange for goods) since 1918.

That is why, with a large per cent of the population under nourished, with tuberculosis and rickets increasing among the children, with soup kitchens opening in the public squares and with appeals for the Hoover relief action, it has always been possible for many thousands of Germans to make Berlin night life as wild as that of any capital of Europe and perhaps more vicious.

Practically every German who has good money to spend has it because he has "schiebed" his money abroad or kept money due him there or bought dollars and pounds while foreigners were buying marks.

Patriotism a la Stinnes.

First and foremost on the list of those who have profited by the speculation through which Americans lost about $1,000,000,000, is Hugo Stinnes and his associated industrialists. In fact, the Stinnes crowd generally is charged with sabotaging the mark continuously and being largely responsible for its final and grand collapse.

Until recently only kind thoughts were entertained in Germany and abroad for Stinnes. He has 400,000 men working for him. He usually paid them higher wages than his competitors paid their laborers. But at the recent reichstag investigation committee's hearings evidence was produced that Stinnes paid better wages because his paper marks cost him almost nothing.

For years the Stinnes and other industrial groups borrowed heavily from the reichsbank—the government. They got enormous credits at what at first would seem an enormous interest rate. They repaid weeks or months later, making up one dollar's worth of marks borrowed with about 10 cents out of their $1 profits.

In the weeks or months they used the government money it had fallen to a fraction of its dollar value of the day borrowed, and even if 50 or 100 per cent was paid to the government in interest for the period of a few weeks, the borrowers still made many hundred per cent profits. So they could afford to give their hundred of thousands of workingmen a few fractions of a cent more per day in wages.

Others in on the Job.

In like manner the smaller industrialists borrowed money from the government, and in like manner they kept their gold earnings abroad. For example:

Recently on a train in Italy The Tribune representative met one of the managers of the largest optical works in Germany. This man boasted that the German firm had sold goods worth 100,000,000 lire (about $5,000,000) in Italy since the armistice—not one cent of which has been brought into Germany.

This is only one honest confession illustrating the general scheme.

Swiss Feel the Pinch.

In Switzerland last summer the Swiss franc slumped. There was considerable alarm and mystery. The country was prospering—it was the first good tourist year since the war—and the banks were solid. The secret was transfer of German owned money to England. Many millions of Swiss francs deposited on drawing accounts by thousands of Germans had suddenly been demanded.

Likewise in Stockholm one of the leading bankers told me that the millions of dollars' worth of Swedish crowns, kept on checking accounts, were a menace rather than an asset to Swedish finances. The same can be said of such accounts in Holland, Denmark, and other countries. Hundreds of millions of dollars are kept on deposit, but foreign bankers are afraid to do business because the German owners may withdraw without notice.

Thus five years of German speculation and "schiebing" have absorbed the billions of American and other speculators. Every time an American bought $1,000 worth of marks some German sold $1,000 worth of marks.

Taught to Curse Americans.

Thousands of persons are cursing Americans, because every day the German press screams the "dollar rate" and a nervous, underfed, hoodwinked mass blames the rising dollar for the mark decline.

Hatred is being bred between city and country, between peasant and industrial worker, political hatred, racial hatred, breeding toward chaos.

One result: Not a single German workingman has a cent. Bank accounts do not exist. The many thousands who retired on savings and bonds have nothing left. Some once rich are in the poorhouse.

At the same time the Stinnes and scores of other coal, iron, steel, and shipping kings are amassing wealth and financial and political power such as hardly has been conceivable in modern history.

M'CORMICK BACKS BONUS AT 343D INFANTRY RALLY

Col. Charles R. Howland, who commanded the 343d Infantry during the world war, was a popular guest of honor last night at his outfit's annual reunion in Hotel La Salle. Not satisfied with cheering their heads off once for their old battle boss, they demanded that he return and receive another deafening earful.

The cheering was renewed when United States Senator Medill McCormick spoke about the soldiers' bonus bill.

"It behooves the republic to discharge its duty to those who served in time of peril," he said. "Red blooded men care very little for that type of citizen who seeks to evade issues which must be faced in time of peace—issues which are as grave as those that had to be faced in time of war."

Other speakers were Maj. Thomas R. Marshall, Eugene J. Early, Maj. Charles Collette, and Maj. William Q. Setliffe.

USK FIRM BLED FS12,000; NAME OF SMALL USED

vernor's Trial Factor in New Squeeze.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Illinois insurance department, ich is supposed to aid insurance mpanies, conserve assets, and protect the public, was the instrument ough which the law firm of Schuyler einfeld forced the American Bank Insurance company of Chicago to them $12,000 out of a depleted ssury, at a time when the company struggling to get on its feet, it disclosed yesterday.

This story runs back for two years. mes J. Houston, who served Gov. ll as insurance commissioner for and a half years, until his recent rious resignation, is directly conned as the agent for the law firm. story is confirmed by several ces and is given by an ex-official the company. Controlling interst the company has recently been d to the Cloverleaf Mutual Life Inance company, a strong Jackson concern headed by F. H. Rowe. t now has ample financial back The home office is at 43 East street.

"To Aid Governor's Trial."

The American Bankers' company s organized in 1909 by W. C. Bryan began writing business in 1910 th a capital stock of $500,000. This s reduced later to $200,000. The exination by the state insurance dertment as of Dec. 31, 1922, stated t the operations of the company d not been successful, and that the ital stock was impaired. Here was opportunity for the state to do some d. Instead of that it was considd an opprtunity to bleed the comy, and the plea for a "legal reve" was made on the ground that was needed for the expense of the rnor's trial.

bout two years ago the company ided to buy the corner lot at Ohio Cass streets, just west of its office. officials believed in the sound real ate values of the new north side dis and intended eventually to put a new building. An appraisal was by a reputable real estate agent 238,500. The question arose as to ther this valuation would be acted by the department of insurance Springfield. The appraiser was told and out, and he reported back that ould cost $2,500 to get this valuaover, that this amount would have paid to a law firm (no name men d).

About two later Weinfeld sent for me and nt over the matter and he said uld fix it up. I asked him what uld cost and he said:

Well, you know all the insurance are getting behind Houston and we are defending the governand that costs a lot of money. know you fellows haven't kicked

I asked him what this had to do the justice of our proposition. he said:

Well, you know what the insurce commissioner can do.'

I did know that. I asked him how ch. He said it would cost us ,000 a year.

I laughed and told him he was y, that we didn't pay our president much. He said a good lawyer more than a president any day. I ed with that, but told him we ld not afford to pay that much. We an attorney at that time, E. T. ers. We did not need another. He the real estate would increase in s $50,000 a year and we should not ry over a little fee of $10,000.

Compromise on $6,000.

I told him I would not pay an id fight to the last and would go to governor with it. He said:

That won't do you any good. The rnor is obligated to us. We are nding him. There goes one of his yers now, Mr. La Forges.'

I still told him I would not pay he asked how much we would ider. I said $1,000.

He laughed at this and said we e a lot of pikers. He said he ted all the traffic would bear.

directors. He wanted to know what I wanted to do that for and I told him he ought to know that the law required it." (This was no effort to hide, such as was disclosed in the records of the Public Life Insurance company payments to the firm.)

The directors finally voted to make the payment and it was done. After that things changed magically at Springfield and they were able to get what they wanted, the officials report.

Dig Up $3,500 More.

A few days later a real estate appraiser of the name of Scown appeared at the bank and said he had been sent by the state insurance department to make another appraisal of the property. Later Houston told the company officials that their first appraisal was too high, and that it would cost them $3,500 to get this new appraisal.

Later the appraisal came through for $240,000 and a bill for $3,500, with instructions from Houston to pay it, which the directors decided to do.

About a year ago the company retained George H. Peaks of Peaks, Bunch & Latimer, as its counsel. The atmosphere changed again at Springfield. Mr. Houston became cold. Later a bill for $6,000 for 1922 services came in from Schuyler and Wemfeld. The company was informed that this was a yearly agreement. The official denied it. The matter was taken up with Mr. Peaks, company officials stated, and he instructed them to pay nothing.

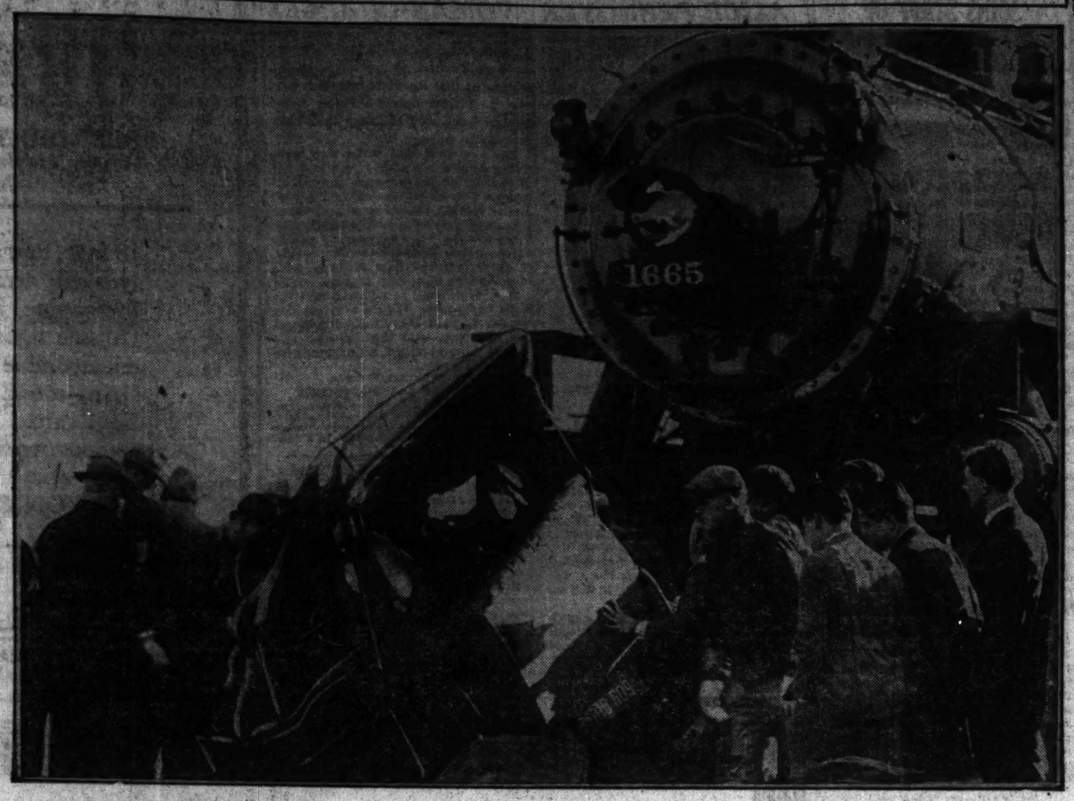
And Then $6,000 More.

The matter of the new examination of the company by the state department came up. The capital was found impaired and the company was ordered to make it up within a certain time. It ignored this and ceased writing new insurance. Negotiations were taken up with the Intersouthern company of Louisville for reinsurance, and with the Jacksonville company for purchase.

The department sent an appraiser out west to investigate loan property and came back with a pessimistic report. The favorable report of the state was needed to complete the sale. The directors voted to pay the extra $6,000 to Schuyler and Weinfeld. This was done last August, while Mr. Peaks was on a vacation. An extension of fifteen days, in which to make up impairment of capital was the only result.

Mr. Peaks retained Attorney George Barr, who went to Springfield and put the matter squarely up to Houston, and the report of the department was given out and the sale consummated. Both Mr. Peaks and Mr. Barr represented the company for small fees, in view of its financial condition at that time.

FOOTBALL TRAIN SMASHES INTO AUTO



A Northwestern railroad train carrying Chicago football fans to Madison, Wis., for the Michigan-Wisconsin game crashed into an auto at the Walkup avenue crossing in Crystal Lake yesterday morning and killed the lone occupant of the machine, Thomas Graham of Woodstock. Graham, a Northwestern brakeman, 48 years old, is survived by a widow and four children. The picture shows a crowd of football fans and others helping to remove Graham's car from in front of the locomotive so the victim could be extricated from the wreck. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

RUPPRECHT AWAITING ZERO HOUR TO STRIKE FOR BAVARIA THRONE

MUNICH, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria is standing apart from the political agitation now shaking Munich. He apparently is waiting an opportunity to recover the kingdom his family ruled for ten centuries, but it is declared that he does not regard the present as the moment to act.

PRINCE RUPPRECHT. ((C.) Press Illus. Serv.)

In his secluded villa he recently received in audience some of the old Bavarian noble houses. He is reported as saying to them in substance:

"When the Bavarian people want me to be their king I shall be ready, but the zero hour has not struck.

"The people must themselves ask me. They must be overcome with the deplorable consequences of the present régime."

MOVE TO COLLECT OVER $2,000,000 OF FORFEITED BONDS

More than $2,000,000 in unpaid forfeited bonds have been assigned to assistant city prosecutors for collection by City Prosecutor Samuel Pincus, it was learned yesterday. New "blacklists" of professional bondsmen who have repeatedly bilked the city will be supplied to every police station and Municipal court justice.

Chief Collins has promised that charges will be preferred against the desk lieutenant or sergeant who accepts surety for a prisoner from a discredited bondsmen.

U. S. Tax Agents Force Open Croker Deposit Box

West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 17.—Federal estate tax agents today forcibly opened the Bula M. Croker safety box in the First National bank here. Nothing was found in it but bonds amounting to $110,000. An expert safe opener was employed to drill the box open, which it is said was done against the protest of the bank. Mrs. Croker is the widow of the former Tammany chieftain.

Boys at Football Game; Sigma Chi House Robbed

While all the student members were attending the Maroon-Ohio State game yesterday, burglars entered the Sigma Chi fraternity house at 5711 Woodlawn avenue and took money, notes, clothing and a watch. Charles L. Dwinell, treasurer of the organization, declared the loot amounted to approximately $1,000.

PLAN TO TEACH PARENTS HOW TO GIVE SEX TALKS

Hygiene Council Will Use the Schools.

Plans for a series of lectures on "What Parents Ought to Know," to be presented in the public school buildings, with the approval of Superintendent of Schools Peter A. Mortenson and the coöperation of the Parent-Teachers' association, were completed yesterday by the Social Hygiene council, of which Dr. Rachelle Yarros is chairman and director.

"The sanest source of sex information for children," Dr. Yarros pointed out, "is their parents. Yet, too, often mothers and fathers complain that they are ill equipped to impart this important information in the best way.

Mortenson O. K.'s Courses.

"These courses, to teach mothers and fathers what to tell their children, have received the indorsement of Supt. Mortenson, and the individual principal of each school in which they are to be held. They will form an important part of educational preventive work."

The lecture prepared by Dr. Yarros, and to be modified according to the needs of each particular school group, is divided into three parts: sex facts for the child of pre-school age, of school age, and of the pre-adolescent period.

Declaring that social hygiene is no longer an "isolated problem," but one that touches every phase of, philanthropic and social work, the council, under the direction of Wilfred S. Reynolds and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, yesterday coördinated the social hygiene work of the Chicago Woman's club, the Woman's City club, the Illinois League of Women Voters, the Chicago Woman's aid, and twenty-six local social agencies, including the Juvenile Protective association, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, and the United Charities.

Council to Resume Activities.

The recent acquisition of a fund, the council announced, will enable it to continue intensive educational work among women and girls interrupted by the war. Among the planned activities are:

1. Round table discussions of social hygiene problems at Chicago Woman's club, Woman's City club, and Illinois League of Women Voters.

2. Lay conference to be held this winter.

3. Establishment of training center to train social hygiene teachers.

Mrs. Edward Herr, who resides at 4315 Broadway, says that no Paul Spratt lives there as was stated yesterday morning in a story concerning the arrest of Spratt and two companions for a fur and jewelry robbery.

Yukon Records Hottest Summer in Its History

Dawson, Y. T., Nov. 17.—Yukon territory has experienced the warmest summer and autumn on record. The daily mean temperature has been the highest in twenty-five years, averaging 60 degrees during June, July and August. Maximum temperatures of 90 to 91 degrees were reached.

DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES RELIEVED BY AMAZING INVENTION

Startling Free Trial Offer Made to Sufferers Everywhere.

An amazing invention which enables those who are deaf or hard of hearing to hear all sounds clearly and gives prompt relief from distressing head noises is being offered to sufferers on 10 days' free trial by the Dictograph Products Corporation, Suite 1231 Lytton Bldg., Chicago. This remarkable invention, called the Acousticon, will enable any one whose auditory nerve is not destroyed to hear as perfectly as one whose hearing is normal. Many who have been deaf for years report most gratifying results from the use of the Acousticon, stating that they now hear the slightest sounds with perfect ease, that they have been entirely relieved from the distressing head noises which often accompany deafness, and that their natural hearing is greatly improved. The manufacturers are so proud of their achievement and so confident that every deaf person will be amazed and delighted with it that they offer to send it to any one by prepaid parcel post on 10 days' free trial. They do not ship C. O. D. nor do they require any deposit, but send it entirely at their own risk and expense, allowing the user 10 full days to try it and decide whether they want to keep it or not. As there is no obligation whatever, every one who is troubled with deafness in any form should take advantage of this liberal free trial offer. Just send them your name and address for descriptive literature and free trial request blank.—Advertisement.

MURDER CLEW TO McCARTHY TALE OF BLACKMAILER

Slain Man's Deposit Box May Yield Secrets.

A safety deposit box secretly maintained in a West side bank by Frank Di Marco, who was shot to death a week ago by an unidentified assassin, may hold the key to his murder and also to the identity of an alleged blackmailer of William J. McCarthy, former secretary of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company. McCarthy is now a prisoner in the county jail because of his failure to pay alimony. The possible link between McCarthy's story of blackmail and Di Marco was brought out yesterday by Attorney Arnold McMahon, counsel for Mrs. Margate McCarthy while reading an account of the murder. Mr. McMahon remembered an excuse that McCarthy had given to Judge John J. Sullivan of the Superior court when arraigned for nonpayment of alimony.

Reveals Father's Secret.

"I'm being hounded to death by a blackmailer and haven't a cent left, your honor," McCarthy is said to have complained.

He is quoted as declaring the "blackmail" money was being paid in behalf of his father, who before he died revealed that he had wronged a girl in his youth and was compelled to make payments to a "fellow named Frank Di Marco." The elder McCarthy beseeched his son to continue the payments, according to the story.

McCarthy told of making four payments totaling $41,000. One payment was made in Chicago, one in Fort Worth, Tex., a third in Wilmington, Del., and the last in Atlantic City last June, he said. In Wilmington he asserted "Di Marco" had a confederate known as Giuseppe had him prisoner in a hotel room for four days until he could scrape together enough money.

Families Once Neighbors.

Investigation by Attorney McMahon, aided by Assistant State's Attorney Joseph P. Savage and Detective Sergeant Harry Donnelly, yielded only one point which circumstantially appeared to conect "Di Marco, the blackmailer" with the slain Di Marco. This was the discovery that both the McCarthy and Di Marco families formerly lived near each onther in Jackson boulevard.

Mr. Savage said that tomorrow as a last resort he would obtain authority from the coroner's office to examine the contents of the safety deposit box held by Di Marco at the Midcity Trust and Saving bank, Halsted and Madison streets. He hopes the box may at least contain papers which will throw light on the murder.

Questioning of Mrs. Harriet Di Marco, the widow, availed the investigators nothing.

"My husband was in Chicago all of June and July," she insisted. "Though we were separated, he telephoned me every day."

She said she had never heard of McCarthy and the only Giusseppe her husband ever knew lives in Italy.

McCarthy Scorns Picture.

McCarthy was not disposed to aid the officers.

"Yes, I told that to Judge Sullivan," he finally admitted. "But why pick on a fellow when he's behind the bars?"

Mr. Savage took a photograph of Di Marco to the jail to see whether McCarthy could identify the slain man as the blackmailer. McCarthy retired to a corner of his cell and refused to look at the picture. He said he never had known the address of the blackmailer and had no idea of his present whereabouts.

CHILD FALLS FROM CRIB; KILLED.

Gustav Copula, 7 months old, died yesterday from injuries received Friday when he fell from his crib in the front room of his home at 6061 Calumet avenue. The baby's skull was fractured.

U. S. IS IRRITATED BY ATTITUDE OF FRANCE ON DEBT

Nothing Said of Indemnity When Borrowed.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The statement of Premier Poincare in the French chamber of deputies yesterday that payment of the French debt to the United States was conditional upon the recovery of reparations from Germany aroused deep resentment in high official circles here today.

"When France was begging the United States for money during the war," a high administration official declared, "there was nothing said about Germany's paying the bills."

They Ought to Know Now.

Poincare, officials here assert, is fully aware of America's attitude on this question of debts. It has been fully set forth in the recent communication to Lord Curzon, and it had previously been set forth many times, including an elaborate explanation of the whole debt situation on the occasion of the visit to the United States of the French debt refunding commission, more than a year ago, with M. Parmentier at the head.

The administration spokesman reiterated that allied debts had nothing whatever to do with payment of reparations by Germany. No such contingency was atipulated when the debt was contracted, it being merely a plain transaction in which the United States government lent the money, and the French government pledged itself to pay.

Sounds Like Repudiation.

To talk now of making payment of the debt contingent on the collection of reparations smacks somewhat of repudiation, and government officials are anxious that the United States give no appearance of acquiescing in any such doctrine.

If France had been able to finance her part of the war without borrowing from the United States at all, it is pointed out, if, in other words, she had been able to raise the necessary credits by taxation and internal loans, the problem of collecting reparations from Germany would remain exactly the same.

Officials declined to discuss for publication reports from London indicating that the British cabinet yesterday gave consideration to the advisability of sending a note to France demanding payment of the French debt of some $3,000,000,000 to Great Britain, and the subsequent suggestion that the demand would be more effective if the United States did likewise.

FRED STONE BEGS CLEAN STAGE AS DAUGHTER BOWS

Clown's Appeal at Debut Brings Smiles, Tears.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—To his own home folks, Fred Stone showed the heart behind the clown's painted smile early this morning. Fresh from two big emotional experiences—his conversion to religion and the triumphs of his daughter Dorothy in his own footsteps—this man who has made millions laugh, drew tears from his audience. For the sake of the profession to which he is entrusting his daughter he demanded that the theater clean up its shady plays.

He had come in from the Globe theater for the first Clowns' night of the National Vaudeville Artists' winter season in their clubhouse in West 46th street, bringing most of his company. Dorothy was there, and handsome Mrs. Stone, who used to be Aline Crater of musical comedy.

Staunch Faith in His Art.

And then Fred Stone, already bursting with paternal pride, stepped to the footlights, dashed down his funny hat and made his confession of faith in his craft, the craft of clean laughter.

"Thank you for welcoming us home," he said, his big features working nervously beneath the makeup. "It is home here. Thank God, I'm from vaudeville; that I'm still a vaudevillian. And I thank God for it, because it's the best part of the whole show business. What success we have had—Dorothy and her mother and me—is only because we gave people what they years in vaudeville showed me people really want—clean fun.

"Vaudeville is clean. You've made it so. I remember the old variety days and the beer halls and all, and so do some of you. And what is it today?

Says Vaudeville Is Clean.

"Well, when any of my babies tell me they're going to vaudeville I never bother to ask them where. I know it's all right. I can't say the same for any other type of show on Broadway or any other show street. Some people make a holler about playing Sunday night shows. They better look at the shows that are playing all the week on Broadway.

"There are a lot of shows on Broadway that have got to be cleaned up, not on Sunday night but every night of the week. You can't be good on Sunday and bad on Monday, Tuesday, twice on Wednesday and Saturday, and every other day of the week.

"I'm dead serious about this. I love my profession. I've given forty years to it. And now," he said, turning to Dorothy, "I've given to it the greatest treasure a man ever possesses, my little daughter. Do you wonder I want to see this profession clean?"

Hatch Sees Dedication of School Bearing His Name

have practiced dentistry at one time—hiding behind a chimney.

"Just lost my keys to my office," he explained glibly, "and came up the fire escape to see if I could get in through a skylight."

Whether he had been on the roof for three days the police could not learn, for "Dr." Brown shut up like a clam after reaching the street. He only smiled as the three stock salesmen pointed him out as the distributor of the stolen bonds.

Recalls Harding Robbery.

Everson was one of five convicted of cracking the safe of Mr. Harding in his real estate office at 3103 Cottage Grove avenue last January and stealing $14,000 worth of bonds. The others were Mrs. Orrie Cole and John Nisnick, taken in New York as they were about to leave the country; William Patton, and Charles Caule. Philip Strobel, another member of the gang, entered a plea of guilty; while Thomas Holden, a seventh defendant, jumped his bonds and is now a fugitive from justice. Thomas Holden was freed for lack of evidence in the case.

At the time the robbery occurred both the police and the state's attorney's office pronounced it "a faultless job" performed with nitro-glycerine, percussion caps and "juice" from the electric light. It had been committed, they said, by the cleverest gang of cracksmen in the country. The Werner Brothers robbery was just such another job.

H. P. French, Mt. Carmel Banker and Lawyer, Dies

Howard P. French, attorney, and president of the First State bank of Mount Carmel, Ill., died yesterday at his home after an illness of several months. He was 43 years old, and considered one of the wealthiest men in Wabash county. Mr. French is survived by his widow and two young sons.

Mr. Peifer has practiced law since his graduation from Northwestern law school in 1911. He starred on the university football teams of 1909-'10.

Constance Talmadge Here; Silent on Salary Cuts

Miss Constance Talmadge, movie star, passed through Chicago en route from New York yesterday. She said she was going to California in an attempt to get warm, as she does not like the frigid temperatures of this region in November. And, incidentally, the star declined to discuss the movie actors' salary cut, declaring it did not affect her.

The movie queen was clad in a modish gray traveling suit, black cloche hat, gray stockings, and black patent leather pumps. A black sealskin coat, trimmed with red fox fur, hung over her arm.

$25,000 IS LEFT TO CHARITY BY ALICE PENNOYER

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A bequest of $5,000 to establish a fund the income from which is to be used to give temporary aid to female bookkeepers, stenographers, clerks, teachers, and like workers who may be in need was one of the trust funds provided for in the will of the late Miss Alice Pennoyer, filed today for probate in the County court. A similar sum was provided for an old ladies' home which might be established in Kenosha within a stated period. Otherwise it will go to St. Johns' Protestant Episcopal home in Milwaukee. Ten thousand dollars is to be given to Kemper hall, a school operated by the Sisters of St. Mary's in Kenosha, and a fund of $5,000 is to be established to aid worthy young men who are working their way through the University of Wisconsin.

The entire estate in excess of $30,000 is left to Dr. Nelson A. Pennoyer, a brother.

3 BANK ROBBERS ADMIT MURDERS, WOMAN CHARGES

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 17.—[United Press.]—Mrs. Fannie Waltheau today gave police and county authorities a statement that the three men held here for the $70,000 holdup of the Burnt Prairie bank had told her they committed the robbery.

She also said that while they were living at her home they had told her of murdering an old man and an old woman near Belleville, and had burned bloody clothes, including a cap, which contained part of a man's skull. The three men held are between 25 and 30 years of age. They are Orville Sample, G. C. Oyler, and Sam Haynes, alias John Anders, alias Sam Hamm.

Mrs. Waltheau, to whose house the three came after Walter Haynes, boy brother of Sam Haynes, had come to live with her, said the trio also told her of numerous other robberies in southern Illinois.

FOR RENT

A Six Room House in an Ideal Restricted Community At $32 to $35 Per Month

This offer will appeal mainly to people whose income does not depend upon their residing in Chicago or within commuting distance of Chicago, and particularly to salesmen traveling Wisconsin from a Chicago office, retired business men, women living upon an income and others who do not need to commute daily to Chicago. Nevertheless the site of these homes is within two hours of Chicago along the beautiful North Shore and within walking distance of Lake Michigan, and in a city of over 40,000 people.

The homes are ideally laid out in a splendid community where the comforts of the finest modern conveniences blend ideally with the unhurried and unbounded beauty of nature. All streets paved, curbed and sidewalked—a place of happiness for your family and of safety for your children. Each home is on a 66x100 foot lot with 40 feet or more between houses—plenty of room for children to romp and play. Schools, churches, stores, etc., within 2 blocks' distance. Streets are electrically lighted, well cared for and quiet, and picturesquely lined with shade trees. Single car garage behind each house for $3 monthly additional.

The homes are two story and basement houses, six rooms and bath, with three bedrooms on the second floor. All recently constructed and varied in design. Electric light, gas, laundry, hot and cold water, furnace heat and many other desirable features. Heavens have front and rear porches.

We have 25 of these homes for rent and have priced them from $32 to $35 a month, which is far below their real value. This is a bona fide proposition. There are no "tricks" or "riders" attached to it. For further information

A BARREL OF PROMISING POSSIBILITIES

WRIT CLAIMS ZEIDLER ARREST POLITICAL PLOT

Chicago attorneys who secured the acquittal of Fred Lundin here undertook to secure the release of Gus Zeidler, Gov. Small's paroled chef, at Edwardsville, Ill., yesterday. P. H. Clarkson, chief parole officer, filed the petition for a writ of habeas corpus prepared by P. H. O'Donnell and Clarence Darrow and hearing on it will be tomorrow.

In the petition it is charged that Zeidler's arrest, which occurred in Gov. Small's kitchen, was part of a conspiracy to benefit Senator Thurlow G. Essington in his race for governor against Gov. Small. Attorney O'Donnell's contention was that it was generally known since last spring, that Gov. Small had paroled the man convicted of a bank robbery, but that no move had been made to arrest him until after Senator Essington's visit to Edwardsville.

Then, the attorneys said, the sheriff might have arrested him on the street, but waited till he was at his duties of preparing a meal for Gov. Small.

The attorneys also followed the lead of Will Colvin, member of Gov. Small's pardon board, who pleaded for the return of the governor's cook on the grounds that his arrest was illegal in that Zeidler was a ward of the state.

CHICAGO FIRM'S LETTER APPEARS IN VETS' HEARING

"Star Witness" on Stand Again Against Forbes.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Elias H. Mortimer, star witness against Charles R. Forbes, took the stand again tonight before the senate veterans' committee to renew his charges and to present new ones.

Chairman Reed announced that James S. Easby-Smith, counsel for Forbes, will not be permitted to cross examine Mortimer, but, as has been the custom, the chairman will put to the witness questions prepared by Easby-Smith.

Produces Chicago Letter.

Examined by John F. O'Ryan, general counsel for the committee, Mortimer said he had been able to locate since he last appeared on the stand a number of letters and telegrams relating to charges in his previous testimony.

One of the first papers read was a letter addressed to "My Dear Katherine and Mort." It said:

"You will see by the enclosed that June 1 was best I could do. Will keep you advised and hope you will give me a ride some time. You certainly have been generous with your car. With love to you both. Jack."

Mortimer said this was from J. W. Thompson of the Thompson-Black Construction company of Chicago, who was seeking government contracts at that time.

"On the strength of promises made to Thompson by Forbes about government work," said Mortimer, "he had promised Mrs. Mortimer an expensive car. The car never was delivered."

Says Forbes Was Cagey.

"Forbes decided when we first began talking about these contracts," Mortimer said, "that it would be better for us not to be seen together in Washington too much."

One of the telegrams was dated at Seattle, signed "James W. Black," and addressed to Mortimer.

"Will have all of the Scotch generals when you arrive here with Gen. Haig in command," said the telegram.

At that time Mortimer was in San Francisco with Forbes and his official party.

"Were all the Scotch generals there?" asked Senator Reed.

"Yes," Mortimer responded.

Charges Conspiracy.

Mortimer charged that Forbes, Charles F. Cramer, general counsel for the veterans' bureau, who committed suicide last March, J. W. Thompson, and himself had entered into a "conspiracy" whereby the Pontiac Construction company of Detroit, Mich., was to be informed of the amounts of the other bids on the foundations for the Northampton, Mass., hospital and then permitted to put in its bid.

The Pontiac company got the contract, he said.

Cross-questioned about his previous testimony that he gave Forbes ten $500 bills in the Drake hotel at Chicago in June, 1922, Mortimer said he returned to the hotel in the late afternoon and Thompson gave him $10,000 in the bathroom of the Forbes suite and he called Forbes in and gave him half of it.

"Forbes and Mrs. Mortimer were shooting 'craps' on the bed," Mortimer said, "and he had his coat off. He had won $200 from Mrs. Mortimer. I gave her the money to pay him, but I don't know whether she gave it to him or not."

"You realize that you've testified here to matters very incriminating to yourself?" asked Senator Reed.

"Yes, sir," said Mortimer.

"What's your motive for testifying so fully?"

"It's a personal matter that I'd like to explain to the committee privately," he replied.

Tells Why He Testified.

Questioned by Senator Walsh [Dem., Mass.], Mortimer said that if he could have brought about a reconciliation with Mrs. Mortimer he never would have made public his story of his "confidential relations" with Forbes.

"If you could have effected a reconciliation with your wife wouldn't you have denied your whole story here?"

"I wouldn't have taken a chance. It would have bothered me very much."

"A chance on what, perjury?"

"Yes sir," was the reply.

McADOO HINTS 1924 IS WORLD'S MOST VITAL YEAR

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—William Gibbs McAdoo, accompanied by Mrs. McAdoo, returned today with the prophecy that the impending event of 1924 may have a great influence on the destinies of America and of life world but without saying anything as to whether his candidacy for the presidency would have any connection with that event. To 500 prominent Democrats, Mr. McAdoo said:

"The impending event of 1924 may have a greater influence on the destinies of America and the world than the events of the last ten years, important as those events were.

"It is time to solemn thought, dispassionate judgment, unselfish purposes, and exalted patriotism. Let us strive to the utmost to make our California do her part nobly when the time comes."

LAY DEATH TO MOONSHINE.

Mrs. Julia Brager, 54, supposedly a victim of moonshine, was found dead in her home at 1446 West 14th street, yesterday.

"Salmagundi"

LIFE is a Training School, where Humanity is prepared to "carry on" the World's Work.

Equal Opportunity is the Birthright of this vast student body, and Valuable Awards await him who Registers Achievement.

It was here that Jefferson and Franklin received the Inspiration which enabled them to Draft the Declaration of Independence.

Washington stepped from the Campus of this Wonder-School of Experience to the Battlefield, and later to the Presidency.

Shakespeare, Byron, Keats, Shelly, Addison, Pope, Emerson, Longfellow were matriculants, and each Achieved lasting Fame in Literature.

Fulton and Bell traveled the Road of Destiny, and received the Gratitude of Mankind at the Journey's End.

Selfridge transplanted American business methods in London, and reaped a Harvest of English Admiration and Patronage.

Wanamaker won recognition by Preaching and Practicing the Doctrine of "sell unto others as you would have others sell unto you."

And so, The Hub of Chicago is demonstrating daily that "Business Has a Heart," and that True Commercialism rests upon the Foundation of Integrity.

Throughout thirty-six years of uninterrupted Prosperity, The Hub has consistently adhered to the principle that "Public Service is a Public Trust," ever realizing that the Confidence of thousands of Loyal Patrons is its most Valuable Asset.

The Hub's buying organization is one of the most efficient ever enlisted in a Concentrated Merchandising Effort. Maintaining connections in all of the principal European cities, its representatives cover the leading Production Centers of Two Continents.

Rightfully, The Hub is the Rendezvous of the Masses. Advantageously situated in the Heart of Chicago, "the City of Destiny," and which The Tribune thinks may some day become the Economic Capital of the World, The Hub today is the Complete Realization of the Dream of its Founder.

Indeed, Life is a Training School for all of us—a delicious Salmagundi, if one views it through the Eyes of Achievement.

Henry C. Lytton

POTTER PALMER TELLS OF 30 CASE BOOZE DIVIDEND

Boxes Still Unopened in Home, He Testifies.

Potter Palmer testified in the Grommes & Ullrich booze split trial yesterday that he does not know exactly how much liquor he received in the "liquidation" because he never has bothered to open the cases delivered to him.

He said thirty boxes were delivered to his residence at 1550 Lake Shore drive just as he was leaving for a vacation in Florida and that he hardly had time to do more than count the boxes. The cases, he said, are still in his home, but he is unable to swear what the contents are.

Good Liquor, Says Noyes.

David Noyes, broker, had a good memory, particularly as to the fact that the "assets" were "mighty good liquor," but was a little confused as to his residence address. It usually is the Ambassador hotel in the winter, the Glen View Country club in the summer, and his brother's house at 19 Scott street between times, he said.

The half day court session, besides giving the court "fans" a sight of what they had longed for, days to look upon—Gold Coast witnesses—brought another extended legal argument which finally opened the way for the government to present what it considers one of its most vital points. This is that, while much of the liquor was distributed to the homes of the wealthy, a lot also went to places not named in the federal permits as issued, and possibly was redistributed in true bootlegger fashion.

Potter Palmer Takes Stand.

Mr. Palmer was the first important witness of the day. With his slim hands placed against hair youthfully wavy, although steel gray, he seemed nonplused at the prosecution's second question—"What is your business, Mr. Palmer?" After a moment's hesitation, he replied:

"Well, I suppose you'd call me a real estate dealer."

During the first part of his testimony Clarence Darrow repeatedly edged closer to the witness stand with one hand cupped to an ear.

"I can't hear you, Mr. Palmer," he finally said. "Won't you speak up and let us all in on this?"

A moment later E. Warren Everett, also of the defense counsel, had to repeat the request.

Can't Recall Rum Check.

With Prosecutor Edward J. Hess questioning, some of Mr. Potter's testimony follows:

Q.—You sent the Chicago Title and Trust company a $1,600 check to be placed in escrow for Grommes & Ullrich stock you were buying? A.—I made out a check, I think to the trust company. I don't remember whether it was mailed.

Q.—Didn't you ever see it afterwards—when it came back from the bank after being paid? A.—I don't think so. I seldom look through my canceled vouchers.

Q.—Was the check for $1,600? A.—I believe it was—I don't remember the details of all this.

Q.—You signed a withdrawal permit application? A.—I did. I remember that because it seemed to state that I was swearing I had possessed the liquor prior to prohibition. I called Charles Williams (a defendant) and he said it stated that Grommes & Ullrich held the liquor. No, I don't remember who witnessed the signature.

Noyes Samples the Goods.

Mr. Palmer then identified the check and the application. Under Mr. Darrow's cross-examination he didn't recall whether he signed an escrow agreement, whether he signed a proxy, or any dates, except that the transaction took place last spring, just before he went to Florida. He presumed, however, that these things probably were done.

Mr. Noyes explained how Harry Tansey, a defendant, had suggested that he buy Grommes & Ullrich stock and how he went to the warehouse to talk with Fred Diehl (defendant), an old friend, about it.

Q.—What did Diehl say? A.—He said the dissolution, distribution of assets, and delivery of assets would all be lawful and with federal approval. He said if there was any hitch I'd get my money back. This was about November, 1922.

Q.—What else did you do at the warehouse? A.—Nothing much—had a drink with Diehl.

Q.—Did you discuss the assets? A.—I said the assets tasted mighty good—that I thought I'd like them. Later I bought $400 worth of stock and received two cases of brandy, a three gallon jug of Holland gin, and the same quantity of rum. I had it sent to my brother's house, 19 Scott street.

Q.—You live there? A.—It's as much my home as any place, I guess.

Later, on redirect examination, Mr. Hess had to freshen Mr. Noyes' memory as to statements he had made before the grand jury, and which he seemed for a moment to be contradicting, but it obviously was just faulty memory.

Joseph Marra, a garage and restaurant owner at 1500-1502 West 22d street, told how he traded Tansey a $1,500 automobile for thirty shares of stock, for which he got thirty cases of liquor.

"He said I'd get twenty-five cases of brandy, three cases of gin, one case of rum, and one case of blackberry," said Marra.

He identified the withdrawal permit application which he had signed at the Grommes & Ullrich warehouse, adding that he ordered the liquor sent to his garage at 1502 West 22d street.

Q.—Is that your home? A.—No.

Q.—I call attention to this permit, which says, "The undersigned hereby makes application to transfer the liquor listed below from the Grommes & Ullrich warehouse to 1502 West 22d street, which premises he uses as his private dwelling house."

Half a dozen defense attorneys jumped to their feet, all objecting at once.

"There's no charge that permits were unlawfully made out," said J. Hamilton Lewis.

U. S. Scores Point.

After much argument Judge Evan A. Evans ruled that it was charged there was conspiracy to transport liquor unlawfully and that, if permits were falsely made out, the government had a right to show it.

Several witnesses on Monday are expected to tell how they bought liquor and had it sent to places not their homes, although the permits stated the address was "the private dwelling place of the applicant."

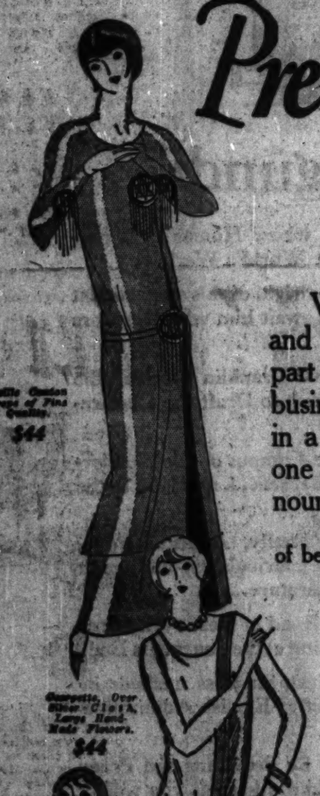
Style Without Extravagance

Pre-Thanksgiving Sale of Frocks



We have never attempted to do anything sensational and we are not attempting it now. Our ideal plays its part in our sales as well as in the regular conduct of our business. You won't see many sales here, probably one in a season in each line of merchandise, and when that one sale is advertised every woman who reads our announcement should visit us.

On Monday, November 19th, at 9:30 A. M., we place on sale a group of beautiful frocks and gowns at

Styles New—Values Up to $150

The styles are new—of the highest type of fashionable frocks in America—values which you have never seen equaled—among them you will find garments that are selling today in many stores at $90, at $100, and up to $150.

Rapid Progress of Johnson & Harwood

JOHNSON & HARWOOD started in business three months ago with one simple, homely ideal—to give the style-loving women of Chicago "Style Without Extravagance." The public response was immense. It exceeded our greatest expectations, and today thousands of women proclaim this store the greatest little institution that was ever started in Chicago.

By selling strictly for cash and having third floor low rent, we have saved our customers 25%. They know it, and for that reason they like us. We will continue to save them 25%, but in this sale savings of 50% and more will be common.

COOLIDGE SICS WATER SPANIELS ON RUM HOUNDS

New Navy to Patrol Coast —Cost? $28,500,000.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Plans of the treasury department for extending the coast guard service for action in prevention of rum smuggling have been approved by President Coolidge.

The treasury department proposes an expenditure of $20,000,000 for new ships and $3,500,000 for additional men to provide a service adequate to patrol the coasts for the rum pirates and the President is expected to say something on behalf of the proposals in his forthcoming message to congress.

Not Certain How to Ask.

Whether the proposed expenditure will be placed in the budget at the eleventh hour, or be asked as a separate additional appropriation, has not been determined, it was said today.

The plan contemplates increasing the number of coast guard commissioned officers from 209 to 353, warrant officers from 396 to 716, and enlisted men from 4,051 to 7,122.

The treasury would purchase twenty new cruising cutters at a cost of $11,000,000, 200 cruising motor boats at $7,850,000 and 100 small speed boats for approximately $1,000,000.

With this rum armada the treasury department would endeavor to patrol the American coast lines continuously.

Gotham Drys Elated.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Local prohibition enforcement officials were elated today to learn that President Coolidge has approved of plans for a congressional appropriation of $20,000,000 to enlarge the "dry navy."

The proposed Anglo-American treaty sets the territorial limits of the United States at twelve miles to sea, instead of the three miles, which was previously the limit.

While the new plan is generally credited to Secretary Mellon, it was formed at a conference between Rear Admiral Reynolds of the revenue cutter service, and officials of both the treasury and prohibition departments.

The present fleet of cutters is inadequate, even when its full strength can be mustered, and there are now a number of these craft out of commission for repairs and others not fast enough for duty.

West Hammond Dry Raids Net 15, Big Booze Supply

Federal prohibition agents under direction of G. J. Simons, chief field officer, last night raided twelve soft drink parlors in West Hammond, arrested fifteen persons, and seized thirty-two barrels of beer, seventeen gallons of whisky, and 132 gallons of wine.

COOLIDGE SICS WATER SPANIELS ON RUM HOUNDS

New Navy to Patrol Coast —Cost? $28,500,000.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Plans of the treasury department for extending the coast guard service for action in prevention of rum smuggling have been approved by President Coolidge.

The treasury department proposes an expenditure of $20,000,000 for new vessels and $8,500,000 for additional bases to provide a service adequate to police the coasts for the rum pirates and the President is expected to say something on behalf of the proposals in his forthcoming message to congress.

Not Certain How to Ask.

Whether the proposed expenditure will be placed in the budget at the eleventh hour, or be asked as a separate additional appropriation, has not been determined, it was said today.

The plan contemplates increasing the number of coast guard commissioned officers from 209 to 353, warrant officers from 396 to 716, and enlisted men from 4,051 to 7,122.

The treasury would purchase twenty high speed cutters at a cost of $11,000,000; 200 cruising motor boats at $7,000,000 and 100 small speed boats for approximately $1,000,000.

With this rum armada the treasury department would endeavor to patrol the American coast lines continuously.

Gotham Drys Elated.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Local prohibition enforcement officials were elated today to learn that President Coolidge has approved of plans for a congressional appropriation of $30,000,000 to enlarge the "dry navy."

The proposed Anglo-American treaty puts the territorial limits of the United States at twelve miles to sea, instead of the three miles, which was previously the limit.

While the new plan is generally credited to Secretary Mellon, it was formed at a conference between Rear Admiral Reynolds of the revenue cutter service, and officials of both the treasury and prohibition departments.

The present fleet of cutters is inadequate, even when its full strength can be mustered, and there are now a number of these craft out of commission for repairs and others not fast enough for duty.

West Hammond Dry Raids Net 15, Big Booze Supply

Federal prohibition agents under direction of G. J. Simons, chief field agent, last night raided twelve soft drink parlors in West Hammond, arrested fifteen persons, and seized thirty-two barrels of beer, seventeen gallons of whisky, and 332 gallons of wine.

DOGS AID CHILDREN'S FUND

For the benefit of the newly organized Protestant Children's Aid home, 439 East 45th street, the Western Specialties Clubs association yesterday devoted its annual licensed Chicago Bulldog club show, held at Broadway armory. Children from the home were in attendance and found many friends among their canine helpers. Photograph shows one of the children with S obriquet, the property of A. F. Kramer, chairman of the show. OPERATION ON APPENDIX PRIZE IN HOSPITAL DRIVE

Austinites who are already bereft of their appendices are gnashing their teeth over their ineligibility to compete in the forthcoming appendicitis marathon. The Austin Hospital association has announced that the citizen who turns in the largest number of contributions in a community drive for a new $700,000 hospital will receive as first prize one operation for the removal of his appendix.

The prize, it is stated, is not transferable, nor is there a time limit attached to it. The winner may take as long as he wants to get the necessary appendicitis. Secondary prizes, such as operation on tonsils, will be announced at the Austin Masonic temple next Friday at the opening dinner of the campaign. The hospital is now under construction at Central avenue and Flournoy street.

PORTO RICO ASKS CITIZEN STANDING SAYS SPOKESMAN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Senator Santiago Iglesias of Porto Rico, president of the Porto Rican federation of labor, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, is in Washington to lay before members of the new congress the views of those whom he represents regarding the future of the island.

Senator Iglesias is a staunch defender of permanent unity with the United States and is opposed to the independence agitation that has for some time been conducted on the island. He believes, however, that congress can materially aid the people of Porto Rico and improve their standards in many ways.

"Porto Rico is deserving of a status that will permit a better development of the life of the island," he said today. "Our people need better education, better homes, better clothing and better food. Porto Rico wants an elective governor; it wants an island government responsible to the people of the island. It wants citizenship to mean something, and an opportunity to share the full benefits of the American form of government, American institutions and American citizenship."

LIBERTY AND MORALITY.

Adverse comment on a recent editorial on churches in politics almost unanimously ignores the issues of principle pointed out in that protest. Most of the critics simply fall back upon the assumption that any one who opposes prohibition or the league of nations or the world court reveals moral turpitude and is a confessed ally of evil. It is significant that there are so many Americans who have no more knowledge of the great principles on which our system of ordered liberty is founded than if they were Tibetans.

Many clergymen have written to indorse the editorial, but others so miss the distinction drawn between preaching morality and organizing political action that a course in American constitutional history and principle is evidently badly needed in their cases. One clergyman cites precedents from the prophets of Israel and from the Scotch Presbyterian assembly of the Stuart period, with an ingenious disregard of the fact that the American republic is not a theocracy. And as for a rather vague reference, we find nothing in the New Testament which leads us to think that Christ was a political organizer or put any reliance in the salvation of souls by legislation. We do recall that upon an occasion he said: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

The distinction our editorial made is not subtle, and will not be fuddled by any American who comprehends the American principle of the separation of church and state. Clergymen are free to discuss in the pulpit the moral and religious aspects of private or public conduct. They are free to partake in political organization and action as citizens. But when they make use of religious bodies to influence political action and to force political judgment, they are abusing their priestly function and making these religious bodies political instruments. That was the system of theocratic Israel, of some other governments of ancient times, and of some early American colonies. But it is not the system of government we have inherited, and presumably approve, and, we trust, never will be.

Talk of principles doesn't get very far with most of us if it runs counter to immediate interests, prejudices, or preconceptions. But the principle or policy which separates the church from the state came from human experience. The great men who laid the foundations of our system and the people who adopted their handiwork had a comparatively fresh historic memory of the evils of religious intolerance and the operation of church in state. Some of the chief colonies had been founded by men and women escaping from religio-political discrimination and oppression. In New England the Pilgrims, who had a true vision of liberty and wished to oppress no one; the Puritans, whose conception of liberty was confined to their own liberty and who, like many of their spiritual descendants, were willing to oppress others; in Pennsylvania the Quakers, in many colonies the Huguenots, in Maryland the Catholics, in Virginia the Anglicans, had sought in the new world asylum from persecution at the hands of governments imposing theological doctrine. The civil wars in England, Scotland, and France, the Thirty Years' war on the continent, with its ferocious cruelties and vast waste of life and wealth, were in the background of the thought from which our constitution and its guaranties were born.

The principles of liberty were not academic maxims to our forefathers, but the plain rules of practical wisdom evolved from tragic experience. Statesmen and people took them seriously and they informed our American life for generations. For a hundred and thirty-four years the American people have lived with a good deal of harmony and mutual consideration on the basis of toleration and respect for one another's liberty of thought and private conduct. Today we take this blessing for granted, but it has been said that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and what is taken for granted is in danger of being lost.

That truth could not be better illustrated than in the recrudescence of intolerance at this time. It could not be better emphasized than by the lack of respect for the underlying principle of liberty of conscience, not merely among the uneducated, but among men and women whose thought ought to be American and founded on American conceptions of right. To the founders it was self-evident truth that it is immoral as well as futile to attempt to force—by law or whip or fagot—a neighbor's conscience. It is not evident to the many zealots who, in all sorts of organized groups, masked or unmasked, are trying to impose their conception of right, of good conduct, of private morality, by statutes and political action, and even by lawless violence.

This is justified in the name of morals or in the name of religion, and those who resist are branded as allies of the devil. So it was in the sixteenth century. So was every atrocity committed by the bigotry from whose terrors our forefathers determined to defend us. In the name of morality and religion, of infallible doctrines and conceptions, the witch was drowned, the heretic racked, cities destroyed, and peaceful countrysides wasted from one end of Europe to the other. The zealots who inspired such deeds and their followers were certain they were right. They, too, were inspired by motives highly moralistic. They, too, were self-assumed agencies of divine justice and soldiers of righteousness.

Our forefathers remembered this, and so, if we are wise, will we. What Americans need today more than anything else is a restoration of the faith of our fathers in the individual liberties and a reawakening to the truths they had wisely gathered from human experience.

ESSINGTON'S CAMPAIGN.

Reports from down state indicate that Senator Essington is receiving support which reveals an awakening on the part of the people. In his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor they have an escape from an episode in misgovernment which could not often be repeated in a state.

The present governor is an unbelievable phenomenon in the American system of government. It is possible to see how a state could be misguided enough to elect him once, but not twice. We are convinced that Chicago will take care of his case with decision, and if downstate repudiates its misfortune there will be such a clearing out at Springfield as there has been in the Chicago city hall.

AMERICANS.

About the time the soldiers were being brought back from France the American intellectuals adopted the term "one hundred per cent American" as one of derision. This was not because the kluxers were using it. They came later. It was because any one should assert a patriotism uninfluenced by any alien considerations.

So far as THE TRIBUNE is concerned any one, pink, pop head, ivy climber, colonial, ribbon wearer, or what not, may call it one hundred per cent American and is welcome to all the satisfaction that there may be in the derision.

The United States is loudly talked of in terms of reproach by superficial citizens who could not carry a precinct but would carry napkins if that were the condition of their association with distinguished or titled Europeans. They have an inferiority complex which makes them feminine. They would have the United States marry some foreign nation to reform it, but what they really want to do is take in washing to support it.

The United States is a reproach to a type of intellectual or liberal who defines American purpose as consciously malevolent to other peoples, aggressive against their well being and their resources.

The United States in its development has taken in millions of citizens and subjects of other lands. No other great modern nation could undertake such a task of nationalization. It is the purpose of foreign governments to work upon these groups in the United States. They endeavor to maintain ascendency over the opinions and acts of people who have become American citizens and have the privileges of citizenship.

That exposes the United States to deliberated and intelligently directed propaganda to the like of which no other nation could be exposed. The alien effort is to keep Italians thinking as Italians, Swedes as Swedes, Germans as Germans, Poles as Poles, etc., and Americans as anything but Americans.

There are Americans to whom the great question is whether to try for a tablet in Westminster or the ribbon of the Legion of Honor. The latter has the advantage in that you do not have to be dead to get it.

We know that these eccentricities are more superficial and exasperating than fundamental and destructive, but for what they are worth they are disintegrating and weakening.

MAKE THE PANAMA CANAL PAY FOR ITSELF.

The current issue of the Panama Canal Record, showing that more than 77 per cent of the total traffic through the canal is coastwise traffic between North American ports, chiefly of the United States, ought to interest this middle western region. That vast traffic, which in September amounted to more than 1,200,000 gross tons of freight, goes largely to the upbuilding of our coastal regions and industries. The middle west's profits are only the indirect ones coming from the stimulation of the coasts.

At the same time this section of the country is being penalized indirectly by this waterway competition to its traffic routes, the railroads, and by the various trade advantages which the cheaper transportation gives the coasts. And yet the middle west is being taxed in exactly the same proportion as Philadelphia, New York, San Francisco, and Portland to pay for the canal.

It is not only fair but good business tactics from a national standpoint, we believe, to bring about adjustment of this discrimination against one section of the country in favor of another. Certainly our agrarian population which opposed ship subsidy ought to oppose this system, which in effect is a subsidy without many of the valid arguments in support of that recently defeated.

Thus nowadays we find lumber from eastern Oregon or Idaho being shipped to western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio markets by rail to Pacific ports, by steamer through the canal, and by rail or barge to Atlantic interior points, instead of coming direct by rail from Idaho to Ohio. The same is true of other items of heavy freight. That does, of course, relieve our middle western railroads of burdens which might overtax their capacity, but it also relieves this section of the business and profits which the interior transportation might mean, and, at the same time, discourages improvement of our interior railroad systems.

The issue is really very simple. The United States congress, in 1909, authorized issuance of $375,200,000 worth of bonds to finance the Panama canal. Congress, up to July 1, 1920, appropriated a total of $468,841,045 for the total cost of the canal, including purchase of rights, fortifications, construction, operation, and maintenance. All this money must, in the course of time, be paid. If the canal were run as a business enterprise the last dollar could be paid out of its earnings.

Up until 1919 it was operated at a deficit, but since that time it has been earning an annual gross profit. That profit has risen from approximately $250,000 in 1919 to an estimated $9,000,000 for 1923. That is the margin of revenue from tolls above expenses of operation and maintenance. It is a fraction more than 2 per cent of the actual cost of construction. Obviously it cannot even pay interest on the bonds, much less retire them. Under present arrangements taxes must make up the difference, and these taxes are levied in the same proportion on Chicago business and Iowa farms, which are penalized by the canal, as they are upon New York business and Oregon lumbermen, or California oil producers, who profit from it.

Common business practice and justice, disassociated from politics, would raise the tolls sufficiently to pay the interest on the bonded indebtedness and at the same time amortize the bonds. That could be done without depressing the trade through the canal. The growth of that trade under the present scale of tolls is sufficient evidence that profits are sufficient to bear their fair share of the cost of that great work to this country. There is a proper task for the next congress.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

It is about time to put away the tools and lock the toolhouse. The bulbs have been put to bed, and when the frost has entered the ground the mulch will be spread and the garden gate closed. There are still yellow wych hazel blossoms, but Orion and Sirius come earlier into the sky and expectation waits for the drive of snow. The owl will hoot in a frozen world. Youth may romp, but post-meridian life lives on what it has stored up, turning from the external range to interior resources. A potted red geranium is an old Tashioned emblem of serenity in the cottage in winter. The white narcissus will greet the southern sun. The dried rose vines scratch at the window. The white oak leaves will hang to the branch, but gray days will fall from the ticket.

SOCIALISM AS IS.

The favorite complaint against capitalism of Socialists from the Fabian right to the bolshevik left is the "anarchy and waste of competition." The Socialist state would get rid of that. The profiteering middleman would disappear, the producer and consumer would meet at last, and a system of beautiful simplicity and perfect economy would rise on the wreckage of capitalism.

This is one of the leading items in the Socialist prospectus, and we offer as a footnote thereto a translation of an excerpt from a recent leading article in Isvestia, an organ of the Moscow government:

"Unfortunately our internal trade still remains in disorder. The apparatus of the 'Gostorgovlia' (government trading department) and also the Co-operatives' apparatus, is heavy and awkward. The route covered by commodities from the workman's bench to the peasant's plow is exceptionally long. Comrade Smilga, who is one of our best business men, has examined the legal Soviet-Coöperative route of travel of the commodity from factory to peasant, and has counted seven links—Factory, Trust, Syndicate, Centrosoyus (Central Union of Coöperatives), Provincial Soyus, United Consumers' association, local store. At each of these links there is added on a percentage for upkeep and all sorts of overhead expenses. And if one takes into account the fact that between these legal links of our trade there are also the private brokers who also take certain commission percentages for their services, then it is not difficult to imagine why the price of the commodity goes up as it journeys toward the peasants.

"And it works the other way also. Going from the peasant plow which produces the grain, which is collected through the same legal Coöperative route from the primary coöperatives, through the Provincial Soyus and the Centrosoyus, then proceeding to the workman in the factory through a further series of links, the peasant's grain must be bought very cheaply locally if it is to be accessible in price to the workman, who has not yet reached the pre-war level of wages."

As an authentic, if not official, picture of Socialism as is, this is illuminating, if not, to the faithful, very gratifying.

THE DUCAL DOLLAR.

Heinrich Mann, the German poet and patriot, says that money is most potent in two countries, Germany and America, in the one for evil and the other for good. In the United States he says it is the symbol of hope, inspiring men and rewarding them. The dollar has the poet's benediction.

In a peaceful democracy the dollar is a congruous goal of ambition. If it confers aristocracy it is the most democratic aristocracy in the world. It can be inherited, but its tendency is to dissipate itself, and the aristocracy of money is constantly renewing itself from shirt sleeves. That is a suitable aristocracy for democracy, renewed from the soil every third generation.

A military aristocracy is bound to make trouble sooner or later, as it did in Germany. A social caste aristocracy has to revive itself by marrying actresses. A democratic aristocracy should be one which the plain man may enter by finding oil, by making an automobile engine, or a roofing material, an oil burner, a shoe polish or a tooth paste. His grandchildren will blow the works and the money will go back to some other founder in shirt sleeves.

Thus the dollar aristocracy is constantly reborn in intelligence, hard work, sound character and primitive virtues, and when it begins to decay it is blown away as thistledown. A title can be held by a weakling but a dollar gets away. It is a severe test of men. A little imprudence, recklessness, lack of character or fault in habit and the dollar aristocracy is extinct in one family. Luck, hard work, good judgment, intelligence, and it is begun in another.

Almost any American may believe in his youth that he may found a line of the ducal dollar and almost any American inheriting it in his youth may feel fairly certain that he can bust it up.

ARGENTINE PRICE FIXING FAILURE.

[The Breeder's Gazette.]

On Wednesday of last week the president of Argentina by decree suspended for six months the batch of impracticable, radical cattle price fixing laws which became operative Oct. 27. Theorists and politicians wrote and forced their enactment. Their ostensible purpose was to fix the price of commercial beef cattle in the interest of producers. The effect of the laws was to make it impossible for American and English packers in Argentina to do business under existing trade conditions. Organized ranchmen sponsored the legislation, but when they realized that it was an expensive failure, which penalized producers, packers, and consumers, they promptly protested to the government. The suspension of the laws promptly followed. It is improbable that they will be given another trial. Thus, for the time being at any rate, ends a futile legislative experiment which was vicious in motive and absurd in principle. As an object lesson it should be worth something to those who were talked into instigating it.

AN APPLE A DAY.

When the doctor arrived he found the patient in tears.

"Cheer up, my good man," he said, "you'll pull through all right."

"Tain't that, Doc," groaned the patient, "but just think of the money I've spent buying apples to keep you away."—Winnipeg Free Press.

How to Keep Well, By Dr. W. A. Evans.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THE HOME?

THE department of education has pretty well taken over the training of the child over 6. Originally designed to impart some information and to teach the art of reading and writing, the schools now furnish swimming pools, baths, physical culture, tooth brush drills, health inspection, medical and nursing service, training in health habits, child study, character training, and a few other odds and ends.

The above is not written in any spirit of complaint. The department of education is prepared to prove that in whatever field it enters, it makes good; that it did not enter that field until it was proven that the need was not being adequately supplied by the home, nor by any other social agency.

The health departments, supplemented by the infant welfare societies, are very active in the care of babies under 2.

Nor is this statement written in a spirit of complaint. The interlopers are prepared to prove that their service is making good and that the need was not being adequately supplied by the home. The baby death rate, since they began training mothers, has fallen way below that of the time when mothers had no training in mothercraft, except that which they got from the grandmothers.

The child 2 to 6 was left in between. It was assumed that the home properly cared for him. But now comes proof that the human animal suffers more for want of care in the period 2-6 than in any other stretch of the road from the cradle to the grave.

The figures from the health department show that to be the age when contagion is most prevalent. The home as a protector against contagion does not work. The mental hygiene people tell us that it is during that period that bad character, bad mental habits, mental twists, peculiar behavior all get set in the makeup of the individual.

From many sides come demands for some machinery of society to improve upon the work being done by the home in the care of, development of, and training of the child 2-6. This is about the last stronghold of the home. At any rate, it is about the only field in which the home has undivided control. Shall that field be taken from it? Is it not better to think of efforts to train mothers to better care for children 2-6 as proposals to save the home by making it more intelligent and efficient?

CURED HIS CONSUMPTION.

S. G. writes: One morning in the fall of 1913 I coughed up a little blood. A few days later you wrote in your column that spitting blood is consumption nine times out of ten. I had my sputum examined and found germs.

For the next five years I had a fight. For three years I had germs in my sputum. During the last five years I have not had a sick day. One of the best tuberculosis doctors in the city cannot find a thing wrong with my lungs. I am as well as any one can be.

I had my nose, throat, and teeth put in first class condition and made rapid gains at once.

I spent about eighteen months in a sanitarium and they are among the happiest months of my life.

I want to thank you because it was you who led me to suspect that I had tuberculosis.

REPLY.

Thank you.

CURES CONSTIPATED BABY.

Mrs. T. D. M. writes: Perhaps I can help some mother who worries about constipated children.

From the time my baby was 2 weeks old she was terribly constipated.

I used soap sticks, suppositories, enemas, doctor's medicine, and physics, all of which helped for a while, but later would fail altogether.

After she got old enough to eat cereals, fruit, etc., she was still troubled with constipation. She is now 2 years old and for more than a year, at the same time every morning, I put her on her chair (never varying for even five minutes); see that she eats some kind of fruit every morning (also some vegetables every day); give her a light lunch at 10 a. m. and 3 p. m., but never let her nibble any time she wants to, and she is never troubled any more at all. Her movements are regular.

BUT, HAVE YOU GOT 'EM!

Mrs. L. P. writes: Will you kindly tell me how to cure worms?

I eat plenty and don't fatten. The doctors give me medicines, but no result.

REPLY.

Why keep on taking worm medicine? Because you do not get fat is no reason for thinking you have worms.

CURING LEG CRAMPS.

M. E. K. writes: To cure cramps in the legs at night.

Take a woolen blanket large enough to wrap around your limbs at night, and you will see how soon the cramps will stop. I have tried cotton, but woolen is the thing. Something in the wool, I think.

I am 69 years old and have taken Turkish baths and massage, but nothing as good as above. No harm and costs nothing. Try it.

SMOKING CHIMNEYS.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—I live two doors south of a moving picture theater which has quite a low chimney. When they fire up there all the people in this building get thick, black smoke in all the windows. They should be made either to raise the chimney or stop the smoke in some way.

MRS. J. H.

An investigation was made by an inspector of the bureau of sanitation which resulted in a notice being served on the manager of the building: "Properly extend rear chimneys so smoke, etc., from same will not enter windows on top floor of adjoining buildings."

HERMAN N. BUNDESEN,
Commissioner of Health.

CLAIMS ON CALIFORNIA ESTATE.

Berwyn, Ill., Nov. 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Could the money from the California estate of a deceased uncle be claimed by a niece in Illinois if he left no will?

She was the only one who wrote to him, but there are other relatives living.

B. B.

Not if there were other closer relatives. We would advise her to employ an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MISREPRESENTING FACTS.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A certain place on a loop street by means of a large canvas sign outside conveys the idea to the public that inside food and dancing can be obtained without admission fee or cover charge.

Upon entering admission is demanded, and then it is obvious that a real meal could not be served for two on their tables, which are not large enough to hold more than a few glasses. This is a misrepresentation and the sign should be removed, should it not?

M. J. J.

We cannot pass upon the facts without knowing the words of the sign. If you wish to present the facts for prosecution as fraudulent, then you should go to the office of the state's attorney in the Criminal Court building.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

QUITS, BUT EXPECTS PAY.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister, who is a newcomer to the city, got housework to do by the week. She quit before the third week expired and now the people she worked for refuse to pay her for that unfinished week. Can she collect her wages, and, if so, who should she get to collect for her?

J. N.

If she quit without warning and legal cause, we are inclined to the opinion that she is not in a position to recover.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY TAXES.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We would be glad if you will tell us whether household goods are taxed in this county.

What things fall under "personal property taxes"?

Who must pay such taxes? A. J.

Household goods are taxed.

In general, all property other than real estate comes under "personal property taxes."

In general, all property owners must pay. There is no exemption.

THE CUBAN CRISIS.

President Grant Gives His Views on the Virginius Outrage.

VIEWS OF THE PRESIDENT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The President to-day, in conversation relative to the Cuban matter, said the Government had done for some days as much as had reached it, and was now engaged in collecting from all available sources further information concerning the capture of the Virginius, and particulars attending the swelling executions which followed that event. It was desirable that all information should be of such a character as would leave no doubt whatever as to its reliability. The propriety of this course was too evident to require explanation.

SOUTH BEND WATER-WORKS.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 17.—The stand-pipe of the South Bend Water-Works was raised in position to-day in the presence of a large crowd of citizens. The pipe, which is 100 feet in height, is hand painted "The Red, White, and Blue." Brief and patriotic addresses were delivered by Mayor Miller, Dwight Deming, Rich, and others. There was great rejoicing. The stand-pipe is 200 feet high and 6 feet in diameter. Weight, 44,000 pounds. It is thought to be the largest ever raised in one piece. Capacity, 83,000 gallons.

The charge for registering domestic letters is to be reduced. Hitherto it has been fifteen cents; but, after Jan. 1, eight cents only will be charged.

Nearly seven-tenths of a mill have been added to the rate of State taxation, by the State Board of Equalization to produce the additional revenue for the payment of the interest on the railroad-aid bonds. The assessment was increased by $275,000,000, and the revenue thereon from a tax of 2 7-10 mills will be $600,000. The rate of tax but for the railroad-aid bonds would have been only 2 1-10 mills.

DURBAN, Nov. 11.—The East Indian residents of Natal today declared a general strike, which was accompanied by rioting and the burning of sugar plantations.

The police force is insufficient to deal with the rioters, and white women and children are in a state of terror. Troops have been ordered to the disaffected districts.

In Durban itself practically the whole East Indian community quit work and became so aggressive that a demand was made for the proclamation of martial law.

In the country districts hundreds of acres of sugar cane were burned.

New York, Nov. 17.—Alfred J. Lill Jr. of Boston was this afternoon elected president of the Amateur Athletic union. Other officers elected were: First vice president, John Elliott of San Francisco; second vice president, Theodore R. Bland of St. Louis; third vice president, George J. Turner of Baltimore; fourth vice president, Frederick W. Bauer of Philadelphia. James E. Sullivan of this city was reflected secretary and treasurer.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 17.—Fiery speeches were made in the American Federation of Labor convention today, attacking the Michigan copper mine owners whose employes are on strike.

Resolutions demanding a congressional investigation and calling for contributions for the support of the strikers were adopted, and President Samuel Gompers said the convention undoubtedly would adopt a resolution if it were presented, demanding investigation of the charge that the Calumet and Hecla company obtained title to its copper land by fraud. By this means, Gompers said, the workers might obtain an adjustment and perhaps visit retribution on the company.

J. K. Sebree, veteran hotel proprietor of Chicago, died yesterday in a house which he had maintained for twelve years at 1120 South Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Sebree, the third wife of the hotel magnate, has been ill in an upper room of the house. She is said to be in a critical condition.

Miss Sebree, the first wife, lives at the Hotel Metropole, with her daughter, Miss Maybelle Sebree, and her son, Roy Sebree, present manager of the Sherman hotel.

CHURCH AND STATE.

Berrien Springs, Mich., Nov. 9.—Your editorial of this date on "Churches in Politics" was, as usual, a masterpiece in research and study of fundamental principles of truth in applied religion and applied Americanism. Your attitude on the subject of religious combinations made to affect certain results upon the body politic is in perfect accord with that of our early congresses, a precedent followed, I am glad to say, by subsequent congresses.

In an adverse report from the committee on postoffices and postroads communicated to the United States senate Jan. 19, 1829, regarding petitions sent up to have the postoffices and postroads closed on Sunday, it was observed with truth that "extensive religious combinations to effect a political object are, in the opinion of the committee, always dangerous. This first effort of the kind calls for the establishment of a principle which, in the opinion of the committee, would lay the foundation for dangerous innovations upon the spirit of the constitution and upon the religious rights of the citizens. If admitted, it may be justly apprehended that the future measures of the government will be strongly marked, if not eventually controlled, by the same influence. All religious despotism commences by combination and influence; and when that influence begins to operate upon the political institutions of a country the civil power soon bends under it, and the catastrophe of other nations furnishes an awful warning of the consequence."

Preliminary to the reading of the report a discussion concerning the motives of the petitioners took place. Col. Richard M. Johnson of Kentucky, chairman of the committee, stated that he believed "the petitioners were governed by the purest of motives, but if the gentleman from Maryland would look at the proceedings of a meeting at Salem, in Massachusetts, he would find it did not matter what was the purity of the motive; that the petitioners did not consider the ground they had taken as being purely that the Sabbath was a day of rest; they assumed that it was such by a law of God."

It is a commonplace of fact today that the National Reform association and the Lord's Day alliance are attempting to secure the alliance of the civil government for the compulsory observance of Sunday; to regulate, if you please, not the postoffice service on Sunday, but the habits and customs otherwise legitimate of the American citizenry. The reason behind these attempts is undeniably religious, and a combination of the churches is sought for to accomplish their purposes, as said by a Washington clergyman in his pulpit several years ago. "Give us good Sunday laws, well enforced by men in local authority, and our churches will be full of worshipers and our young men and women will be attracted to the divine services. A mighty combination of the churches of the United States could win from congress, the state legislatures, and municipal councils all legislation essential to this splendid result."

But, Mr. Editor, the United States senate above referred to held that "the proper object of government is to protect all persons in the enjoyment of their religious as well as civil rights, and not to determine for any whether they shall esteem one day above another or esteem every day alike holy."

While a Sabbath observer myself I do not believe it either biblical or in consonance with true Americanism to compel its observance by civil laws; and for the churches to organize a crusade with the Lord's Day alliance and the National Reform association for Sunday law enforcement is but to dissipate energies and talents which should be used in preaching the gospel of Sabbath observance. Such "entanglements" are as foreign to the work of the church as would be the "foreign entanglements" by America against which George Washington warned. Keep your eye on the Sunday law movements in this country, Mr. Editor, for the subject belongs to the catalog elaborated upon in your most excellent editorial referred to.

CHURCHES IN POLITICS.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—In reply to your recent protest against us preachers talking politics in our pulpits let me admit that we are a troublesome lot. It has been so for some time. The prophets of Israel mixed freely in the domestic and foreign politics of their day to the disgust of the practical men of affairs. Some modern scholars believe that Jesus got himself crucified because there was danger lest his broad internationalism should supplant the 100 per cent nationalism of ancient Jewry. James I. said that he would rather deal with the devil himself than with a Scotch Presbyterian assembly, and when it became apparent that his son, Charles I., had inherited James' swelled head the English Calvinists shortcut to cure Charles' head of its defect. The preachers of New England inherited these meddlesome traditions, and historians are only commencing to find out how much they contributed to making the life of George III. miserable. Henry Ward Beecher and his sort insisted on talking politics on the slavery issue, and more recently preachers have talked an amendment into the constitution, and they intend to keep on talking until they have talked officials into enforcing it.

It is a bad business. But THE TRIBUNE has this consolation: the cure lies largely in its hands. If THE TRIBUNE will report the facts as they are in its news columns and give them a fair interpretation in its editorial columns and stop preaching so much from wrong premises the preachers will be able to preach more and go out of their way less to give the facts the newspapers should give. As long, however, as THE TRIBUNE stands for anarchy in local affairs and for a callous, brutal paganism in international affairs, it may be difficult to keep preachers, in these parts at least, from talking politics in their pulpits.

With assurances of our great gratitude for your new interest in a purer gospel I am,

M. V. COON,
Pastor South Shore Presbyterian Church.

FROM A LUTHERAN EDITOR.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 14.—A friend of mine sent me your editorial of Nov. 9 headed "Churches in Politics." I subscribe to every word which you write in that editorial, and I congratulate you upon the courage and intelligence which has enabled you to publish these sentiments. I believe that the safety of our country and the peace of our nation are jeopardised by these political preachers. I would suggest that the opinion which you voice in this editorial be given greater publicity. We who see clearly in this matter must urge these truths upon our fellow citizens again and again. There are even now millions who agree with us, but there are other millions who are indifferent, and these must be awakened and their support enlisted.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

BLOW, BLOW, THOU WINTER WIND.

By William Shakespeare.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind;
Thou are not so unkind
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou are not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.
Heigh ho! Sing heigh ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly.
Then heigh ho, the holly.
This life is most jolly.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky,
That does not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot;
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friends remembered not.
Heigh ho! Sing heigh ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly.
Then heigh ho, the holly!
This life is most jolly.

WALTON QUITS COURT; "I CAN'T GET FAIR TRIAL"

Senate Speechless While Defense Withdraws.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—The impeachment trial of Gov. J. C. Walton was unexpectedly speeded toward an early conclusion today when the executive, dropping a bombshell into the senate court, announced that he could no longer "bear the humilitation" of an "unfair trial" and walked with his counsel from the courtroom.

The executive's departure came a few hours before the time set for the prosecution to rest, and on the eve of its expected presentation of evidence in defense of charges of moral turpitude, neglect of duty, corruption in office, and incompetence. The withdrawal gave strong evidence that a final vote on acquittal or conviction would be obtained late Monday.

Stalks Out with Wife.

The governor's unexpected leave taking precipitated a scene unprecedented since the trial opened. Finishing a short statement in which he announced his intention the executive turned, with his wife on his arm, walked the length of the senate chamber to the door, the members of his counsel following.

Court members, amazed at the move, watched the departure in silence, while the prosecution stared at the empty chairs around the defense table. The governor's party had almost reached the door when Senator Charles E. McPherren of Durant moved that the trial proceed.

Senators Rouse, Cry "Go Ahead!"

The silence that had gripped the chamber suddenly became a tumult. The cry "Go ahead!" went up on all sides.

But, before the prosecution could continue its interrogation of Aldrich Blake, the governor's former confidential adviser, a motion was made to empower the court to appoint counsel for the executive but was voted down.

During this argument Senator Tom Anglin of Holdenville, president pro tempore, declared that Tom Neal, of the governor's counsel, had asked that all defense subpoenas for witnesses be dismissed.

I. T. Sprague, one of the governor's attorneys who had tarried at the door, declared he did not believe that Neal had made such a request. Anglin sprang from his seat and rushed madly at Sprague. Senators and sergeants at arms sprang between Anglin and Sprague and the session broke up in a hasty recess, amid pandemonium.

Second Clash Averted.

Senators gathered in excited groups to milled about the chamber, and a second threatened clash was narrowly averted when friends interposed in an argument between Senators A. E. Dar-

ACCUSES SLEUTH

MISS BONNIE PRESSLEY.

Charles Ruhrman, an operative of the Burns detective agency, living at 4234 Michigan avenue, was arraigned in East Chicago avenue court yesterday on a serious charge preferred by Miss Bonnie Pressley, 22 years old, daughter of a Carterville, Ill., business man. The case was continued to Nov. 21.

When the girl had told her story William E. Thomas, proprietor of the Groveland Park hotel, Cottage Grove avenue and 33d street, was taken to the station for questioning. Miss Pressley declared that Ruhrman, after drugging her in a restaurant, took her to the hotel and mistreated her. She said she met Ruhrman while he was investigating the disappearance of a diamond ring from the residence of Mrs. Ruth B. Strasser, 2820 Mildred avenue.

"I had attended a dinner party at Mrs. Strasser's home and all the guests drank heavily," Miss Pressley said. "When I got home I found the ring in my pocket. I had arranged with Ruhrman for return of the ring."

PASTOR SHIELDS WOMAN TRIED AS MATE'S SLAYER

Elkhorn, Wis., Nov. 17.—The preliminary hearing of Mrs. Myrtle Schaude, charged with the murder of her husband, Edward, proved surprising at the outset today, when the Rev. Allen Adams, pastor of the Whitewater Methodist church, called as the state's first witness, refused to testify.

The minister contended that any information he might be able to give was gained as her pastor and therefore was privileged. Justice of Peace C. M. Williams upheld the preacher.

GASSED VETERAN WINS LAST WISH: SOLDIER BURIAL

When a bugler sounds taps and a squad commanded by Capt. John Hartman fires a salute above a grave in Mount Carmel cemetery tomorrow John Smith, private, first class, Company C, 305th infantry, will have had his wish.

Capt. Roy G. Swindell, service officer of the American Legion, was making his rounds at Speedway hospital last week when he stopped at Smith's bed. It was a case of gas in the Argonne and tuberculosis.

"I'm going to die soon, captain," the soldier said. "I haven't a friend in the world, and not a relative. Won't you please see that I get a decent burial?"

Smith died yesterday. He will be buried tomorrow with military honors. C. W. "Daddy" Schick, former state commander of the Legion; Howard P. Savage, president of the Cook county association; L. E. McGann Jr., Michael J. Cullen, D. S. C., Capt. Swindell, John R. Waterhouse, D. S. C., John J. Keenan, D. S. C., and Humphrey Sullivan will be the pallbearers.

If Your Hip Pocket Even Bulges, Snoopers Will Act!

New Orleans, Nov. 17.—C. D. Jackson, federal enforcement dry agent for Louisiana, today ordered his men to arrest any person with a suspicious bulge in their pockets or who carry a suspicious package. "Place them under arrest, take them to a police station and search them," were the instructions; "if you find liquor upon them, prefer charges of violating the prohibition law."

PLANS TO WIDEN FIVE WEST SIDE STREETS MADE

Plans for widening five near west side streets—Clinton, Jefferson, Des Plaines, Polk, and Taylor—have been completed by John J. Sloon, president of the board of local improvements. Valuations have been secured and preliminary steps taken to meet the opposition of property holders in court hearings, Mr. Sloan said.

At the same time it is planned to clear away legal objections which have impeded the proposed widening of East 22d street from Michigan avenue to South Park avenue, and the widening of Indiana avenue from 18th to 22d street. When completed the widened thoroughfares are designed to connect Michigan avenue with the new Grant Park boulevard as projected.

33rd Anniversary Sale of Choice

ORIENTAL RUGS Imported Direct

Save 25% to 50% Clear

From bona fide retail prices

The long-established reputation of this house for integrity and "open book" methods of doing business lends an added significance to this sale that will be fully appreciated by every prospective rug buyer and home-makers in general.

This is without doubt the most advantageous sale of really fine Oriental Rugs that Chicago has seen in many years—from the standpoint of quality, variety and value.

Offered in this sale are 1,150 Oriental Rugs of all sizes and varieties—imported direct from the rug-weaving districts of the Orient, including China—assembled by us at Constantinople, Sultanabad and Tien Tsin.

These prices, representing a saving of 25% to 50%, bring the cost down so low that the question of whether or not one can afford real Oriental Rugs instead of machine-made domestics is no longer an obstacle.

The groups advertised herewith are but typical of the values available in all sizes and varieties.

FRENCH MILITARY NOT MILLS PERIL —LLOYD GEORGE

British Labor Declares for Free Trade.

BY THOMAS RYAN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—"You don't want protection against French mills but against French militarists," former Prime Minister Lloyd George said in addressing large cheering crowds in Northampton today.

"So long as the United States remains a protectionist country, the ships of Great Britain will rule the waves," he continued.

"Since the present government came in, Great Britain has been a negligible factor in the councils of Europe."

Labor Party for Free Trade.

A labor manifesto for use in the coming elections was issued today. British labor wants free trade, minimum wages for farm workers, and state insurance for farm workers and small land holders. For women labor demands equal political and legal rights, equal privileges of parenthood, equal pay and equal work.

Referring to British foreign affairs, the manifesto says:

"Labor stands for a policy of international coöperation through a strengthened and enlarged league of nations; settlement of disputes by conciliation and judicial arbitration; the immediate calling of an international conference by Great Britain, including Germany on terms of equality, to deal with revision of the treaty of Versailles, especially as regards debts and reparations, and resumption of free economic and diplomatic relations with Russia. These will pave the way for disarmament."

Urges Levy on Wealth.

Labor's fiscal program follows:

"A Labor chancellor of the exchequer who in consultation with treasury experts would work out a scheme to gradually reduce the war debts, including a levy on individual fortunes above £5,000 ($21,000).

"Savings thus affected with reductions of armaments and increased revenue derived from taxation on land revenues would make it possible to reduce the income tax and abolish entertainment, corporation, and profits taxes."

Labor comes out for public ownership and control of mines, railways, and power plants.

Baldwin Urges Tariff.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Prime Minister Baldwin today issued an address to the voters in the Bewdley division of Worcestershire, which he represents in parliament, informing them that the Conservatives party purposes imposing duties on manufactured goods with the following objects:

"To raise revenue by methods less unfair to our own home production which at present bears the whole burden of local and national taxation, including the cost of relieving unemployment;

"To give special assistance to industries which are suffering under unfair foreign competition;

"To utilise these duties in order to negotiate for the reduction of foreign tariffs in those directions which would most benefit our export trade;

"To give substantial preference to the empire on the whole range of our duties, with a view to promoting the continued extension of the principle of mutual preference which already has done so much for the expansion of our trade and the development, in coöperation with the other governments of the empire, of the boundless resources of our common heritage."

Free Trade Within Empire.

The address continues that such a policy would enable the government, when more normal conditions returned, to secure a greater measure of real free trade within the empire and with foreign countries. Trade subject to the arbitrary interference of every foreign tariff and at the mercy of every disturbance in Europe, he said, was in no sense free and certainly not fair to the British people.

He reiterated his promise for the exemption of certain foodstuffs from taxation; said raw materials would be exempted, and incidentally stated that seventeen light cruisers would soon be cohstructed.

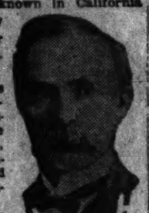
Slate Asquith for Premier.

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Winston Spencer Churchill in a campaign speech here this afternoon said:

"There is no reason why Herbert H. Asquith should not select a government comprising the European prestige of Lord Grey and the immense, unequaled public following, social driving force, and historic war record of Lloyd George."

Political experts point out that Mr. Churchill would scarcely have gone so far without the authorization of Mr. Asquith, as leader of the reunited Liberals. As far as Mr. Lloyd George is concerned, it has been accepted as a foregone conclusion that he would have a place in the cabinet and ultimately, when Asquith retired, the premiership.

CAMINETTI, FORMER U. S. COMMISSIONER OF IMMIGRATION, DIES



ANTHONY CAMINETTI. [American Press Assn. Photo.]

Jackson, Cal., Nov. 17.—Anthony Caminetti, well known in California politics for many years, and former federal commissioner of immigration, died at his home here tonight. At his bedside at the time were his two sons, Drew and Anthony Jr., and four grandchildren.

Caminetti, son of a Sicilian argonaut who came around the Horn in 1849, was active in politics nearly all his life.

He was born at Jackson, Amador county, July 20, 1854, and his first election to public office was in 1877, when he became district attorney. Later he served in congress.

STEAL LAUNDRY SAFE; TAKE $1,000, SCORNING CHECKS

A safe, containing nearly $1,000 in cash and a large number of checks, stolen early yesterday morning from the plant of the Blackstone Individual Laundry company, 6404 Blackstone avenue, was found broken open late yesterday afternoon, lying in a ditch at 87th street and South Central Park avenue. The cash was gone, but the robbers had left the checks.

Four men held up Harry Lundin, 2604 Division street, an employé of the White Star laundry, in a hallway at 1311 West Ohio street and robbed him of $69.

Following an argument over wages, two laborers employed by the Eldridge Coke and Coal company, 2714 Federal street, slugged the foreman and rifled the cash drawer of $200.

Hursen Funeral-Cost Is a Revelation

Hursen long ago set a standard scale of prices for funerals. These prices have been from one-third to one-half the charges usually exacted elsewhere.

But nobody else in the business of funeral direction ever followed Hursen's price standard. He has always stood alone! Together with this price standard Hursen also established a new standard of super-elegance in materials, in automobile equipment, and in a highly organized perfection of service.

Nobody else has ever followed these standards of Hursen elegance and Hursen service. In these features, too, he has always stood alone!

In the beginning, there were some who said "it couldn't be done." There were a few who wished him disaster. He hung on to a single idea, alone!

To-day, years after, "Hursen's" has become the largest undertaking establishment in America—the unswerving champion of what is right in price, creator of a new elegance and of a particular service, unsurpassed. At the top, always ready for sweet service for you and yours, he stands—alone!

An Attractive Choice of Beautiful Pianos

The Lyon & Healy Reproducing Piano

The tonal beauty of these instruments proclaims at once their high character. The cases are of rich design. They represent the highest achievements in piano art.

The true greatness of the Lyon & Healy Reproducing Piano lies in the fact that it brings the playing of the great pianists within your home. When you play a roll of Paderewski or of other great pianists, it is as if you summoned them in person to play at your pleasure. The reproduction is identical with their original keyboard performances.

All this at a moderate cost. The Lyon & Healy Reproducing Piano in upright form is priced at $1050; Grands, $2150.

The Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand

Richly voiced and possessing an unforgettable singing quality of tone, this piano has won enthusiastic acclaim from all. The case designs are beautiful and designed so as to enter harmoniously into the home decorative scheme.

Certain improvements distinguish the Apartment Grand Piano. Foremost among these are the Junior Unfolding Two-Level Pedals. They enable the little children to play with expression. The great pianists of the day heartily endorse this invention, the need of which was first indicated by Chopin. It is pronounced one of the greatest steps forward in piano construction in the last 50 years.

Write for circular containing excerpts of letters from such pianists as Rachmaninoff, Godowsky, Bloomfield-Zeisler, and others. Lyon & Healy Apartment Grands are priced at $950 and upwards.

Player Pianos

Included in this group are players of the most improved mechanical action. Five styles are shown, all of known standard makes and fully guaranteed. Such instruments bring within reach music of all kinds and make it really yours. And you may enjoy it while paying. Our liberal arrangements permit you 28 months in which to make payment. The prices are very moderate and begin as low as $450. Among the makes shown are the popular Washburn, the Lyon & Healy, the Pianola and the Aeolian. Special rooms are devoted to their display and you may unhurriedly and without distraction view the pianos of your choice.

Popular Uprights

Where to go and just what it is necessary to pay for a good piano are matters of considerable importance. The decision is not one to be made hastily. We urge a thorough investigation before you decide. We are glad to give any information you desire. Our wide range of styles, 7 in all, affords ample opportunity to examine and hear representative pianos. Many of these instruments are very moderately priced. Under our plan of payment, it is easy for you to make one your own. Prices begin at $390.

The Stroud Duo-Art Upright

Here is a truly remarkable offering—a beautiful piano made by one of the best known manufacturers.

It is high grade in every respect. But most notable is the fact that at this low price you obtain the Duo-Art [foot-blown], which brings to your fireside the playing of such great pianists as Paderewski and Hofmann.

Come to hear the Stroud Duo-Art. You will be delighted with it. Price, $695.

NEW RAIL PLANS MAKE GOTHAM A CHICAGO SUBURB!

B. & O. Wants to Cut 39 Miles Off Distance.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, must have wielded a wicked coupling pin when he was a youngster in the ranks, to judge from the way he tore into the announced new trunk line plans of President A. H. Smith of the New York Central before the interstate commerce commission today.

By way of counterattack to President Smith's proposed new trunk line from Chicago to New York, which involves the disruption of the present Baltimore and Ohio, Reading, and Jersey Central scheme of things, President Willard proposed a trunk line of his own, with the Baltimore and Ohio in the stellar rôle, instead of the Central.

He was ready with a map of the new route, which he declared will put Chicago within 900 miles of New York, against the 939 of President Smith's proposed new line.

Growing Closer Together.

The two cities are getting closer together since the trunk line battle precipitated by the consolidation scheme in the transportation act reached the stage of concrete discussion. At the present rate, Mayor Dever may have to consider ere long the annexation of Gotham as one of our southeastern wards.

President Willard's new trunk line from Chicago would follow the Baltimore and Ohio tracks west to Butler, Pa., north of where the Baltimore and Ohio now turns south toward Pittsburgh. This would account for 465 miles. From Butler his line would go over the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh tracks to Dubois, Pa., for eighty-one miles. At this point it would be crossed by President Smith's proposed line, coming down from Ashtabula, O., on Lake Erie.

From Dubois Willard's line would go over a section of the Pennsylvania to Williamsport, Pa., 122 miles. Forty miles of this line is an important Pennsylvania line, with heavy traffic and if the trunk line ever became a reality additional tracks would have to be built some day.

Smiths Scheme Told.

This section between Dubois and Williamsport, in President Smith's plan would go over two sections of New York Central track already in existence for fifty-three and eighteen miles, respectively, and over additional trackage to be built by the Central, although it is now using for branch line service over this same section, two pieces of Pennsylvania track and one of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh.

From the Williamsport, Pa., gateway both the Willard and Smith proposed lines would use the same tracks of the Reading and Central of Jersey to New York—and that's what all the fight is about, because they both want that part of the Reading and the Jersey road.

President Willard's testimony today was in the nature of a rally to the defense of the scheme of consolidation of the trunk lines already proposed tentatively by the interstate commerce commission, which modified in a few details the plan of Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard.

Competition Is Sought.

The idea of that plan is to evolve about five trunk lines between Chicago and St. Louis and the north Atlantic seaboard, as nearly balanced as may be to insure competition in service.

President Smith's announced desire to expand the New York Central and to create a new east and west through-line to relieve the congestion at its seaboard end, clashes with this scheme and according to President Willard today, would make the strong roads stronger and the weak roads weaker.

After giving his endorsement to the main features of the commissions trunk line plans, President Willard intimated that if the Reading and Jersey Central were assigned to any such relationship as that proposed by President Smith, the Baltimore and Ohio probably would leave New York altogether.

Reasons for Bolting.

The road had already been forced to consider that step he declared. Its terminals are already too far away from Manhattan for effective freight service to the city. It has been ordered to electrify these ineffectual terminals on Staten Island by 1930, and ordered out of the Manhattan passenger terminals of the Pennsylvania in 1925.

Of course with the Baltimore and Ohio leaving New York the whole consolidation scheme for the trunk lines would be blown up.

President Willard produced a map of the New York terminal region in colors. It reminded one of the octopus maps used in California when the Southern Pacific was a big issue. The Central's terminals were in red, the terminals of the Central of New Jersey, which President Smith says he wants, were in the same color. Poor little Gotham a pale white paper looked as if it was being squeezed by a fiery wreath of rail and terminal serpents.

A "Paper Road" Only.

President Willard's proposed trunk line is already in existence, and is 80 per cent double track. It crosses the mountains at the lowest summit elevation of any existing line except the New York Central's water level route. But under existing traffic relationships it is a paper road only.

Like President Smith's proposed line it may remain on paper a long time. The consolidation plan has awakened again the old sport rivalries of the seaboard that colored rail history for scores of years. The middle west, if it prefers a number of competing trunk lines to a more intense development of a big system such as the New York Central proposes, may view the fight with calm and appears to be doing so.

RIVALS GETTING CLOSE TOGETHER

In arguments before U. S. the New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio are unable to agree on rail consolidation scheme. The map shows the plan of the former road to cut the distance between New York and Chicago forty miles. The Baltimore and Ohio plan cuts thirty-nine miles off.

GANNA ENTERS WOMEN'S FIGHT FOR MORE RIGHTS

Offers Use of Home for Organization Meeting.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Ganna Walska McCormick, in conference yesterday with Miss Rebecca Hourwich, organizer for the National Woman's party, indorsed a plan to open midwest headquarters in Chicago and offered her home, 675 Rush street, for an organization meeting and reception, Friday afternoon, Nov. 30.

The meeting, at which Dr. Effie Lobdell will preside, will direct the attention of Chicago women, Miss Hourwich said yesterday, "to the immediate need of securing legislation that will do away with all civil and legal disabilities of women."

When women got the vote they accomplished only one-eighteenth of their work, according to Miss Hourwich, who was a picket during the fight for suffrage.

More Points to Gain.

"Back in 1848," said Miss Hourwich, "the women of the United States held their first equal rights conference and laid down eighteen points. We got one, the ballot, but there are plenty of others to work for."

Deploring the custom by which "men legislators use 'equality' as a political football and punch it back and forth from administration to administration," the National Woman's party, after three years' research, is advocating the Lucretia Mott amendment to the constitution, to be introduced in congress on the first day of its session.

"In twelve states," Miss Hourwich declared, "men have complete control over their children. In the other thirty-six there is a slight hitch in the glib phrase, 'equal guardianship rights.' In Vermont a school teacher was unable to prevent her husband from collecting her earnings, due to a stupid law on the books.

Hold Laws Inequitable.

"In nearly every state a wife can't contract with her husband; in many states a man can compel his wife to take boarders, sewing, or nursing into the home and help support the family."

Answering the charge that the party points always to the "brute husband," Miss Hourwich declares that the good husband will be good even under a bad law, but it takes a very good law to make a bad husband legally responsible.

TEST CASE FOR ZONING LAW TO BE HEARD NOV. 24

Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend yesterday granted Attorney William L. Sullivan, zoning expert for the city, leave to file an answer to the petition of Thomas Walsh, labor business agent, to restrain city officials from interfering with the construction of a two story flat building at 6519 North Maplewood avenue.

Hearing on the petition and answer was set by Judge Friend for Nov. 24. The case is regarded as an important test on the question of the soundness and force of the zoning ordinance.

The ordinance zoned the block in which Walsh had already begun excavation for a flat building for residences. Walsh got a permit to build, which later was revoked when it was learned that all the buildings in the block were residences.

Mr. Sullivan announced he would press Judge Friend for a decision sustaining the ordinance, and declared that in the event the injunction was granted he would carry an appeal to the State Supreme court.

PRAGUE, Nov. 17. — The Czecho Slovakia budget provides a credit of 165,000,000 crowns (roughly $4,655,000 for aviation which is an increase of 86,000,000 marks [$465,000].

COOLIDGE SEES HOPE OF WOMEN WIN CONGRESS

Equal Rights Favored by President.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—President Coolidge today assured leaders of the National Woman's party that their arguments in behalf of the proposed equal rights amendment to the constitution, if presented to members of congress as convincingly as to him, could not fail to impress them and would certainly be given the fullest consideration in both houses.

The President, according to a White House spokesman, said the women had presented the question of a women's legislative needs from an angle new and interesting to him.

Generally Get What They Want.

Women could generally be depended upon to get what they wanted in this country, the President suggested.

The deputation of 200 women, representing thirty-two states and the District of Columbia, was received by the president in the East room.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the Woman's party, spoke for the deputation and presented the speakers, including Miss Maud Younger, congressional chairman, who explained the party's legislative program, and Mrs. Stephen Pell of New York, and others.

Mrs. Belmont Asks Justice.

"To you, Mr. President, as the head of our nation, is given the exceptional opportunity to recommend that this measure of justice be extended to one-half the people of this country," Mrs. Belmont said in presenting the deputation.

The National Woman's party, whose members are of every political faith, is an organization of women with but a single purpose: the removal of all discriminations against women, whether in law or in custom, Miss Younger told the president.

MAYOR URGES PUBLIC ASSIST IN EDUCATION WEEK

Mayor William E. Dever yesterday issued a proclamation urging the people of Chicago to cooperate with the board of education in its plan to observe national education week, which begins tomorrow and ends Nov. 24. The board will celebrate the week with programs in the various schools and the practical value of education will be impressed upon the pupils.

Specific figures showing the relation of education to earning capacity will be presented to the students and they will be urged to remain in the public schools as long as possible. Each evening during the week educators and members of the board of education will broadcast educational addresses from a radio station and more than thirty theaters will show educational films.

ANNOUNCE U. S. JOB EXAMINATIONS.

A series of competitive examinations covering practically every branch of government civil service employment will open in Chicago on Dec. 18, it was announced yesterday.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However the benefits of this precious health-giving substance were in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio Active Solar Pad any man or woman poor or rich can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong healthy condition. It creates a rigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our Appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co. 378 Bradbury Bldg. Los Angeles, Calif.

3 SISTERS SEIZE GIRL PICKPOCKET IN LOOP PURSUIT

Bowl Over Pedestrians Chasing Quarry.

Pursued by three vengeful sisters, Miss Ada Green of 4142 Grand boulevard fled through the shopping throngs of State street yesterday afternoon.

But she didn't flee fast enough. On the sidewalk in front of Mandel's the sisterly trio—Marie, Agnes, and Mildred Roubel of 2227 Grove avenue, Berwyn—laid angry hands on Miss Green's person. She was glad when Traffic Policeman E. H. Schrieber came along and led her to the safety of a South Clark street police cell.

The chase started on the main floor of the Boston Store, after Miss Green had removed Marie's purse from the soda fountain counter and slipped towards the door.

Three Take Up Pursuit.

"Thief!" called Agnes. "Grab her!"

But the grabbing wasn't so very good. Dodging around the plump person of a lady shopper, bearing numerous bundles, Agnes stretched forth an apprehending hand and collared a floor walker. At the same instant she caught a glimpse of the alleged pickpocket whisking through a revolving door. She dropped the floor walker and hurried on, followed by her indignant sisters.

The three of them formed in a feminine phalanx and smashed through the populace at State and Madison streets. Street cars grew panic stricken and taxies scurried to cover as they rushed onto the crossing. Twenty-five feet dead ahead fled the Green woman.

Pounce Upon Quarry.

"Robber!" cried Marie.

Less than a block south of Madison street the three sisters brushed aside the last intervening pedestrian and seized Miss Green. Her hat was askew, and there was a look of terror in her eyes. A crowd gathered to witness the murder.

Then Policeman Schreiber arrived and saved the distressed lady pickpocket. The purse which she had taken contained $15.

HERE FOR OPERA

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mme. Claire Dux returned to Chicago from California yesterday preparatory to singing with the Civic Opera company. The picture was taken at the Congress.

Young Folks Flock to Opera Matinee

The younger set was much in evidence at Saturday's matinée opera. Miss Elinor Patterson, dressed in pearl gray crêpe and wearing a drooping brimmed black felt hat, adorned simply with black and white twisted floss cord and tassel, entertained her cousin, Miss Felicia Gizycka. Miss Betty Fitts, Calvin D. Trowbridge, Alexander Knott, and Durand Smith. Miss Gizycka wore a henna duvetyn suit and hat, trimmed with touches of gray squirrel, and Miss Fitts' dress was of peacock blue, trimmed in natural caracul, and her hat was of buff colored hatter's plush trimmed in blue grosgrain ribbon. Miss Eleanor Holden was hostess for another attractive group consisting of Mrs. Leander J. McCormick, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Miss Janet Pauling, and Miss Helen Hoyne.

Mrs. William G. Jerrems had with her Mrs. Samuel K. Martin, Mrs. Charles E. Morrison, Mrs. Edwin L. Brand, Miss Ada I. Sylvester, and Miss Helen Jerrems. Mrs. Agnes Foss, Mrs. Wellington Leavitt, Mrs. Frank Connor, Mrs. John H. Finley, and Mrs. Frederick L. Davis were the guests of Mrs. Thomas Wilson.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's guests were Mrs. Frances R. Keep, Mme. V. d'Artsimovitch, Mrs. David S. Cook Jr., and Miss Helen R. Gilbert.

With Mrs. Frederic W. Upham were Mrs. Clifford D. Caldwell, Mrs. Edwin S. Jackman, Mrs. E. A. Engler, Mrs. Philip S. Stone of Pasadena, and Miss Mercedes Stewart. Guests of Mrs. Philip B. Hosmer were Mrs. George Skinkle, Mrs. Roy Oliver, Mrs. Harry L. Robinson, Mrs. Conrad Spens, and Mrs. William H. Mann.

Mrs. Timothy B. Blackstone had as her guests Mrs. William E. Clow, Mrs. Theodore Schwarz, Mrs. William R. Harper, and Mrs. Francis P. Butler. Mrs. William Hale Thompson, Mrs. Gale Thompson of Coronado, Mrs. Richard Mitchell of Boston, and Katherine Healey were with Mr. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze.

Mrs. William Wrigley Jr.'s guests were Dr. Julia Strong, Mrs. Charles Pope, Mrs. Maida Newton, and Joseph Patrick.

TWO DAYS FREE OF AUTO DEATHS MARK THIS WEEK

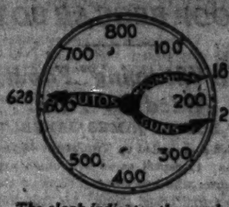
For the second time within a week, Chicago yesterday had a day in which no automobile victim's name was written into the records of the coroner's office. The register of motor deaths in Cook county since the first of the year paused momentarily at 628. Several persons were injured.

Bohnon Sacnowski, 6 years old, of 2231 West Erie street, wlk crossing Chicago avenue at Leavitt street when struck by a machine owned and driven by John Mazzucchell, 1315 Thomas st.

Police protection saved John Krolczyk, 4324 West 21st street, a taxi driver, from rough treatment at the hands of witnesses after he had run down three women near the Northwestern terminal. The women are Miss Helen Gordon of 4106 Addison street, Miss E. E. Seydell of 4128 North Keystone avenue, and Miss Dorothy Rosensted of 3927 North St. Louis avenue.

A man identified as Policeman Thomas Addison of the Englewood station was arrested after a battle by the county highway police for driving a car without a license plate on Archer avenue. He is said to have been intoxicated.

HANDS OF DEATH



The clock indicates the number of deaths caused by automobiles, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1.

DANCE CLUB IN CLOUDS DENIED TRIAL BY JURY

Demand for a jury trial for the "Up in the Clouds club," in so far as its right to conduct dances in the City Hall Square building is concerned, was made yesterday by the club's president, Harry Standidge, and denied by Circuit Judge Francis E. Wilson.

Judge Wilson referred the case to Master in Chancery D. J. Normoyle for a full hearing.

Judge Hugo M. Friend several weeks ago temporarily enjoined Standidge from conducting the dances, which, according to the charges of the building's owners, were disorderly. Frederick Burnham, counsel for the owners, obtained an order referring the entire matter to Mr. Normoyle.

SENTENCED FOR STRIKE SLAYING.

Kansas City, Nov. 17.—James F. Alley was found guilty of second degree murder in District court here today in connection with the slaying of John A. Rose, a nonunion electrical worker, and was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. The slaying grew out of a strike.

PUSH HUNT FOR SHELDON, NAMED AS LAWYER DIED

Pal of Walter Stevens, Police Learn.

The name of Walter Stevens notorious gunman recently returned to Joliet after his capture in Indiana, was brought into the police investigation yesterday of circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting last Monday of Attorney Lewis A. Hauschild at Lake Maria, near Antioch.

Ralph Sheldon, 4608 Wentworth avenue, a former client of Hauschild's and whom the latter mentioned to his wife while on his death bed, is a pal of Stevens, according to police. Sheldon is being sought in the hope that he can clear up several unexplained points in the shooting.

Dore Also Sought.

By direction of Acting State's Attorney Edgar A. Jonas, a renewed search is also being made for Daniel Dore, former Oak Forest infirmary guard, indicted as the slayer recently of a man during a saloon brawl. Hauschild was negotiating with Jonas for the surrender of Dore at the time of the shooting.

Detective Sergeants Peter Tomchek and John O'Malley of Sheffield avenue police, doubt the statements of Donald Lagerstrom, south side garageman, and of Hauschild, that the two were alone in the fishing shack when Hauschild was shot.

An Antioch physician who gave Hauschild first aid, told the detectives that Hauschild was brought to his office by three men. Lagerstrom contends that he took the lawyer to the physician's office.

Burglary Is Investigated.

Police also wish to determine if the burglarly of the Hauschild home at 930 Oakdale avenue on Thursday night was connected with the shooting. One theory is that Hauschild, who handled criminal cases exclusively, was the victim of a "crime trust" and that the intruders sought documents bearing upon criminal activities.

Lagerstrom is being held by Sheriff Ahlstrom of Lake county pending the outcome of the investigation.

Sheldon has a lengthy record and a reputation of being in the "immune" class, it was revealed yesterday. He has been secretly sought by police for questioning since the "beer war" in which three men were murdered.

5,000 DE PAUL ALUMNI ATTEND SILVER JUBILEE

Dedication of a new building, alumni and fraternity meetings, luncheons, a football game, and a dance all figured yesterday in a silver jubilee of the more than 5,000 alumni of De Paul university.

Bishop E. F. Hoban officiated at pontifical mass at 10 a. m., and a sermon was preached by the Very Rev. W. D. O'Brien, first graduate of De Paul. Archbishop George W. Mundelein led the dedication ceremonies for the college of liberal arts. Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch presided at a meeting of the alumni association in De Paul auditorium.

HONOR WOMAN JUDGE ELECT

Judge Elect Mary Bartelme was principal guest at a luncheon given by the Cordon club yesterday. She is shown as she responded to congratulations on her victory at the Nov. 6 election, which gave her the distinction of being the first woman elected to a judgeship in Illinois.

11 CHARITIES ARE FOUND HELPING LOOP BEGGAR BOY

His "Starving" Family Aided for Year.

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

Ten men called up THE TRIBUNE yesterday to report cases of women and children who had stopped them on the street and asked money for food and clothing.

One seeker of alms was a small boy who trudged down Michigan avenue with a peaked faced baby in his spindling arms. Three persons phoned excitedly about him. His story was dire —no food nor fire in the house, numberless brothers and sisters, sick mother, a runaway father.

The tale he told varied each time. Finally he happened to give the right name and street. The United Charities of Chicago were called. They knew the family and had been helping it for a long time; so had nearly a dozen other different charitable organizations.

Aided by Eleven Charities.

The charitable citizen who had taken innumerable street cars to get to that particular home was discouraged.

"Never again," he said to Miss Amelia Sears, the assistant general superintendent of the United Charities.

"But why?" protested Miss Sears. "What else could you expect? If poor people knew how to handle money, most of them wouldn't be poor.

"We have been practically 'carrying' that family for more than a year with the help of about ten other organizations.

"The Infant Welfare society has fed the baby and taught the mother how to care for it. The Visiting Nurses have taken care of the mother, and the Chicago Tuberculosis institute of the father. One child has been practicaly cured of heart trouble by the Chicago Association for the Prevention and Relief of Heart Disease. Day nurseries, clinics, doctors, and nurses have been at the service of the children. They have had summer outings and Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets.

"The county has furnished provisions once a month, and the United Charities have given groceries orders, paid the rent, and made light work for the father to do whenever he was able.

"The mother is capable and honest, and because of her and the seven small children we are determined to keep the family together.

Thousands Like Them.

"There are thousands of families just like this one scattered all over the city. Their troubles will grow more acute as winter fastens on us. If they are reported to us, we will help them and set to work the different forces which exist only to help them.

"Millions are given to charity each year in Chicago. Chicago will look after its poor if Chicago people will cooperate with its charities and philanthropies."

PROVINE JUMPS INTO RACE FOR BRUNDAGE'S JO

Essington to Resume H Speaking Tour.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Political attention in Illinois t turned yesterday on the Republi nomination for attorney general, lowing an announcement by Wal Provine of Taylorville that he will a candidate for this job in the A primaries.

Provine, a former member of the l islature, made the race against At ney General Brundage in 1916. T weeks he has been listed as a cert entry if Brundage did not seek nomination. In fact, it is known t he withheld his announcement seve weeks waiting for a decision by Brundage. His formal entry now is lieved to be a direct result of ex-G Charles S. Deneen's candidacy for t United States senate against Senat Medill McCormick.

Deneen Candidacy Starts.

The Deneen candidacy, the most portant development in Republic state politics since Senator Thurl G. Essington became a candid against Gov. Len Small, not only st ed wholesale speculation but open the way for other rapid developme

Mr. Provine was careful to say has made no factional alliances despite his announcement, it is s gested he might withdraw later if torney General Brundage decides start again. Mr. Brundage desires retire to private practice, but politi exigencies, his friends insist, alm compel him to be a candidate. F final decision probably will not be m for another two weeks, it was said.

Deneen to Get Busy.

PROVINE JUMPS INTO RACE FOR BRUNDAGE'S JOB

Essington to Resume His Speaking Tour.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Political attention in Illinois centered yesterday on the Republican nomination for attorney general, following an announcement by Walter Provine of Taylorville that he will be a candidate for this job in the April primaries.

Provine, a former member of the legislature, made the race against Attorney General Brundage in 1916. For weeks he has been listed as a certain entry if Brundage did not seek renomination. In fact, it is known that he withheld his announcement several weeks waiting for a decision by Mr. Brundage. His formal entry now is believed to be a direct result of ex-Gov. Charles S. Deneen's candidacy for the United States senate against Senator Medill McCormick.

Deneen Candidacy Starts.

The Deneen candidacy, the most important development in Republican state politics since Senator Thurlow G. Essington became a candidate against Gov. Len Small, not only started wholesale speculation, but opened the way for other rapid developments.

Mr. Provine was careful to say he has made no factional alliances and, despite his announcement, it is suggested he might withdraw later if Attorney General Brundage decides to start again. Mr. Brundage desires to retire to private practice, but political exigencies, it is friends insist, almost compel him to be a candidate. His final decision probably will not be made for another two weeks, it was said.

Deneen to Get Busy.

Mr. Deneen expects to hold a conference with his lieutenants tomorrow, and, it is understood, will immediately lay plans to round up his downstate supporters during the days when he was governor.

Senator McCormick has been building up his political fences downstate in anticipation of the coming fight and with a strong organization already functioning says he is ready for the fray and not alarmed about it.

Deneen's announcement revived rumor that Charles W. Vail, clerk of the Illinois Supreme court, might become a candidate against Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson. If Vail starts it is believed his candidacy, with that of the ex-governor, will be the foundation for a state slate. Mr. Deneen's candidacy gave little hope of harmony over the Republican Cook county ticket.

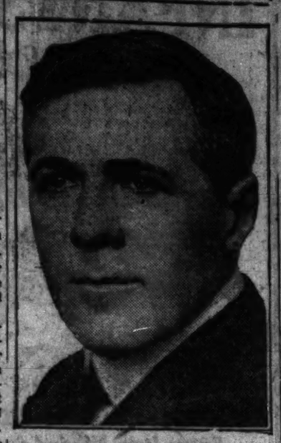
Essington to Resume Tour.

Senator Essington leaves Chicago tomorrow night to finish his first tour of southern Illinois, where sentiment favoring his candidacy is reported spreading rapidly. Republican leaders are flocking to his banner and counties that Gov. Small has been claiming have been promised to Essington by leaders who say the people are with them and will repudiate at the polls in no uncertain strength the administration of Gov. Small.

In the Small-Thompson camp there are indications that orders will be given to support Deneen the purpose being to down McCormick even if it means going outside the machine to find a candidate. Mr. Deneen has insisted he has not and will not make any alliances with Small and that the gubernatorial race will not be made a factor in his campaign.

Frank L. Smith's situation and his ambitions for the governorship remained unchanged by developments of the last few days. The Illinois commerce commission chairman expects to return to Chicago next week but has given no public indication of the position he finally will take.

COL. A. V. SMITH URGED TO ENTER RACE FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL



COL. A. V. SMITH.

Throughout the state friends of State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county are urging him to become a candidate for attorney general in the Republican primary next April. His position is that he probably will be a candidate if Attorney General Brundage is not. If Brundage runs again Col. Smith will be a candidate for reelection as state's attorney. He was a lieutenant colonel in the 149th artillery of the Rainbow division (Reilly's Bucks), and many ex-service men are boosting him for the state place.

Col. Smith came into prominence first by his drives against vice and prohibition law violators and later as a prosecutor in the trial of Gov. Small for pocketing $2,000,000 interest on state funds. Following Small's acquittal Col. Smith sifted the jury bribing charges. It was his activity that resulted in the capture of Michael J. Boyle, fugitive from a six months' contempt of court sentence for refusing to tell what he knew about bribery in the Small case.

GRAHAM FIGHTS EAST'S CONTROL IN NEW CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A determined movement to break New England's control of congress is gathering force and indications are that it will meet with a degree of success.

REPRESENTATIVE W. J. GRAHAM.

The plan advanced by Representative W. J. Graham [Rep., Ill.], who has been opposing Representative Longworth [Rep., O.] for floor leader, contemplates the increasing of western and middle western representation on the steering committee. This is the all-powerful house committee, since it decides the character of legislation to have the right of way and determines the party's policy in legislation.

Mr. Graham, who has 109 members pledged to support him for floor leader, not sufficient to win, without a combination with the radicals, is willing to give up the fight if the Republicans will liberalize the steering committee.

Four Killed as Fast Mail Train Hits Automobile

COURT DECISION LEGALIZES SOOT IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—To draw a circle around the city and to say that no industry may operate beyond that line when injury results to adjoining properties would fix an absolute limit to the growth of Pittsburgh as an industrial community, Judge Evans held in an opinion handed down in Common Pleas court today in a suit in equity brought by the Elliott Nursery company against the Duquesne Light company. This is the first decision on the prevalence of soot in Pittsburgh. The nursery company had sued because their plants had been injured by smoke.

DOLLAR DEPOSES BRITISH MONEY ON PARIS BOURSE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The dollar has deposed the pound sterling as the king of Europe's money markets following the sudden weakening of English exchange. The Paris bourse now considers American currency as gold and gives all quotations based on dollars.

Hitherto even during the worst crises the pound sterling has remained the standard.

The depreciation of the English and all other European exchanges is laid to America's belief that the foreign situation is bad with the possibility of further ruptures. It is estimated that three to four millions of dollars are daily traded by bourse speculators in gambling on the rise and fall of exchange.

Louis XV arm chair in brocaded Italian velvet: Frame of chair finished in antique enamels to match upholstery, $360.00.

Louis XVI rosewood inlaid commode, $96.00.

Louis XVI walnut arm chair in taupe brocade and velvet, $274.00.

YOU want beauty in furniture; and utility; and durability; all three.

Empire walnut arm chair in rose sateen, $168.00.

Beauty, because your home is thus made more attractive to those who live in it. Utility, because that's what furniture is for. You've seen lots of "pretty" chairs that nobody dares to sit on. Durability, because when you pay money for furniture or anything else, length of service or value is most important.

Well, here you get all of these. You can judge for yourself the beauty of our wares; there's plenty of beautiful furniture to be had, almost anywhere. You know better than any one else your utility requirements.

The only part of it that you may be uncertain about is the durability; the quality is very important. We give you our assurance that Scholle quality is absolutely reliable; and for those who know us, that's all that's necessary. For everybody else we say—"If you buy anything here that isn't satisfactory to you, for any reason, return it and we refund your money." No sale in this store is ever finally closed until our customer is sure of being satisfied.

DRAG LAKE IN SEARCH FOR A MISSING ARTIST

Police continued dragging the lake in the vicinity of Belmont avenue harbor yesterday in the hope of finding a clew to the disappearance of Leon Weeks, artist and a member of the Chicago Yacht club, who has been mysteriously missing since last Sunday night.

The last seen of Weeks was when he left the home of Ferdinand Krenquist, 1950 Ainslie street, where he had attended a party. It was late at night, and Weeks said he intended going direct to the yacht Vanadis, belonging to Gordon Seagrove, which was anchored in the harbor.

A theory that the yachtsman was murdered and his body flung into the lake was formed when "Buddie" Mayhew, another of the Vanadis crew, told of hearing screams coming from the shore at 2 a. m. It is also possible, police believe, that Weeks may have accidentally fallen into the water and drowned.

FATHER OF BOY SLAYER IS FINED AS BOOTLEGGER

Joseph Mantana Sr., father of the 17 year old boy who is charged with the killing of Detective Sergeant Lawrence Harnett, was fined $100 and costs yesterday in Maxwell street court for violation of the prohibition law. The sentence was sustained over his plea that Sergts. Bonner and Walsh had no search warrants when they raided his place at 914 West Polk street, ten days before the shooting.

It was on evidence collected by Bonner and Walsh that Sergt. Harnett and his squad raided the place. Sergt. Harnett was killed and Sergt. Steve Barry was wounded. Joseph Montana Jr. is held for the shooting.

This Car Owns Supremacy in the Seven-Passenger Class

Those of you whose necessities direct your attention to cars with more than common passenger capacity will find this Nash Six for seven a decisively superior value.

Your eye immediately catches the studied artistry of the smartly fashioned body, given added distinctiveness by reason of the slanting type windshield.

Then, as you inspect the interior, you find extensive evidence of the care with which Nash has provided every convenience and comfort.

The width and depth of the seats, the ample leg space, the unusual thickness of the upholstery of the two extra seats, the array of select appointments—all indicate unmistakably the luxury of the car.

The wheelbase is a full 127 inches. The solidly built frame is bulwarked by five massive cross-members to prevent the slightest "weaving" or "twisting."

The brake-system is unique in its method of application and provides greater braking surface per pound of weight per wheel than is found on any other American-built Six.

And Nash engineering progressiveness has so refined the power-flow that the car performs with remarkable vigor and briskness.

BAND OF 100 TO REDOUBLE DRIVE FOR RED CROSS

Giving Starts with Rush, Then Slows a Bit.

Although the campaign to raise $500,000 to maintain the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross for the next two years started off with a rush, it has slowed up somewhat in the last few days and a new offensive will be launched tomorrow.

One hundred young business men who volunteered their services as canvassers have been organized into a flying squadron by James B. Forgan Jr., campaign chairman. They plan to make the second week of the drive the most strenuous of all. The campaign will be carried intensively into the outlying neighborhoods and suburbs, especially the suburbs where wealthy Chicago business men reside. But no place will be overlooked, and by Thanksgiving, the leaders hope, the full amount will have been pledged.

General Public Generous.

So far the general public has been more generous than the comparatively small group whose names are on every charity list for large amounts, and special drives will be aimed this week at the Gold Coasters who have not responded so far, and at north shore millionaires.

Further efforts also will be made to add to the list of 100 per cent office buildings in the loop. The county building, city hall, postoffice, and First National bank already have signed up 100 per cent in pledges. In the county building the drive has been under direction of Mrs. Edmund K. Jarecki, wife of the county judge, who has established headquarters in her husband's office.

Forgan Sounds Rallying Cry.

"We hope to have the full amount by Thanksgiving," Mr. Forgan said, "but we'll have to work every minute and the public will have to respond just a little better. When the drive started the returns were very gratifying. The pledges came in four times as fast as in any previous year, but the ratio has not been kept up."

FOUR SUBURBS UNITE.

Under the chairmanship of Dr. Thomas E. Roberts, the seventh roll call of the Red Cross is making a hard drive for funds in Oak Park, River Forest, Forest Park, and North Berwyn. Mrs. Edgar F. Strawbridge of 215 North Euclid avenue is in charge of Divisional, with a crew of captains at her command. Mrs. Ralph Scarritt heads the drive in River Forest; Mrs. Lucy Terrill in Forest Park, and Mrs. Stanley Nantus in North Berwyn.

Under the chairmanship of Dr. Thomas E. Roberts, the seventh roll call of the Red Cross is making a hard drive for funds in Oak Park, River Forest, Forest Park, and North Berwyn. Mrs. Edgar F. Strawbridge of 215 North Euclid avenue is in charge of Divisional, with a crew of captains at her command. Mrs. Ralph Scarritt heads the drive in River Forest; Mrs. Lee Terrill in Forest Park, and Mrs. Stanley Nantus in North Berwyn.

GOLDEN YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Schumacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Schumacher of 2213 West Monroe street started reading THE TRIBUNE fifty years ago. Today they are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Their two children and three grandchildren will be their guests. Mr. Schumacher is 72 years old. Mrs. Schumacher is 69. They have lived in Chicago forty-five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Engwald.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Engwald celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Nov. 4 at their home, 4951 Oakdale avenue. They have one son and have lived in Chicago twenty years. Mr. Engwald is 81 years old and Mrs. Engwald is 74.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Petersen.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Petersen of 6725 South Green street celebrated their golden wedding Oct. 31. Mr. Petersen is 74 years old; his wife is 70. They have lived in Chicago since 1852. There are four children living and eleven grandchildren. More than 300 friends helped them celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pagek.

Married in Chicago fifty-seven years ago, Nov. 10, Mr. and Mrs. John Pagek of 4313 West 26th street, celebrated the anniversary last week. Fifty guests and three generations attended.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Becker.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Becker of La Grange celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Thursday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Becker were born in Germany and came to America when children. Before 1913, when they moved to La Grange, they had lived in Chicago for many years. Mr. Becker is 72; his wife is 70.

Mr. and Mrs. Lars D. Aftedahl.
[Bickford Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Lars D. Aftedahl, 2038 North Sawyer avenue, who will have been married fifty years next Thursday, will begin a three day celebration Wednesday night with a reception at Zion Lutheran church, Belden and Lawndale avenue. Festivities will close with a reunion Friday night. They have lived in Chicago fifty-two years. There are four children and fourteen grandchildren. Mr. Aftedahl is 80 and his wife 78.

M'NEIL HEIRS AGREE TO ALTER TERMS OF WILL

Agreement among the heirs of Malcolm McNeil, late president of McNeil & Higgins, wholesale grocers, to alter terms of Mr. McNeil's will, and redistribute the estate, was announced yesterday when the heirs sought to obtain the consent of the Superior court to the move.

Under the terms of the agreement, which only slightly alter the provisions of the will, the widow, Mrs. Alice Dunlap McNeil, 1232 North La Salle street, will receive a cash award of $5,000 and an annuity of $6,000, instead of the $8,000 annual income provided by the will.

Warning of Crime Wave Sent to State Bankers

Warning of a crime wave which started in September and now seems to be near its crest was sent out to all bankers of the state yesterday by the Illinois Bankers association. Seven robberies of Illinois banks, four burglaries, and three attempted burglaries since Sept. 1 make a total equal to all attacks in the previous eight months, the bulletin stated.

REALTY OWNERS IN 4 WARDS O. K. WATER METERS

Comparison of their current water bills with "what might have been" under a metered service, as outlined by W. J. McCourt, superintendent of the city water bureau, yesterday led 126 property owners in four south side wards to ask installation of meters on their premises.

Only eight protests against the meters were received by Mr. McCourt in response to circulars mailed to water users with their bills last Tuesday. The "meter educational campaign," which was confined, for experimental purposes, to the Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth wards, will now be extended over the city, according to Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague.

An ordinance providing for metering of the entire city water supply was prepared by Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch a few days ago and submitted to Commissioner Sprague for approval.

QUITS HOOTCH FOR MILK.

Paul Sutcher, 6617 Greenwood avenue, a milk wagon driver, was dismissed yesterday in Englewood court when he promised to substitute milk for hootch.

FARM LEADER TO ASK 150 MILLION GERMAN CREDITS

Urges Sending of Wheat to Save Starving.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—[Tribune Radio.]—Gray Silver has decided to recommend to the meeting of the American Farm Bureau federation at Chicago on Dec. 3 that this organization of 7,000,000 farmers bring all possible pressure upon the government to extend Germany long term credits of approximately $50,000,000 for the purchase of wheat and $100,000,000 for fats.

Instead of the American government itself buying up this quantity of wheat and fats at American market prices, particularly wheat, he proposes to make the Germans buy through ordinary trade channels, which would cause a sharp advance in wheat prices.

Such liberal American government credits would undoubtedly prevent famine in Germany this winter, but there is another side to the story.

Food Plentiful in Country.

The plain fact of the German food situation today is that though the lower and middle classes in all German towns and cities are actually starving at this moment, the country has a supply of cereals sufficient to last until the end of March at least.

The farmers had excellent crops of potatoes, rye, barley, and other cereals and vegetables this summer and autumn, but they refuse to sell this food to town dealers for paper marks. Many farmers are now feeding their foodstuffs to their pigs and cows in preference to selling for almost worthless paper. The farm stock in Germany never was fatter.

As usual, there is an oversupply of potatoes, which is the backbone of German national and household economy, but potatoes are worth their weight in gold in the cities.

Would Pay More in U. S.

The German government could buy cereals from German farmers at one-half or one-third the price it would have to pay in America, but finds it more expedient politically to buy the higher priced American cereals on credit. In addition, Germany would have to pay high transportation and distribution costs on American grain.

The government does not dare put the slightest pressure upon its rich farming classes in order to get cereals at low prices or on credit because they are too powerful politically.

Fat Shortage More Serious.

The shortage of fats is much more serious than the shortage of cereals, because the German pig herds are only 30 per cent of their pre-war size and the country must replenish its fat supply from month to month.

ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

A tube attached to an open gas jet in his mouth, John Secor, 56, 516 North Springfield avenue, was found dead yesterday.

tax will not assume formidable proportions.

Mr. Dickinson expressed himself for a soldier bonus bill and said that he hoped that it would be shown that a tax reduction is possible even though a bonus bill is passed.

LAUNCH BONUS FIGHT.

The fight to be waged in congress by the American Legion on behalf of a bonus bill was launched here yesterday when John R. Quinn, national commander of the legion, made known the personnel of the organization's national legislative committee.

Aaron Sapire of Chicago appointed chairman of the committee, prepared to depart for Washington immediately for the purpose of getting the battle lines in shape by the time congress convenes on Dec. 4.

The bill probably will be introduced some time during December, Mr. Quinn said. He was unable to say who would submit it to the house.

"I have high hopes we'll go over the top this trip," was his comment.

Other members of the committee are Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, O.; O. L. Bodenhamer of Eldorado, Ark.; J. G. Scrugham of Carson City, Nev.; J. Danforth Bush of Wilmington, Del.; Dr. R. J. Laird of Algona, Ia.; E. J. Barrett of Sheboygan, Wis.; Dr. A. A. Van Dyke of St. Paul, Minn., and Maco Stewart Jr. of Galveston, Tex.

Commander Quinn left at night to officiate at dedication ceremonies on Nov. 22 for a memorial stadium in honor of California soldiers slain in the World war to be erected at the University of California. He spent the day in conference with Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman and Mr. Sapiro.

Sefton Varnished Cartons Increase Sales

Varnish! No illustration can truly show you why Sefton Varnished Cartons are actually "superior."

Varnish adds a pleasant, soft glow to neutral colors; a brilliant lustre to bright colors. Why are automobiles—furniture varnished? Varnish makes a carton look rich, and invites a high appraisal of the contents.

Varnish keeps finger prints from soiling. It bids dust pass on without settling. It reflects light and enhances color combinations. Its personality stands forth, and secures the favorable attention it seeks. Varnish can make your cartons more successful. We invite examination and comparison. Send a few to Sefton. They will return to you—varnished.

The process has been perfected in Sefton's own way—so it's economical. Telephone, wire or write for our representative.

Fried Chicken—so good that Mother will admit she couldn't beat it—only 65c at the North American

We all have fond recollections of the chicken mother used to fry in the older days. And whenever we order chicken in a restaurant or hotel we hope that it will taste "just like mother's." The North American Restaurant is one dining place where that hope is never disappointed. Mother herself will say she could get no finer chicken nor fry it better.

Yet, because you, "serve yourself," a delicious portion of fried chicken consisting of a breast, with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce included, costs only 65c. Or the same dinner with dark meat of chicken only 55c.

Every chicken we fry is a tender Milk-fed youngster. Fried by a Chef who knows just how fried chicken should taste; it comes to you hot from the pan—brown, crisp and delicious. And to be sure that each portion is a liberal one, we fry only chickens weighing three pounds or more. So if you want real fried chicken with the "home cooked" flavor, and are tired of paying a dollar (or more) for it elsewhere, come to the North American Restaurant.

And fried chicken is only one of innumerable items which you can get here at low prices. Among many others we suggest:

Blue Point Cocktail: 7—not the usual half-dozen—on the half shell with cocktail sauce 25c

Fried Oysters: 7 big New York Counts fried to your order, with tartar or chile sauce or ketchup 40c

Halibut and Peas: A big portion—usually enough for two 40c

Fried Scallops: A big portion with tartar or chili sauce or ketchup 55c

Tenderloin Steak: A thick, juicy tenderloin with French fried potatoes and lima beans 85c

And our breakfast specialties

Honey Waffles: With 3 strips of bacon or sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey 25c

Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 30c

Plan to eat your turkey dinner here on Thanksgiving Day.

This is one restaurant where children are welcome!

PSYCHIC REVEALS 'MAN-WOMAN' AS ELWELL SUSPECT

Handwriting New Clew in Unsolved Slaying.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Rafael Schermann, the Polish handwriting expert, for whom psychic powers are claimed, today gave the police a new clew in the Joseph Bowne Elwell murder mystery, which occurred in June, 1920, and which the authorities have never been able to solve by ordinary means of detective work.

The psycho-graphologist, who is said to have solved many crime mysteries for the police of Vienna, cast suspicion on a "man-woman," known to the police only as "Marjorie," as the slayer of Elwell. Until today's demonstration the police had never allowed the existence of this character in the mystery to become public. They admitted to Schermann, however, that they had searched for "Marjorie," but had never been able to find "her."

Says "She" Is a Man.

The police have always believed "Marjorie" was a woman, but Schermann asserted the signature attached to a letter written by "Marjorie" to Elwell, and shown by the police to Schermann, was that of a man masquerading as a woman.

The police admitted they were impressed by the accuracy with which Schermann analyzed Elwell's character and mode of life from his handwriting.

After showing Schermann specimens of Elwell's handwriting from letters and notebooks, Police Inspector Fay asked:

"What do you see?"

"I see," replied Schermann, instantly, rubbing his hand on his forehead, "that Elwell is in his apartment with some one. It is a woman or a man. I cannot tell which. They are drinking. Elwell becomes unconscious, and then he is killed."

Questioned about the kind of man Elwell was, Schermann replied:

"I see a man very well dressed, who had exhausted his vitality by debauchery. He gets very little sleep. There are always women and men hanging out at his place, and one of his principal tasks is preventing one woman from knowing about the next and to keep them apart. I think his death was the result of his mode of life."

"How did he make his living?" asked Detective Browne.

"I can't quite say," Schermann replied, "but I feel that he had no settled business."

Said to Have Gambled.

In this connection it was recalled that Elwell, besides his income from books on bridge, was said to have gambled considerably on cards and horse races, and was said to have indulged in bootlegging.

The police then showed Schermann a letter and said that it had been written by a woman named "Marjorie."

"Have you ever found this woman?" Schermann asked.

"No," said Inspector Fay.

"No wonder," was the reply. "It isn't a woman. It's a man."

According to Schermann, the handwriting was apparently feminine and had nothing about it which would indicate to the ordinary person that it was not written by a woman.

WRITES OF CAREER

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN.
[Harris & Ewing Photo.]

MRS. HARRIMAN WRITES OF HER POLITICAL LIFE

Hopes Vote Will Bring Help for Women.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman has written a book "From Pinafores to Politics," out today, telling why, after twenty years of activity among politicians, she believes women should enter politics thoroughly and convincingly and independently.

"The woman vote," she believes is something to reckon with and will have to be considered as separate from "the man vote" for some time. But she objects to a separate woman's party.

Women Still Separate.

"Women are still separate, not only biologically, which doesn't count for so much in politics, but economically," says Mrs. Harriman. "They are the vast body of houseworkers, sometimes sweated and sometimes petted. The American wife is supposed to be a member of the great leisure class and I suppose it is true that more American wives have more time to waste or to pursue culture than any other people.

"Of all statistics, the ones that have impressed and shocked me the most are those that Margaret Hichey, the laundry worker, once gave me—that in New York alone more than 14,000 women over 65 years of age are dependent upon their own labors for support. I suppose most of those 14,000 old women spent the best part of their lives doing domestic service for some man.

What She Hopes For.

"I look forward to a time when women, even if they keep on at the old business of having for their main job the making of man comfortable, will use the vote in order to make the world a more pleasant place to be thrown on, and to work in, when their heads are gray and their joints stiff."

Mrs. Harriman says, in opposing a separate women's party: "I dislike very much the sex-conscious bloc that Alice Paul and her party have organized. I do not think they can ever be powerful enough on their own to accomplish anything, and I do think they stir up so much antagonism in the men that it is difficult for the rest of us to peacefully negotiate the things we want."

TESTIMONIAL TO DEAN M. E. COOLEY OF MICHIGAN U.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17.—A testimonial dinner will be given Dean Mortimer E. Cooley of the engineering college of the University of Michigan Friday evening, Nov. 23, at the Statler hotel. Dean Cooley has been at the university over forty years, and the dinner is a testimonial from the engineering profession and his thousands of friends to his accomplishments and high personal character.

The banquet will be arranged by the Detroit Engineering society, the Detroit section of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Detroit-Ann Arbor section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. H. E. Riggs is chairman of the invitation committee, and invitations may be obtained from the Detroit Engineering society, 478 West Alexandrine avenue.

U. S. Prison Official Jumps to Death from Steamship

New York, Nov. 17.—John Koren of Boston, international prison commissioner for the United States, jumped overboard from the promenade deck of the Nieum Amsterdam during the ten hour on Nov. 9 and was drowned, officers of the vessel declared on her arrival today.

MINE DIRECTOR MEDILL OUSTED BY GOV. SMALL

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—In house cleaning for the spring campaign, Gov. Small has decided to throw another officeholder into the discard. This time it is Robert M. Medill, director of mines and mining, a holdover from the Lowden administration. Mr. Medill probably has not been delivering politically to the liking of the governor. The request for his resignation, however, was camouflaged under the charge that Medill had not been paying sufficient attention to the interests of Illinois' 100,000 miners.

Medill comes from Du Quoin, the home of Col. Sam Hunter, aspirant for lieutenant governor on the Small ticket, the national guard officer of Herrin fame. Medill was sent by Small to investigate the Herrin affair at the time of the massacre.

At the offices of the United Mine Workers in Springfield it is stated that Medill's status has not been under discussion by them and they disclaim knowledge of any movement for or against him. The fight, they say, must be "among the politicians." At the governor's office it was merely stated that Medill "had not resigned." Senator William T. Sneed, representative of the miners, has been in Springfield a great deal recently.

(A Business Editorial)
COMMON PEOPLE.
The United States are made up of common people. Abraham Lincoln said that God must love the common people because He made so many. They are the foundation on which any government must and should be built.
If business men treat them with injustice, there will be suffering. When the average people prosper, the world prospers.

SANDE'S GREAT RIDE DECIDES RACE AT WIRE

Sinclair Colt Leads Winners of World.

WH T P. OTOS SHOW

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—Newspaper photographs of the Zev-In Memoriam match race at Churchill Downs today show the heads of the two horses are on practically a dead line, with In Memoriam having a fraction the better of it, if anything. Spectators on the finish line contended that In Memoriam's nose was projected further than Zev's at the line of finish. The newspaper photographs seem to bear out this contention.

The photographs, besides showing In Memoriam to be a fraction of a nose in the lead 18 inches from the wire, show one of his forefeet as just having hit the track and his body lurching forward from the impact of the stride, while Zev's corresponding foot is on its downward motion and cannot have given him an added impetus on the final jump before both crossed the wire.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 17.—[Associated Press.] — In what probably was the deepest, most thrilling finish in the history of the American turf, Zev, winner of the Kentucky Derby and conqueror of the English champion, Papyrus, reversed the victory In Memoriam scored at Latonia two weeks ago by defeating him by a scant nose in a match race at one and one-quarter miles at Churchill Downs today.

The hurricane finish was so close that hardly a spectator in a crowd of 40,000 persons, with the possible exception of Harry [illegible], owner of the winner, realized that Zev had won, until the official decision of the judges had been posted.

A Thrilling Climax.

The climax of the race furnished a thrill that set the crowd wild with excitement as almost every one thought that In Memoriam had triumphed as the two great 3 year old rivals floundered under the wire, neck and neck, with scarcely an inch separating their noses.

Trained observers, with years of experience in watching close finishes, shouted that In Memoriam had won, but a second later the judges posted Zev as the winner. The finish, in the opinion of turf experts, was so close that the race could have been called a dead heat and not provoke an argument from admirers of either horse.

The race was won in 2:06 3-5, three and two-fifths seconds slower than the track record for the distance established by Woodtrap in 1921, but Woodtrap did not carry the impost of 126 pounds that both In Memoriam and Zev carried today.

Zev, as a result of his victory, becomes the greatest money earning race horse in the world. Owner Sinclair took down $25,000 of today's $30,000 purse, swelling Zev's winnings to $301,973, which shoved him ahead of the winnings of the two English stars, Isinglass with $291,275 and Donovan with $277,215.

Race of the Ages.

Wise old horsemen, thrown into a hysteria of excitement over today's finish, said the race was the horse race of horse races and had never been equaled. The superior riding of Earl Sande, proclaimed the greatest jockey since the days of Tod Sloane, was the master stroke, they said, that brought victory to Zev. He engaged Jockey Garner, who was astride In Memoriam, in a whipping finish that began fifty yards from the wire, jerking Zev's head to make the supreme effort in the last foot of the race.

Sande permitted In Memoriam to break into the lead at the start and had Zev cling to In Memoriam like a grim shadow, never more than a length and a half behind, until the horses swung into the stretch, where he began to apply the whip for the finish.

When they shot past the grandstand the first time In Memoriam had a lead of a length and a half and held this margin until the three-quarter goat was reached. Then Sande settled down to close the gap. As they flashed past the mile mark Zev had reduced In Memoriam's lead to a neck. Coming into the stretch, Zev had a slight margin, with In Memoriam faltering. Then Jockey Garner began to lash the Kentucky colt furiously, and the pair raced almost as a team when they began to dash for the wire.

Crowd in Frenzy.

The punishing, hurricane finish down the stretch brought the crowd to its feet, with a shout of "In Memoriam!" Just a few feet from the wire Garner made a desperate challenge, but Zev's speed was too great, and Sande, riding a masterly race, using all the cunning for which he is famous, snatched victory out of defeat.

Even the betting indicated a thrilling fight, although Zev was an overwhelming favorite. Zev's victory paid 40 cents to a dollar in the part-mutuel machines, while the price on In Memoriam was $1.25 to $1.

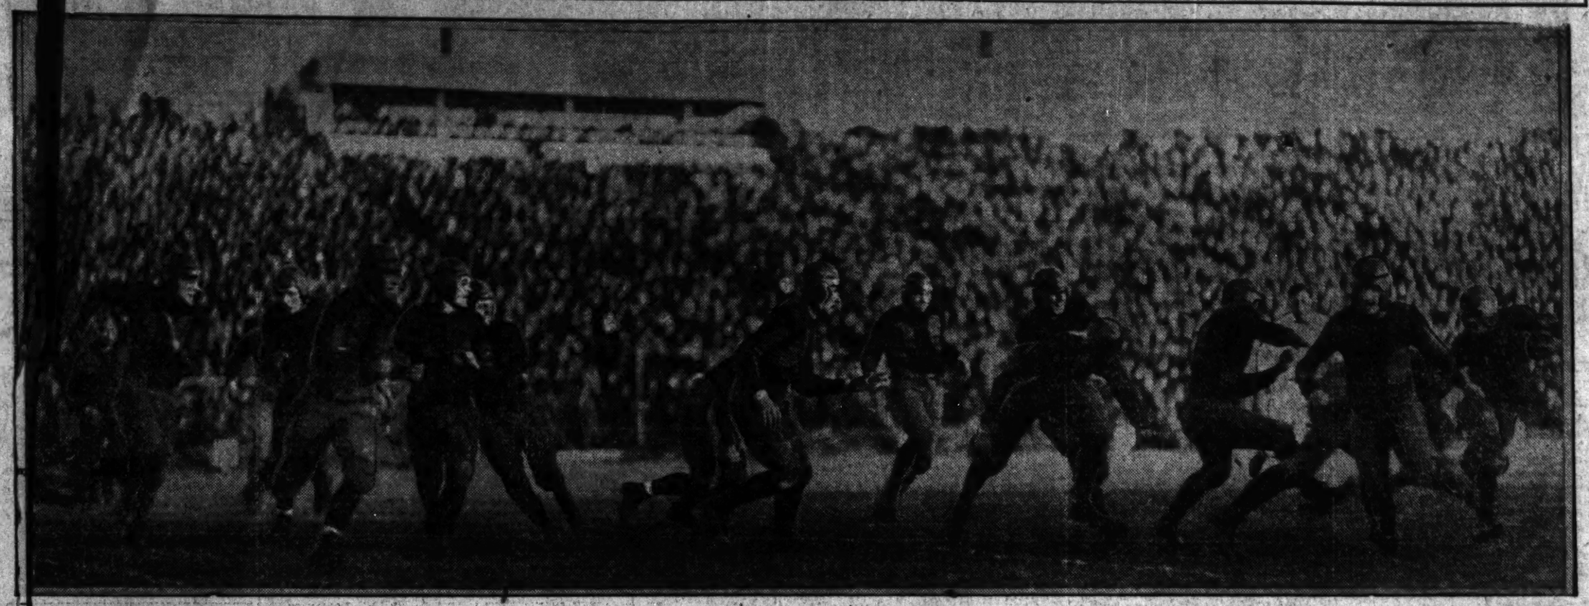
YOST'S MEN TRAP BADGERS, 6-3

ZEV CONQUERS IN MEMORIAM BY NOSE FINISH

THE BADGERS AND WOLVERINES SNARL AND SCRATCH



Following a disputed play, which a Michigan player got up and continued for a touchdown after a Wisconsin man thought he had been tackled, the Badger-Wolverine battle at Madison developed into the hardest kind of a hard fought game. Wisconsin men tackled with a viciousness which plainly said that there weren't going to be any more disputes, and the Wolverines fought just as hard to protect their leading margin. The above photo shows Capt. Marty Below of Wisconsin (extreme right) starting on a run, and the faces of the players plainly show their earnestness. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

In this picture Capt. Kipke of Michigan has the ball, and to make sure he doesn't get up three Badgers have wrapped themselves around him. Note the players' expressions.

TEAM SCORING.

Illinois A. C.....35
Chicago A. A.....62
Unique A. C.....112
Univ. of Iowa.....173

Only four teams had five men who finished in the first fifty.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

Joie W. Ray, sterling middle distance runner of the Illinois A. C., showed himself a harrier of ability yesterday. Finishing more than 100 yards ahead of his nearest opponent, Joie romped off with premier honors in the first annual open A. A. U. cross-country run of the Chicago Tribune A. A. over a three mile course laid out in Humboldt park. Ray's time for the three miles was 14:49.

Second to Ray was Harold R. White, University of Illinois boy, who entered the run unattached. White earned second place by a fine sprint in the final seventy-five yards of the race, passing Russell F. Wharton of the Chicago A. A., who was third, and Henry Bourke of University of Chicago, who finished fourth. White's time for the run was 15:14, while Wharton finished in 15:15 and Bourke stepped the race in 15:17.

Wins Team Prize.

Besides winning first place, Joie Ray had the honor of leading the winning team in the run. Ray was captain of the Illinois A. C. squad which won the team trophy with a total of 35 markers. The tri-color club had five runners who scored the lowest number of points of all teams entered. Besides Ray's first place, Ray Watson was fifth; Egil Krogh, seventh; Charles (Chuck) Mellor, eighth, and C. L. Seaton romped across the finish line in fourteenth position.

The Chicago A. A. team was second in the team competition with 62 markers, while Unique A. C. finished five runners for a total of 112 points, and University of Iowa had five finishers who scored 173 markers. Only four teams had five or more runners to finish within the first fifty racers across the line.

Although he finished in fourth place, Henry Bourke of University of Chicago was a hero of the race. Bourke

The disputed play. Rockwell, the Michigan man, is seen scampering toward the line for the only touchdown of the day, pursued by Williams and Schneider, two Wisconsin backfield men.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

INTERNATIONAL TURF TEST.

FRANCE, which has a really great race horse in Epinard, suggests an international turf test on home soil next May against opposition from Great Britain and the United States.

Such an invitation, if made official by the Jockey club of France, no doubt will be accepted. Since we invited and defeated an English representative on an American track, we are hardly in a position to quibble about the date or conditions.

The Wake does not think, however, that a race early in May is the proper time. Our winters, even in the breeding centers, are too severe for prepping a horse for an important engagement. At the best, lenient conditioning would be about all that could be expected. The horse then would be shipped abroad for final preparation in advance of the race.

Such a program would entail choice of America's representative on this year's form, as no racing tests would be possible. Selection would be more difficult than when Zev, rather than My Own, was chosen to meet Papyrus. Zev, My Own, In Memoriam are three candidates right now, although the choice probably would lie between the two first named.

We heartily favor the idea of international races. National pride stimulates a public interest not otherwise obtainable. We hope the race may be held late enough to determine a preëminent representative for each nation. France's choice of Epinard seems assured. There is room for argument in England and America.

AN EDITORIAL

The public has been led to believe by George Oswego that he proposed putting on only fights at East Chicago that would bear the closest scrutiny, yet we are informed that he has signed "Tillie Kid" Herman to box Morrie Schlaifer of Omaha on next Friday night.

It will be remembered that Herman "ran out" of a match at Aurora recently, that it was announced from the ring that he had accepted advance money and that he refused to go through with his part of the engagement. His manager also was quoted as saying that "Tillie" was afraid to tackle his opponent.

Yet with all this against Herman, Oswego proposes to match him with a man with his superior in hitting ability and a man who could assimilate more punishment in ten rounds than Herman could in one.

From a boxing standpoint the match is a poor one, and it would be a crime to foist Herman on the local boxing public after his disgraceful action at Aurora.

Instead of helping the game, Oswego is preparing to give it another black eye. We believe Oswego is sincere, but he is being handed some mighty poor advice on his matchmaking.

Wisconsin Prep Game Ends in Fight; Forfeited

Eckie Cites Grid Rule on Critical Play

Walter Eckersall, referee of the Wisconsin-Michigan game yesterday at Madison, which ended in a near riot, with the official the object of the attack, last night issued the following statement explaining the unfortunate situation and cites the rule by which the criticized decision was made:

The play in question at the Michigan-Wisconsin game came after Rockwell, the Wolverine quarter back, juggled one of Taft's punts. The Michigan player finally obtained possession of the ball and started to run.

He was hit by a Wisconsin player and spun partially around. He was struck by a second Badger player, according to Field Judge Col. Mumma, who was on top of the play, and knocked to the ground but Col. Mumma stated emphatically he was not in the grasp of an opponent at the time he struck the ground.

After the second Wisconsin player struck Rockwell, the latter was rolling on the ground as I came up to cover the kick. At that time Rockwell was not in the grasp of an opponent. He regained his feet and ran for a touchdown. Before allowing the touchdown, I asked Col. Mumma if Rockwell had been held on the ground in the grasp of an opponent. He answered by saying that at no time was Rockwell legally tackled, and under those conditions I had to allow the touchdown.

Rule 6, section 13, paragraph A of the rule reads: "The ball is dead when a player having the ball goes out of bounds, cries 'down' or is so held that his forward progress is stopped, or when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touches the ground WHILE HE IS IN THE GRASP OF AN OPPONENT.

Col. Mumma, as previously stated, said Rockwell was not held so that his forward progress was stopped, and he was not on the ground while in the grasp of an opponent. When I came up after staying back to see that the kicker was not roughed, Rockwell was rolling on the ground, regained his feet a moment later and ran for the score.

READY FOR PARIS RACE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 17.—Zev's triumph today probably means that he will seek international honors, as the winner of today's race had been invited to compete in a six cornered international race for a purse of 1,600,000 francs to be decided at the Longchamps course near Paris next May.

Owner Sinclair said tonight that Zev undoubtedly would compete in the race abroad if the offer still holds good.

Touchdowns—Rockwell. Place kicks—Below. Referee—Eckersall [Chicago]. Umpire—Haines [Yale]. Head linesman—Ray [Illinois].

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—One of the hardest doses of defeat ever handed Wisconsin is being gulped by Badgers tonight as a result of the 6 to 3 win by Michigan over the Cardinal crew at Camp Randall this afternoon, scored by the Wolverines' substitute quarter, Rockwell, who, near the end of the second quarter, received a punt and, after being apparently downed, rose and dashed sixty yards for a touchdown, which was declared legal by officials.

Through the first half the Wisconsin gridders outfought and outplayed the unbeaten Wolverines, and when in the first period Capt. Marty Below dropkicked a field goal from the 15 yard line the Cardinal supporters believed victory and redemption from their defeat by Illinois last week were within their grasp.

Rockwell Races for Touchdown.

But they reckoned without Rockwell, who was taking the place of Uteritz, the man whose injuries kept him out of the game and upon whom Michigan had relied for a win. Rockwell three times took the ball to charge more than twenty yards, but it was in the second period that he made the momentous run which netted Michigan's winning touchdown, which ruined Badger hopes for victory, which elevated him to a plane of glory and which brought the wrath of thousands upon the innocent head of Walter Eckersall of Chicago, referee.

Rockwell nabbed a Wisconsin punt and, after thrice stumbling over Badger defensive players, regained his feet and finally trod the path of sixty yards which led to fame and won the bitter battle. The Wisconsin players halted somewhat in their endeavors to nab Rockwell after his first stumble, believing the ball dead, but Referee Eckersall, after conferring with Field Judge Mumma, declared the score was legal.

Fans Criticize Official.

The Wisconsin rooters were displeased with the decision of the officials. Eckersall was generally talked of in the stands as responsible for the decision which was protested and jeered from the Badger stands. Inquiry showed that the referee had nothing to do with the decision, which was made by Mumma, with whom the referee had agreed that the field judge should watch the plays by which kicks were returned. Eckersall consulted Mumma on the play and the latter advised the referee that the ball had not been downed.

As the game continued and it became evident that Badger hopes were doomed, feeling became heated and with the final whistle the crowd flocked to the field and surrounded Eckersall. Tom Jones, Wisconsin athletic director, gathered the Badger team about Eckersall, who was taken through the threatening mob to the dressing rooms, an action which probably prevented the crowd from doing violence which would be a lasting stain on Big Ten activities. Eckersall drove in Coach Jack Ryan's automobile to Milwaukee.

Both Teams Fight to Finish.

Throughout the battle both teams fought fiercely for a win. Wisconsin was grimly set on a comeback after the Illinois defeat and Michigan was striving to keep in the Big Ten titular race. Following the Michigan touchdown, the bitterness of the contest was intensified and repeatedly the Badgers attempted to work the ball to within striking distance, but tiring from the stiff scrimmage and pepless after the Michigan score, they were turned back by the determined resistance of the desperate Wolverines.

While the Badgers displayed the best football that they have shown this season, the playing of the visiting contingent was only mediocre except in the dashing passing attacks which they launched and which several times netted long gains. In the first half Wisconsin carried the ball 178 yards from the line of scrimmage, 94 yards of which were made by Taft. In punting, too, the Cardinal outdid the advantage, Taft's punts soaring for an average of 55 yards, while those of Capt. Kipke averaged 47.

The battle today was proof of Coach Ryan's ability to produce a team of versatile tactics, practically every trick in gridiron science being employed by his protegés. His men showed the result of long secret practice, solving the Wolverine plays through the first half and holding the Michigan crew in every phase but passing.

Wolverine Defense Tightens.

In the second half the Michigan defense, which had given so often before the onslaughts of Taft, Harris, and Williams, buckled to and held the cardinal clad warriors. Twice, though, Wisconsin passed, bucked, and ran the ball to within 15 yards of the Maize and Blue goal posts, only to be repulsed at the crucial moment.

The third period saw another imbroglio which disturbed the fans and brought much clamor from Wisconsin stands, and again Rockwell was involved. He caught Taft's punt on his own 32 yard line and then went around left end for 28 yards to Wisconsin's 39 yard line. A pass, Kipke to Marion, was dropped by the latter, and Steger, Wolverine half, pounced on the ball. Again the Wisconsin gridders crowded around Eckersall, asserting that the heave had not been nabbed by Marion and that it should be called incomplete. Eckersall differed, and the ball was placed on the Badger 11 yard line.

Kipke tried an end run but was thrown for two yards, and a Michigan pass which would have clinched Michigan's right to the victory was grounded. Wisconsin took the ball and Taft punted out of danger.

Badger Fumble Costly.

With their strength waning and their spirit sadly dampened, the Badgers, at the beginning of the final period, fumbled on Michigan's 32 yard line, and a Wolverine recovered the ball. A pass put the ball on Wisconsin's 15 yard line, and Kipke carried the oval to the 10 yard mark. Another pass was attempted by Michigan, but it was grounded, and the chance to score was gone.

The rest of the battle consisted of an aerial duel by the teams in vain efforts to score, and ended just as the Badgers completed a 40 yard heave.

Jack Blott, Michigan center, sustained a fractured bone about an inch above the ankle in the first period. Brown taking his place. He will be forced to keep Uteritz company on the bench when Michigan meets Minnesota Saturday.

Madison is one solid postmortem tonight. The legality of Rockwell's touchdown is the point of discussion. University of Wisconsin officials were silent as to the justice of the decision, but after the game Coach Ryan, Director Jones and the Cardinal players seemed determined on protesting the play, claiming that the ball was grounded when Rockwell was thrown twice by Wisconsin tacklers before he began his nonstop flight.

Try to Stem Tide.

Wisconsin officials busied themselves to stem the tide of resentment after the game, which for a time seemed to threaten open warfare between Badger supporters, Referee Eckersall and the 4,000 Michigan rooters.

The Cardinal fans maintain that the score should not have been allowed, while the Michigan camp believes that the Badgers simply were outwitted and lost a great game through overassurance that the man had been downed.

Other thrills of the day had been lost in the interest in the play which turned the tide and demoralized the Badger assault. But the great feats of Taft were important factors in the battle. Not only in offense, but in defense as well, his handiwork was easily observable. The excellence of the work of the Badger line was another sterling feature, the unison of attack and defense proving their great strength.

Rockwell the Hero.

The fact that Rockwell asserted himself to be a footballer of merit as well as a subject for hot argument cannot be overlooked. His rapid rise from comparative obscurity to greatness was won not only by his run but by his stellar performance in the other plays of the game.

By surviving this crucial battle, Michigan remains in the race for the conference championship and will battle for supremacy against Minnesota Saturday, handicapped, however, by the loss of two of its best players, Uteritz and Blott.

Today's conflict was staged before one of the biggest crowds that ever assembled for a struggle here, more than 25,000 persons being in the stands at the kickoff.

Touchdown—Newburn. Kick after touchdown—Hall. Goal from field—Hall. Referee—Hammerfahr.

Oak Park's eleven, coached by Frank Winter, yesterday mounted to the Suburban league title by wearing out Proviso in the second half of a classic struggle at Maywood and carrying off the victory, 10 to 0.

Outweighed almost ten pounds to the man, Coach Coutchie's peppery machine battled desperately, but could not stand the fierce plunges of the Oak Park backs.

Battering Brings Results.

After a scoreless first half, during which the Proviso aerial attack often threatened to bring a score, Oak Park's battering at the line began to bring results, and after several end runs had placed the ball on Proviso's 4 yard line, Full Back Newburn broke through for the first score. Hall kicked goal.

In the fourth period Oak Park again marched down the field, and Hall, who played a spectacular game at quarter, booted a drop kick from the 18 yard mark.

Wins Five Times.

Oak Park finished its season with five league victories, Glenville of Cleveland being the only opponent to down the far west siders.

LA GRANGE BEATS DEERFIELD.

With Lawrence Williams leading the assault by virtue of two touchdowns and two field goals, La Grange closed its season yesterday by defeating Deerfield, 19 to 7, at Highland Park. Williams' open field running was the sensation. Lineup:

St. Rita for 3d Time Wins on Blocked Punt

For the third time this season, St. Rita took advantage of a blocked punt to win a football game. The victim yesterday was St. Philips, 25 to 19. The game at St. Rita retained the home team's clutch upon the Catholic league crown. Marhoefer, Rita fullback, crashed the line and tore on for fifteen yards for the winning points.

Beaten to a frazzle in the first three periods of the bitter clash, St. Philips staged a whirlwind comeback in the final inning, piling up all 19 points and threatening to beat the victors out of their chance at the title. Lineup:

Hyde Park continued to make life going rough for title aspirants in the south section of the city grid league. Coach Butch Scanlon's eleven, which a week ago hung crêpe on Lindblom's hopes, yesterday rose in its might, and while 15,000 fans looked on at White City bumped off Tilden, 18 to 12, throwing Coach Louis Berger's yellow jackets into a tie with Bowen in the title race.

With Englewood awaiting the outcome of its protest on Tilden's 12 to 12 victory a week ago, which matter will be settled tomorrow, prospects now are for a triple tie in the division.

Blocked Punts Feature.

Yesterday's battle was one of blocked punts and completed passes, the former method accounting for two Hyde Park touchdowns and the latter giving Tilden all its points.

Urbick, Tilden right end, gave his eleven the lead in the first quarter by catching a heave from Capt. Cruisiner and racing 45 yards to the goal. The kick for the extra point went wild, as did all the others attempted during the contest.

Hyde Park evened the count before the end of the half, Center Murray camping on a punt which his teammate, Cameron, had blocked behind the Tilden goal.

Tilden Forges Ahead.

The remainder of the scoring was done in the third period, Tilden forging ahead soon after hostilities opened on Weiss' touchdown, scored after another long pass. Within a few minutes, however, Tilden, was forced to punt from behind its goal and Cohn of Hyde Park converted the proceedings into a touchdown which again evened the battle.

Sinkler, who returned to the Hyde Park lineup yesterday after an absence on the injured list, scored the deciding points by intercepting a pass and trotting 40 yards to the goal.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Long runs, the kind that come when least expected, put Ohio State to rout yesterday and let the Maroons go tearing to victory before 30,000 at Stagg field. The final count was 17 to 3 and two touchdowns that fell to the victors resulted from the vanquished being in a daze when a charging Chicagoan broke out of a mass of brawn and muscle and stamped down the field to glory.

In the way of the spectacular the game had more than its share. Chief among the thrillers were the long runs that brought the touchdowns. Then there was a brilliant charge down the field by a scarlet clad Ohioan when the first period was only half gone. He was stopped short of his coveted goal, but coming as it did right on the heels of a kick that gave Ohio its only point, it was sufficient to tear the hearts out of the Maroon cohorts.

John Thomas, who yesterday proved himself not only on offense, was taken from the game early in the third period when he sustained a partially dislocated elbow in an assault on the Buckeye line. The injury was not deemed serious by Midway trainers and physicians, who declared that the brilliant full back will be ready to take the field again when the Maroons meet Wisconsin Saturday.

Buckeyes Not Prepared.

The manner in which victory was garnered would indicate that luck broke in Chicago's favor. It did to a certain extent, but the two touchdowns came to pass mainly because the Buckeyes weren't prepared. One of them, which was a return on a punt, found Ohio without a safety man to guard against the very thing that happened.

The Maroons, outplayed to a certain extent in the first period, broke scoring in the second quarter, and John Thomas did it. Abbott started it when he intercepted an Ohio pass on Chicago's 49 yard line, but making first play put him out of action. On the first down Chicago was jolted with a seven yard penalty, but a moment later John Thomas ripped through the middle of the wall, warmed his way past the secondary defense and then, after tearing down the sideline like a streak freed from his wake, John Kerr, who was in his wake, but John Kerr, as he crossed the goal his last ounce of strength crumpled upon the 5 yard line in sheer exhaustion. The run totaled 56 yards. Then Lloyd Roberts came in to kick and added the extra point, giving the Maroons a 7 to 3 advantage.

The second touchdown, scored in the third period, started in a manner similar to the first—on an interception. Barnes intercepted it on the Ohio 34 yard line. Pyott immediately went over Ohio's goal and when the referee's eyes put the ball in play Pyott booted back to Capt. Pyott on his own 45 yard line who raced the oval and set sail.

Pyott Makes Long Run.

The entire Ohio eleven came tearing down on him, but he eluded them and danced his way into the clear, then went merrily down the open field with his foes standing in the rear, apparently too dazed to know what was coming off. Pyott merely kicked again and the Maroons won easy street by 14 to 3.

Chicago took unto itself three points in the first period when Rohrke again brought the ball into play. This chance was brought about by Chicago's fiercest charge of the game. Taking the ball on the Ohio 25 yard line after an Ohio punt was smothered and ran their way to the field to within five yards of the goal. With only 5 yards to go in three attempts, Rohrke booted a 75 yard assault, Barnes to the rescue, but as he grabbed the ball he was spilled around left end he was tackled and was nailed for a four yard loss. Thomas, in the game after shaking off the cobwebs, got back through left tackle for a 15 yard assault on the line of scrimmage. Rohrke booted the ball between the uprights from the 25 yard line.

Lampe Gets Goal.

Not a small factor in the Maroon success was Lampe, who was everywhere and nowhere for Ohio in its aerial attack. He was hot in the clinches, but was shifty Workman, who was the star of the field, but was

The final count was 17 to 3 and two touchdowns that fell to the victors resulted from the vanquished being in a daze when a charging Chicagoan broke out of a mass of brawn and muscle and stamped down the field to glory.

In the way of the spectacular the game had more than its share. Chief among the thrillers were the long runs that brought the touchdowns. Then there was a brilliant charge down the field by a scarlet clad Ohioan when the first period was only half gone. He was stopped short of his coveted goal, but coming as it did right on the heels of a kick that gave Ohio its only point, it was sufficient to tear the hearts out of the Maroon cohorts.

John Thomas, who yesterday proved himself not only on offense, was taken from the game early in the third period when he sustained a partially dislocated elbow in an assault on the Buckeye line. The injury was not deemed serious by Midway trainers and physicians, who declared that the brilliant full back will be ready to take the field again when the Maroons meet Wisconsin Saturday.

Buckeyes Not Prepared.

The manner in which victory was snared would indicate that luck broke in Chicago's favor. It did to a certain extent, but the two touchdowns came to pass mainly because the Buckeyes weren't prepared. One of them, which was a return on a punt, found Ohio without a safety man to guard against the very thing that happened.

The Maroons, outplayed to a certain extent in the first period, broke into scoring in the second quarter, and John Thomas did it. Abbott started it when he intercepted an Ohio pass on Chicago's 49 yard line, but making the play put him out of action. On the first down Chicago was jolted with a five yard penalty, but a moment later John Thomas ripped through the middle of the wall, wormed his way past the secondary defense and then went tearing down the sideline like a bat freed from hades. A trail of scarlet was in his wake, but John kept on and as he crossed the goal his last pursuer crumpled upon the 5 yard line out of sheer exhaustion. The run was good for 54 yards. Then Lloyd Rohrke came in to kick and added the extra point, giving the Maroons a 7 to 3 advantage.

The second touchdown, scored in the third period, started in a manner similar to the first—on an intercepted pass. Barnes intercepted it on the Maroons' 34 yard line. Fyott immediately punted over Ohio's goal and when the Buckeyes put the ball in play Workman booted back to Capt. Fyott. Standing on his own 46 yard line he took in the oval and set sail.

Fyott Makes Long Run.

The entire Ohio eleven came charging down on him, but he sidestepped and danced his way into the clear and then went merrily down the chalk lined field with his foes standing far in the rear, apparently too dazed to realise what was coming off. Rohrke drop kicked again and the Maroons were on easy street by 14 to 3.

Chicago took unto itself the other three points in the final period when Rohrke again brought his toe into play. This chance was brought about through Chicago's fiercest charge of the day. Taking the ball on their own 20 yard line after an Ohio punt, they hammered and ran their way along the field to within five yards of Ohio's goal.

With only 5 yards to go after their 15 yard assault, Barnes was called on but as he grabbed the oval on his way around left end he slipped and fell and was sailed for a four yard loss. Harry Thomas, in the game only a few hours after shaking off his scholastic difficulties, got back the loss in a drive through left tackle but there the assault on the line was abandoned and Rohrke booted a drop between the uprights from the 15 yard line.

Lampe Good on Defense.

Not a small factor in Chicago's defense was Lampe. He seemed to be everywhere and he was a Nemesis to Ohio in its aerial attack, which became hot in the closing moments with the shifty Workman heaving 'em far down the field, but with no luck.

Ohio started on its way to three points in the first quarter after a punt had been rolled over the visitor's goal. Wendler headed the rush with yards through left tackle. Workman broke loose around left end and when brought down was on Chicago's 33 yard line. A pass Southern to Wendler, added 15 yards. Four more plays deceived the Maroons back to their 7 yard line. Wendler reeled off two more yards, and Southern tried to do the same but King stopped him without a gain. Then Workman tried left tackle but lost ground so he dropped back to the 14 yard mark and kicked a placement over the bar.

On the kickoff after Ohio's placement, Wendler cut in with the dash that for an instant seemed a certain touchdown. He took the kick on his 20 yard line, shot through the scattered defense in front of him and went tearing along with nothing between him and the goal post.

Fyott Saves the Day.

The speedy Capt. Fyott suddenly came up out of nowhere, raced desperately toward the fleeing Buckeye and finally fell on him 15 yards from Chicago's goal. Ohio then tried to pass, but failed and when Workman was thrown for a 15 yard loss by Barnes, the Ohioan's last big chance was gone.

OHIO CRUMBLES BEFORE MAROONS' DRIVE

John Thomas, for three years a Maroon grid hero, tore through the entire Ohio State team yesterday to score Chicago's first major counter. In this picture Thomas is shown eluding the grasping Wendler, Buckeye half back, on the start of the 54 yard run which put the Midway men in the lead. The play which resulted in the touchdown was the first legal play called by Bob Curley, diminutive quarter back, who is seen standing just behind Joe Pondelik (No. 8).

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The Minnesota football team today stamped itself as a formidable contender for the Big Ten championship when they ran over Iowa in a workshod manner in the homecoming game here, 20 to 7.

The Gophers, using a most deceptive attack, scored one touchdown in the middle of the first quarter, another in the second, and one more in the third. Iowa's only score came in the third period, when Fry fumbled the ball as he was going over the goal and Otte fell on it for a touchdown. The Hawkeyes seriously threatened the Gopher goal line again in the last period, but an incompleted pass spoiled their chances.

Martineau Stars.

The game found Art Martineau, Minnesota's spectacular captain, playing the greatest game of his career. He simply could not be stopped. Running from punt formation, he tore off hair raising gains, ranging all the way from 5 to 15 yards. Malcolm Graham, fastest Gopher, also made fine dashes.

Martineau's greatest play came on the second Minnesota touchdown, when, on a fake pass, he stepped right through the center of the Iowa line for 25 yards and a score. Again in the third period the flashy Gopher captain tore around the Iowa end and through the entire Hawkeye team for another sensational touchdown.

Martineau's kicking was superb, his punts averaging from 40 to 55 yards. He was hurt on the last play of the game, and as the whistle sounded thousands of his enthusiastic admirers rushed onto the field and carried him to the armory as the 25,000 fans gave him one of the greatest receptions a Minnesota athlete ever received.

In the middle of the first quarter, after an exchange of punts, Minnesota started its drive for a touchdown. Graham tore off a 19 yard run around right end. Martineau carried the ball to midfield in two tries. The Gopher captain tried again and made 17 yards through a broken field. After a pass to Graham had gained 8 yards, Martineau heaved a pass to Eklund over the goal line for a touchdown. Abramson kicked goal.

With the ball in midfield at the start of the second quarter, Martineau broke away for a brilliant 25 yard gain to the Iowa 25 yard mark. On the next play, a deceptive double pass, the Gopher leader stepped through the center of the Hawkeyes' line for another heart throbbing run over the line.

Hawkeyes Rally.

The battling Hawkeyes came back in a vicious manner in the third period. They used a dazzling passing attack that carried them from their own 28 yard line straight down the field for a touchdown. One heave, Fry to Hancock, gained twenty-eight yards. Another, J. Graham to Hancock, put the ball on Minnesota's 12 yard line.

Here the visitors were favored by a 15 yard Minnesota penalty for roughness, which put the ball on the Gophers' 3 yard line. As Fry was about to cross the goal line, he fumbled, but Otte fell on the ball for a score. Fisher kicked goal.

It was only a few minutes later that Minnesota scored again. Getting possession of the ball on his own 45 yard line, Martineau broke loose for a 18 yard gain. The Gopher leader then carried the ball to Iowa's 27 yard line on a zigzag run.

Lidberg plunged for three yards, and then Martineau pulled another star play, when, after a double pass, he slipped off right tackle and ran twenty-four yards for the final score of the game. Iowa threatened again in the last period, but after taking the ball to the Minnesota 9 yard line, a pass, Fry to Otte, over the goal line, was knocked down.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—For the second time in the 1923 season Northwestern journeyed into Indiana, outplayed an opponent throughout an entire game, and lost, when the Purple dropped the game which cinched for it the cellar championship of the Big Ten here today, Purdue winning, 6 to 3. The game was Purdue's homecoming.

The Boilermakers paraded down the field with a barrage of bewildering passes in the final quarter and turned defeat into victory, Joe Prout climaxing the gallop by romping over the goal line for the winning score.

Leading up to this, two passes—one a lateral toss from Harry Jacobs to Harmison, and a trick play on fourth down, in which a heave from Prout to Carlson netted some thirty yards—picked the plum out of the pie for Purdue. Ravenscraft's attempt for the extra point went wild.

Purple Scores First.

Northwestern tallied in the middle of the third quarter when Rae Lauder signaled fair catch to Taube's punt and Guy Davis got a free try for goal. He sailed the ball over in a beautiful place-kick from the 42 yard line.

Up to the time of the Purdue score the Purple had the edge in the running attack, defense, and every department except the booting. McElwain's punts gained more ground than Taube's, however, for the Purple flank men bore down under the oval and usually nailed the runner in his tracks.

Northwestern had its hopes dashed in the first quarter when Capt. Bill McElwain caught Taube's punt, skirted the side lines, and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Field Judge Nick Kearns, however, spied Mac stepping out of bounds on the 45 yard line and the ball was called back.

Purdue Gains Small.

During the first half Purdue did not gain more than 4 yards on an attempt and the Purple made nine first downs. Bob Weinecke made considerable headway through the line, but received a kick in the knee, and Ras Lauder, who replaced him, from that time on ripped, squeezed, and socked his way through the line for steady advances.

When the fourth quarter started the ball was well toward the Purdue goal. Then the Boilermakers started their parade down the field. M. Bahr rammed the line, skirted the ends and slipped away for consistent gains, and Joe Prout broke loose with a 20 yard run. Carlson and Melvin Taube also shared in the rewards of Purdue's big effort by getting in on the receiving end of numerous passes from Harry Jacobs and Wellman.

The crucial play was on the fourth down, with Northwestern fighting to stop the battering attack. Joe Prout dropped back as if to drop kick, then shot a rainbow pass to Carlson, who went down 3 yards from the goal. Prout then carried the leather windbag over for the winning tally.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Illinois, with its regular back field on the bench for the greater part of the game, ran through Mississippi A. and M. for a 27 to 0 victory in the last home game of the season here today. "Red" Grange, sensational half back, and Swede Hall, quarter, were not started, while Earl Britton and Wallie McElwain, other regular backs, played little more than a quarter.

Two 15 yard penalties for holding held the Illini up at the start of the game, but they drove through for their first touchdown within the first ten minutes of play, McElwain going over after he and Rune Clark had brought the ball down from midfield.

Clark Scores.

End runs by Clark and Schultz's plunging had the ball on the southerners' 25 yard line at the end of the first period, and Clark made Illinois' second score in the opening minutes of the second. A pass, Clark to Britton, for twenty-five yards, put the ball on the Mississippi 11 yard line and paved the way for the third Illinois touchdown, made by Coutchie.

Schultz was mainly responsible for the Illinois score at the opening of the second half, carrying the ball over from the 3 yard line after his plunging had advanced it from his own 40 yard line.

Mississippi Threatens.

Mississippi twice threatened the Illinois goal line with its forward pass attack, and twice failed to make passes good in dangerous spots.

In the third period, Sudduth intercepted an Illinois pass deep in his own territory, and raced to midfield. Young's passes to Lane and Perkins put the ball on the 20 yard line, but Illinois braced. Again in the final period Mississippi got to the Illinois 7 yard line, but failed in the pinch.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Notre Dame returned to form today with a 34-7 victory over Butler, which was featured by a 65 yard return of a punt through the entire Butler team by Harry Stuhldreher, the Hoosier quarter back. It was the second time this year that Stuhldreher has returned sixty-five yards for a touchdown, the other performance being made against Georgia Tech.

Don Miller, star half back, was hurt after a brilliant 38 yard dash, and Connell, who replaced him, uncorked the most fighting brand of running ever seen here this year.

Dashes of twenty and thirty yards by Crowley led to the first score. Layden plunged center for long gains all day, scored two touchdowns and ran thirty-three yards for another touchdown, which was not allowed.

Notre Dame made twenty-four first downs. Butler was held to one first down until the last quarter, when a mass attack, in which Griggs and Woods starred, made four downs.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Wheaton High, champion of the Little Seven conference, was defeated by Mooseheart at Mooseheart this afternoon, 20 to 14, in a hard fought battle. Both Wheaton touchdowns were the result of forward passes.

RUMORS FLY AS N.U.-LAKE FOREST GAME IS DROPPED

Following exceptions taken to conduct of some Lake Forest university football players in the grid game with Northwestern a week ago, Athletic Director Dana M. Evans of Northwestern university yesterday announced that the basketball game with the Gold Coasters, scheduled for Evanston on Dec. 15, had been canceled. Evans, however, refused to confirm a report that all athletic relations between the two schools have been severed.

Purple Eyes Turn Black.

Several Purple players came out of the game a week ago with black eyes and bitter comment over some of the happenings on the field of play.

"We do not think that the healthiest feeling would prevail if Lake Forest played basketball on our floor this winter," said Director Evans, commenting on the canceled basketball game. He would make no other comment, but indicated that Purple officials were in possession of information which justified the action taken.

Campus All "Het Up."

What transpired on the field has been one of the principal topics of discussion on the Purple campus for the last week, especially among the players who came into the most intimate contact with the Lake Forest team.

CORNELL BEATS JOHNS HOPKINS ON WET FIELD

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—On a sloppy field Cornell defeated Johns Hopkins, 83 to 0, rolling up eight touchdowns. The visitors presented a lineup only half of which was regular, injuries keeping some of the first string men out of the game. They put up a game fight, but were no match for the powerful Dobie machine, though on two occasions they held Cornell for downs inside of the 15 yard line. Capt. George Pfann, as usual, played a brilliant game, making many spectacular runs. Lineup:

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Yale did just about all the modern things known to football today and romped over Princeton in the annual grid classic at the Yale bowl by a score of 27 to 0. Yale at last has thoroughly awakened to the fact that football today is different from the old days when the Blue rushed its foes by sheer strength. The Bulldog has become alert, strategic and cunning.

Using modern methods of attack as well as defense, Yale scored three touchdowns and two field goals against its historic rival of fifty years standing, and never was in danger.

Princeton was clearly outclassed in every way except punting. But the booting of Van Gerbig and Legendre, strong as it was, couldn't make up for the brilliant open field running and forward passing of the Yale men.

Second Biggest Score.

Sparkling runs by Stevens, Richeson, and Neidlinger stood out as the features of the contest, but Capt. Mallory of the Blue broke into the limelight by dropping two field goals. It was by far the most pronounced victory score was 39 to 0.

Ted Jones' men used the forward pass when not expected. They ran all kinds of plays from a punting or passing formation. They used split plays in attacking the Tiger line. They always were doing the unexpected, and it kept the biggest throng that ever was packed into the bowl—a throng of some 50,000—in a state of excitement from start to finish.

The Unexpected.

For instance, in the first quarter a touchdown was scored in a manner that would have made Knute Rockne envious. After a brief bit of punting, perhaps two or three exchanges of kicks, Yale had the ball on its own 40 yard line.

Neale dropped back in a punting formation, but after getting the ball he just faked a kick, then hurled an arrow shot right over the middle of the line to Richeson, who plucked the ball out of the air and dashed on for a total gain of 42 yards to Princeton's 18 yard line.

Such daring stuff by Yale wasn't expected. From the 18 yard line Yale was able to crash on over the goal. Three plays took the ball to the 6 yard line, and, though the Tiger line held hard, Yale went over from there on four smashes, Pond hitting the final blow.

Have Defense, Too.

In the next quarter Princeton, in desperation, started an aerial attack. But the Yale men have learned a defense for it. The visitors always were covered, and finally Luman of Yale snatched one of Princeton's passes out of the air and dashed to the 15 yard line.

This time Yale could not crash its way over the line, so it called Capt. Mallory back to try his educated toe. Result: Three more points.

A short time later Capt. Mallory again was called upon to use his toe and again booted the ball over.

The Tiger Threatens.

In the third period Princeton made its only real threat. Yale seemed content to play a defensive game and there was much punting. However, after one kick, the Tigers decided to try to carry the ball. They were successful. They made two first downs, advancing into Yale territory. But Yale braced and Princeton punted. The ball came down on Yale's 8 yard line and no attempt was made to touch it. Yale then was in some danger.

Neale dropped back of his own goal line as if to punt. But instead, Richeson took a short pass and hit the Tiger in the middle. He made only 3 yards. Again Neale dropped back. This time the ball was passed to him. Tiger ends were charging upon him hoping to block the kick. He faked a movement as if to kick, just to draw those men in close, then tucked the ball under his arm and circled around right end to the 34 yard line before being stopped. It was a clever and keen thing to do. Maybe it was daring but the 1923 Yale team is doing daring things.

Punts Out of Danger.

A moment later Princeton was back in Yale territory, but only for a moment. Van Gerbig fumbled, and a wide awake Yale man was on the ball in an instant.

Almost immediately the fleet Mr. Stevens got loose for a sparkling 45 yard run, and it was Yale threatening Princeton's goal again. At this point Neidlinger was sent into the fray, and the first thing he did was race 15 yards to the 9 yard line, from where the Blue crashed its way through for a touchdown.

Alert and modern methods brought still another touchdown in the final period. Princeton, as was expected, opened up with a daring aerial attack in a desperate effort to score. But the Yale men were on top of the receiver much of the time, and finally Stevens intercepted one of the passes on Princeton's 28 yard line.

From there Neidlinger and Stevens, in their romping, dashing, and dodging style, carried the ball over for the final touchdown. An 11 yard assault by the sprightly Mr. Neidlinger finished the drive.

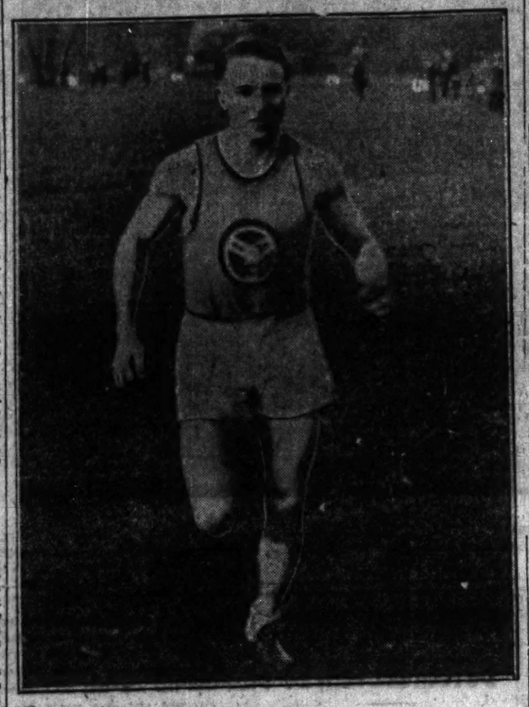
JOIE RAY WINS AGAIN



Fleet I. A. C. runner who led his team to victory yesterday in the Tribune's first annual cross-country race in Humboldt park.

Joie Ray Leads I. A. C. Team to Victory in Tribune Race

competed in a dual cross country run of five miles with Northwestern college at Naperville at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and finished in first place. Hopping into an automobile the Maroon drove to Humboldt park and proceeded to run in THE TRIBUNE event.

For the first two miles Bourke raced at the heels of the speedy Ray. Then when Joie started to put on his finish dash in the final mile, Bourke, weakened from his run in the morning, dropped behind, but still held second place, and it was only in the last seventy-five yards of the run up the stretch that Bourke wilted under the sprinting pace set by White and Wharton and was nosed out by inches.

Ray Class of Field.

The Maroon runner is to be congratulated for his display of sportsmanship. Entered to run in THE TRIBUNE race and called off almost at the eleventh hour when Athletic Director A. A. Stagg of the university decreed that the Maroon team should run at Naperville and pass up THE TRIBUNE event, Bourke was the only Maroon to attempt the two races. Entered and announced as a starter in the race at Humboldt park, Bourke made the two races and was a winner in both events.

Ray ran a careful race and was easily the class of the field. Jumping out in front of the pack at the start, Joie increased his stride while the other harriers seemed to tire, and at the end of the three mile journey was in great shape.

Sprints Decide Places.

Following the blanket finish of the second, third, and fourth place men, the rest of the runners were strung out along the course and finished in groups of two, three, and four. Many of the places were decided on the final stretch, which was on the big meadow in front of the refectory.

Gold medals were awarded the first ten finishers in the run, with silver medals for the second ten, and bronze medals for the third ten. The big silver cup for the team prize goes to the Illinois A. C. team, which is coached by John W. Behr, who has developed several great athletes at the Tri-color club.

Ten Thousand See Race.

Park officials estimated that more than 10,000 fans saw the race. Many lined the course on the back stretch and on the turns, while 2,000 were grouped at the finish mark.

Following is the order of finish of the twenty runners who followed the thirty medal winners:

31—J. Sitkawies, Illinois A. C.
32—C. B. Carlson, Illinois A. C.
33—C. Mochle, U. of Iowa.
34—Ray McHurk, unattached.
35—Ted Lapins, Unique A. C.
36—E. Stein, Kenosha, Wis.
37—George Hessler, Logan Square A. C.
38—R. Hessler, Logan Square A. C.
39—John J. Gallagher, Illinois A. C.
40—E. Bawley, Illinois A. C.
41—A. Konant, Unique A. C.
42—Henry Ford, Ogden Park.
43—M. Seashore, U. of Iowa.
44—J. Tigerman, Illinois A. C.
45—J. Jacks, Carl Schurz High school.
46—Walter Burt, Ogden Park.
47—W. Wilson, U. of Iowa.
48—C. Seashore, U. of Iowa.
49—A. Houser, U. of Iowa.
50—John Hessler, Logan Square A. C.

THANK YOU

THE TRIBUNE wishes to thank officials of the West Park board, of the West Park police, the Amateur Athletic union, and other officials who gave so unsparingly of their time to make the first annual cross country run of the Tribune A. A. at Humboldt Park yesterday so successful an event. The West Park board through President E. T. Farrar, and Commissioners Elizabeth Hoyt, Jacob Geiserich, John O. Kruse, Joseph Mersot, and Joseph Siman authorized the race, and William Stocker, superintendent of the boulevards of the West parks; William Barclay, general superintendent of the parks, and Julius Maslaj, foreman of Humboldt park, all helped to lay the ground and plan the course for the runners. Acting officials at the meet aided in making the cross country race one of the most successful events of its kind ever staged in Chicago. Many thanks, gentlemen.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—For the second year in succession, Brown triumphed over Harvard today, adding a 20 to 7 victory to the 3 to 0 success in 1922.

The break today came in the third period, when Pfaffman's try for a field goal was blocked by Stifler, who picked up the ball and ran 65 yards for a touchdown which broke a 7 to 7 tie. In the fourth period Dixon broke through the center of Harvard's line and raced 63 yards for a touchdown, aided by fine interference.

Harvard started with many second string men in the lineup, but they were unable to cope with Brown as the game waned. Near the end of the game, Harvard forward passed its way to Brown's 10 yard line, but Higgins intercepted another pass on his 1 yard line.

Capt. Spellman, until he was hurt in the fourth period, starred for Brown, and Talbot, a sub end, several times made beautiful tackles for Harvard losses. Grew, Harvard guard, injured a leg in the first half.

GOPHER HARRIER SETS BIG TEN RECORD IN RACE

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—Lyman Brown, star of the University of Minnesota cross country team, hung up a new Big Ten record in the dual meet with Iowa here today, negotiating the five mile course in 25:17 2-10. Brown's phenomenal performance, however, was not sufficient to give Minnesota a win, Iowa sweeping through with the victory by a one point margin, 28 to 27.

Brown's new record supplants the mark hung up by Fred Watson, Gopher cross-country champion of 1915. The old record stood at 25:47.

Michigan Wins.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—Michigan won the annual cross-country run with Wisconsin here today by a score of 21 to 34. The first three places went to the Wolverine runners, Davis and Capt. Arndt breaking the tape first, followed by Rearick. Piper of Wisconsin finished fourth. Time—26:03. It was the first defeat of the season for the Wisconsin team.

Ames Wins Valley Race.

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 17.—Ames won the Missouri Valley conference cross-country run here today with 36 points. G. S. McIntyre of Ames was the first in, covering the five mile stretch in 28:05. The Missouri team was second, Nebraska third, Kansas fourth, Kansas Aggies fifth, Oklahoma sixth, and Washington seventh.

OREGON AGGS TIE.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 17.—Luck was with the Oregon Agricultural college eleven today in its annual contest with the Washington State college football team, and the Oregonians went home with a tie score, 3 to 3.

RUTGERS BURIES BOSTON U.

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Rutgers overwhelmed Boston university, 61 to 0. Boston looked good in the first quarter, holding Rutgers scoreless, but weakened rapidly in the second quarter. Bunkert got three touchdowns.

CHAMPIONSHIP CALIBER

MISS MILDRED HORROCKS, University of Chicago co-ed, is out for the women's discus title, and bids fair to cop it. She has bettered the present mark with a heave of 99 feet 8 inches in practice at Stagg field. Her athletic prowess also extends to the high jumping domain, her best leap being for 4 feet, 7½ inches. She is active in women's athletics, and is prominent in campus activities. Miss Horrocks, who is a senior at the Midway, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Horrocks of 455 East 50th street.

COLGATE SMEARS 16-7 BEATING ON SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Whatever chances Syracuse had of being ranked at the top of the football heap this fall were blasted with a loud report when Colgate triumphed over the hitherto unbeaten Syracuse eleven, 16 to 7, before 28,000 spectators today.

Tryon proved to be a veritable demon in carrying the ball. He knifed his way through the Orange forward wall time and again for gains of 4 to 5 yards. The majority of the holes opened up for him were by Welsh, who, playing his final game for Colgate, was in the thick of every play. Lineup:

WABASH PASSES WIN OVER INDIANA, 29-6

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Wabash forward pass plays beat Indiana, 29 to 6, here today, every touchdown of the visitors being made via the aerial route, besides an additional three points from placement.

The opening period saw both teams fighting on even terms until Singleton dropped back for a place kick from Indiana's 25 yard line. In the second quarter a pass, Duffy to Johnson, was good for 35 yards and a touchdown, and then Lawrence Marks, Indiana's flashy half back, was injected into the fracas and ran around left end 40 yards for Indiana's lone score. Five minutes later Johnson intercepted an Indiana pass and legged it 30 yards for a touchdown.

Marks was injured at the start of the third period and was replaced by Prucha. A pass, Duffin to Eliot, resulted in a touchdown, followed by the same play, Duffin to Elliot, for another. In the final period a pass, Duffin to Singleton, completed the scoring.

VAN DOOZER OF '95 BEST PURPLE GRID WARRIOR

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

When an effort is made to select the greatest football player who ever wore the Purple of Northwestern one must go back to a time when none of the present day stars were born. The musty files must be brought out of their dusty cases and the brittle leaves turned over carefully for fear of failing to pieces.

Nevertheless this had to be done to bestow the honor on Jess F. Van Doozer, the great half back who played in 1892, '93, '95, and '96. While some may not agree with this selection, it is true that Van Doozer was the type of player who would be just as efficient in this present game of football as when he played with Potter as a running mate and Joe Hunter directing the team's attack from the quarter back position.

None So Valuable.

While it is true Northwestern has been represented on the gridiron by some excellent players, including Paddy Driscoll, Turner, Johnson, Allen, and many others, none was of the value to his team that Van Doozer proved to be in the days of the mass play and push and pull formations. Fast afoot, an excellent dodger, and strong defensively, Van had all the qualifications of a great back, who would have performed even more creditably under the present rules.

The great Purple star of those days had an uncanny knack of leaving no interference on attempted end runs to cut back through the line or just off the tackle. He was ever quick to take an opening and shot through it with the speed of a sprinter. He had so much momentum that he seldom failed to make ground when opposition was met. In those days the single line of defense was used, with the half backs smashing the interference and the ends delegated to either nail the runner or turn him to the inside so that a teammate could make the tackle.

Driscoll Rivals Van.

When he played in the defensive half back's position, Van Dooer seldom failed to smash the interference in the proper manner. At times he drove through so hard he spoiled formations before they were even under way. Aside from his individual offensive duties, he was a past master in buckling on a tackle on the almost now extinct tackle around play.

Possibly the nearest approach to Van Dooser is Paddy Driscoll, who is playing much better football professionally than he ever did in college.

Johnson, the quarter back, who played with the Carlisle Indians and then came to Northwestern, was another excellent player. Turner, the lad who learned his football at Englewood High school, was a dandy end who would have made any team in the country. Harry Allen was an excellent forward, and, going back into the dark ages again, there were Levings, Pearce, Perry, Dietz brothers, and Ward.

Of more recent years there were Hightower, Aires, Brightmire, and Palmer. While many others could be mentioned, the honor goes to Van Doozer, although he is scarcely remembered by any of the present generation of football players and fans.

165,000 Miles

MY MARMON'S HISTORY began with the war, and since that time I have driven it upward of 165,000 miles.

"During the war it was used on mining explorations, traveling in every state east of the Mississippi—on rough mountain roads, deep sands of the South, and the sticky clay of the lowlands.

"It was often used for weeks at a time, driven 24 hours every day, by three different engineers. The engine was never allowed to cool."

CHICAGO TEAMS DRAWN IN U. S. SOCCER MEET

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The draw for the third round of the national open soccer championships, conducted at Hotel Astor today resulted in Chicago F. C. being drawn at home to Bricklayers, Thistles at home to Olympia, and Harvey F. C. at home to Canadian club. The dates of play will be determined by the clubs.

In the Missouri-Southern Illinios district, Vesper Buicks of St. Louis were matched with Trumbulls or Ben Millers; Ben St. Matthews or Scullin Steel with Granite [Ill.] F. C.

In the draw for the first round of the national amateur soccer championships held this week at Newark, N. J., four clubs in the Illinois district were drawn as follows: Pullman, Harvey, Scottish Americans, and Scottish Bluebells of Indiana Harbor. In the draw for the second round, which must be played on or before Dec. 9, the draw is: Pullman and Scottish Bluebells at Indiana Harbor, and Harvey and Swedish Americans at Chicago.

The winner of the amateur championship will represent the United States in the Olympic soccer games at Paris in May.

SCOTCH VS. BRICKIES

Twice balked by rain, the Bricklayer and Thistle soccer teams are scheduled at Cicero avenue and Roosevelt road for the main attraction in the major league schedule this afternoon. The Bricklayers are the only team with a clean slate. The Brickies have one defeat on their record. The bricklayer attack has been strengthened by the Walker brothers, and should keep the Thistle defense men busy. Pullman will tackle the Sparta Unions at 27th street and Kostner avenue in a major league game. Today's games are:

MAJOR LEAGUE.
Bricklayers and Thistles at Cicero avenue and Roosevelt road; Pullman and Spartans at 27th street and Kostner avenue.

EXHIBITION GAMES.
Canadian Club and Swedish-Americans at Garfield Park; Olympia and Kenosha at 31 avenue and 19th street.

FEDERAL CUP.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE.
Thistle F. C. and Danish-Americans at Kenosha and Robey; Western Electric "B" and Norwegians Ill. at Kostner avenue and Roosevelt; Victoria Ill. and Sparta Ill. at Kostner and Wrightwood avenues; Danish Vikings and Vienna Ill. at Humboldt parks; Y. M. C. A. of Detroit at Winnemac and Robey; Sparta of Grand Crossing club at 87th street and Kostner avenue [1 p. m.].

ON MILLER HAS RIB BROKEN IN N. D. U. VICTORY

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Don Miller, Notre Dame's lightest half back star, received a broken rib in today's 54 to 7 victory over Butler and will be out for this season. The injury came when he was tackled after making a brilliant 38 yard run. Notre Dame will face Carnegie Tech next Saturday without its star. Last year in the Butler game Paul Castner received a fractured hip and could not play against Nebraska and Carnegie Tech.

THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT

ACE KICKERS TO VIE WHEN CARDINALS AND DULUTH PLAY TODAY

TWO of the foremost kickers of the National Professional Football league, as well as two topnotch elevens, will vie for honors at White Sox park this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the battle for the runner-up position when the Chicago Cardinals, with Paddy Driscoll doing the booting, and Duluth, having Joe Stevenaman, clash.

The Cardinals' strong front line will be given a severe test in the tracas. Harris, full back from Syracuse; Gilbert, half back from Valparaiso, and Method, one of the best independent backs ever developed, are crushing plungers. They have ripped every line they have faced. However, the Cardinal forwards are intent upon checking the northmen's smashes with their usually strong front line. Lineup:

CARDINALS.		DULUTH.
L. E.	Anderson	O'Donnell
L. T.	Gillies	Johnson
L. G.	Brakeye	Steele
C.	McInerney	Mahigan
R. G.	Zois	Williams

OPAL GRIDDERS SEEK 3D CROWN VIA CABS

Opal A. A. gridders, twice champions of the Midwest league, will attempt to use the Yellow Cabs to carry them to their third straight league crown at Cermak park this afternoon in one of the twenty-two Midwest league games scheduled in the advance elimination round. The Opals are undefeated in the league race, but may find serious opposition from the revamped cabmen's backfield, which now includes a number of former college stars.

Chicago Blues will have a tough assignment at Pyott park against the Stayma, who will have Al Specht, flying copper, who won the sprint events in the recent policemen's track and field meet, at one half. The home team will have its full strength in the game.

Harvey at Pullman, Murleys at Forest Park, Club Records at Evanston, Lapham A. C. vs. Rossland Feathers at 115th and Halsted, Dundee vs. Tri-City Boosters at Geneva, Amos A. A. vs. Waukegan, Independence Park at Logan Square, Perlins Park at Park Ridge, Englewood Crescents at Hammond Scotsmen, West Arros vs. Pathfinders at Austin Park, All-Suburbans vs. Maywood at La Grange, Famous Chicago vs. Magnars at Rockwell and Kenilworth, Wacos at Hegewisch, Modocs vs. Maplewood Orioles at De Paul field, Unions at Norwood Park, Jack Rabbits vs. Philipsborns at Morton High field, Whiting Friars at East Chicago Dodgers, Junior Sportsmen at Highwood, Condare vs. A. C. vs. Cicero Boosters at Morton High field.

ROCK ISLAND TO GUN FOR BEARS TODAY ON NORTH SIDE GRIDIRON

ROCK ISLAND Independents invade Cub park today for their second skirmish of the year with the Chicago Bears. The Islanders defeated the north side team at the opening of the season and their backers think they will repeat the dose.

Led by three of the University of Iowa's greatest linesmen, Tackle Duke Slater, End Kadesky and Guard Thompson, and captained by B. Sies, Pittsburgh all-American lineman and famous kicker of a few years back, the Rock Island team is one of the most formidable that has come to the north side all year.

They will find the locals in top form, however. The Bears probably will open up with an all Illinois back field: Sternaman and Lanum at halves and Knop at full. Bryan, ex-Maroon, will play quarter back. The game starts at 2 o'clock. Lineup:

CHICAGO BEARS.		ROCK ISLAND.

GIRLS' HOCKEY TEAMS IN BENEFIT CONTEST

Winnetka and Lake Forest girls' hockey teams will play a benefit game this afternoon at the North Shore Country Day school field at Winnetka at 2:30 o'clock. The proceeds of the game will go towards defraying the expenses of the team which will represent the Chicago Field Hockey association in the national tournament at Philadelphia the week of Nov. 26.

Yale's Star Tackle Also Stars in Game of Love

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17.—C. A. (Centurp) Milstead of Rock Island, Ill., star tackle on the Yale team, went into the Princeton game today in a particularly happy frame of mind because this evening his engagement to Miss Mildred Bechtel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Bechtel of Milford, Conn., is to be announced. They met at a school dance a year ago.

Johnston City, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Johnston City ended its 1923 football season in Egyptian conference today by defeating Marion 13 to 7.

TODAY IS 35TH ANNIVERSARY OF U. S. GOLF GAME

BY JOHN KELLEY.

Devotees of golf will commemorate today the thirty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of "ye royal and ancient" game in the United States. Although the game was played early in the year 1888 by a coterie of wealthy New Yorkers, the first club was organized Nov. 13 of that year, and called the St. Andrews Golf club of Yonkers. It was a six hole course.

Robert Lockhardt, the first American golfer, taught the game to John Reid, who in turn initiated several friends into the mysteries of the pastime. Mr. Reid was elected the first president of the St. Andrews club and he held the office several years.

Fifteen years before golf was introduced in this country the Scotch pastime was played in Canada by the Royal Montreal Golf club.

Our First Golfers.

Among the first golfers in these parts were Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, Judge Murray F. Tuley, Charles B. MacDonald, James B. Forgan, Miss "Johnny" Carpenter, J. A. Ryerson, Eliphalet W. Cramer, William R. Stirling, Frank S. Gorton, Stuyvesant Le Roy, Russell Tyson, Herbert J. Tweedie, Slason Thompson, and A. Haddow Smith. In 1892 Chatfield-Taylor and a chosen few organized a golf club at Lake Forest. The course was small, extending over a tract of about fifteen acres. The following year (world's fair) brought a number of English and Scotch visitors to Chicago who were enthusiastic golfers. These visitors, meeting Charles B. MacDonald at the Lake Forest links, interested him in the formation of a club, which resulted in the organization of the Chicago Golf club. The date of incorporation was July 14. A tract of land was leased at Belmont, Du Page county, about twenty-two miles from Chicago on the C., B. & Q. railroad, and a nine hole course was located thereon. The membership of this pioneer golf club was about forty, half of whom were foreigners who had come to Chicago for the Columbian exposition.

At the close of the fair the foreign members returned to their respective homes, leaving only twenty members of the Chicago Golf club. During the winter of 1893-94 Mr. MacDonald, who was an expert at the game, interested several friends who, the following spring, became members.

Abandon Belmont Links.

Having become dissatisfied with the location of the Belmont links, the club on Dec. 14, 1894, authorized the purchase of 200 acres of land at Wheaton. Here the following year a club house was built and a beautiful course laid out.

A few days after the meeting at which the Chicago Golf club decided to abandon the Belmont links, Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Ryerson represented this city at the formation of the United States Golf association. At that time there were about seventy-five courses in the United States. Representatives of five of the leading clubs, namely the St. Andrews, the Newport, the Country Club of Brookline, Mass., the Shinnecock Hills club of Long Island, and the Chicago Golf club met in New York City and formed the national association.

Short Course at Lake Geneva.

In that year Samuel W. Allerton's place at Lake Geneva had a course of a few holes. One of the men seen at that course was the cartoonist, John T. McCutcheon, who now, after twenty-eight years of practice, is a rather noted player.

With the establishment of public links in large cities the popularity of the sport was given an impetus which rapidly spread to all parts of the country.

LOCAL GOLF

ALTHOUGH it generally has been understood that the women's national championship was slated for the Boston district, there is rumor that this plan may be changed and the tournament given to a north side club here. The last tournament staged here was at Onwentsia in 1916, when Mrs. W. H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia won.

The Chicago-Ohio football game yesterday caused a postponement of the match between President Charles E. Walgreen and Arthur Haigh for the "Old Nineteenth" trophy at Beverly.

The Chicago Daily Fee Course association will hold a meeting on Tuesday night at the office of Dr. Francis J. Rose, 31 North State street, to elect officers and adopt bylaws.

Mark Henry, playing from scratch, finished with 81 and tied with F. McCombie, 94—3—91, yesterday in an informal sweepstakes contest at Edgewater which drew a field of seventy-five members. The course was heavy. Charles Evans, Jr., had 79 as the lowest gross score. J. W. Maslin, recent winner of the club title, finished with 83, while J. E. Murphy notched 86.

According to a report among south side golfers, the south park commissioners have been asked to consider a request for a nine hole course at Washington park. Those urging the installation of the course contend that the north end of the park contains enough space for nine holes.

AUBURN IS EASY FOR CENTRE, 17-0

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 17.—Centre college Colonels experienced little difficulty today in turning back the Auburn Plainsmen, 17 to 6, in their third annual game here. Covington, flashy Centre quarter back, was the individual star, skirting the Tigers' ends, plunging their line, throwing bewildering passes, and outpunting them. Fifteen thousand saw the game.

U. of Oklahoma Succumbs to U. of Texas, 26 to 14

Austin, Tex., Nov. 17.—In their annual gridiron classic here, featured by the brilliant playing of Oscar Eckhardt, Texas back field man, University of Texas defeated its traditional rival, University of Oklahoma, 26 to 14. In the last ten minutes the Sooners showed a flash of the running game for which they are noted in the Missouri Valley conference.

Many Teams Ready to Open Midwest Pin Meet

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17.—Teams from Chicago, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Indianapolis and St. Louis were set today to compete in the five men events, marking the first outside competition in the annual tournament of the Middle West Bowling association.

W. D. VANDERPOOL NAMED FOR HEAD OF U. S. GOLFERS

New York, Nov. 17.—Wyant D. Vanderpool of Newark, N. J., has been nominated to succeed J. Frederic Byers of Pittsburgh, as president of the United States Golf association for 1924. The U. S. G. A. nominating committee tonight made public its official slate for next year. Other nominees of the committee for 1924 are:

Vice presidents, Robert A. Gardner, Chicago; William C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburgh.
Secretary, Cornelius S. Lee, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.
Treasurer, Edward S. Moore, New York.
Counsel, Adrian H. Larkin, New York.

Mr. Vanderpool is a member of the Morris County (N. J.) Golf club, and now is one of the vice presidents of the U. S. G. A. Eight members of the executive committee, which also includes the officers, were nominated. They are:

Roger D. Lapham, San Francisco, president of the California Golf association; John R. Lemist, Denver, president of the Trans-Mississippi Golf association; Thomas E. Payne, Atlanta, representing the southern Golf associations; Charles C. Pfeil, Memphis, president of the Western Golf association; James D. Standish Jr., Detroit, representing public links golfers; William Stauffer, New Orleans; Henry H. Wilder, Brookline, Mass., representing New England, and Allan D. Wilson, Philadelphia.

The nominating committee, of which Findlay S. Douglas of New York is chairman, also selected the following nominating committee for 1924: Howard F. Whitney, New York; W. A. Alexander, Chicago; Rodney W. Brown, Boston, and H. Chandler Egan, Portland, Ore.

LOYOLA, USING 'SUBS,' CRUSHES ROSE POLY, 31-0

Rose Poly eleven was no match for the Loyola varsity yesterday, and the north siders tramped through the visitors from Terre Haute, 31 to 0, at Loyola field. Before it was over, Coach Roger Kiley had worked both his second and third stringers against the weak invaders. Lineup:

LOYOLA [31].		ROSE POLY [0].
R. E.—Scharenberg, McMahon		Hauer
R. T.—W. Flynn, Burke		Moorhead

JESS WILLARD THE WEAKEST HEAVY CHAMP

BY FRANK SMITH.

In ability as a heavyweight champion, Jess Willard is considered by experts to have been the most mediocre in the history of the prize ring. His recent attempted comeback verified the opinion often expressed that he was only a second rater at the best.

True, he was much older when he fell before the powerful blows of the giant, Luis Angel Firpo, than when he won the championship from Jack Johnson in Havana, Cuba, who in some quarters is alleged to have "laid down" before the Kansan because there never would be a chance for him to return to the good graces of the American public as a result of his conviction under the Mann act, and his subsequent flight from the country.

Willard had only thirty fights under his belt before he fought Johnson and none of them were with men considered of high caliber as fistiana is gauged.

Really Box Office Affair.

It was with the aid of a pair of promoters who saw great possibilities from a box office standpoint that Willard was matched with Johnson for a bout in Mexico. Johnson, who then was in Spain, got aboard a boat for Vera Cruz, but when informed that Uncle Sam probably would grab him if he stepped on Mexican soil, Jack stopped at Havana and invited the promoters to stage the bout there. This was done and Johnson kissed the canvas in round twenty-six on April 5, 1915, getting up with a grin on his face after the count of ten.

After he won from Johnson, Willard capitalized the victory by going on the stage, boxing a no-decision ten round bout with Frank Moran in New York and three exhibition affairs with Soldier Kearns, Jim Golden, and Tom Logan.

Then along came Jack Dempsey. The present champion was trained to the minute for their memorable fight in Toledo on July 4, 1919. Willard looked upon Dempsey as a "set-up" and refused to accept training advice from those who knew something about the game, and went into the ring in poor condition.

Short and Brutal Mêlée.

The story of that short and brutal mêlée is worth repeating. Here it is:

FIRST ROUND — Willard led with his left, which barely grazed Dempsey's nose. He followed with another left and a right to the body. They clinched. Willard led again. Dempsey stepped in and shot a left and right for the head. One of the punches raised a lump on Willard's right eye. Willard led with another left for the head, and Dempsey swung a right for the heart and landed a left on Willard's jaw. Jess dropped. At the count of three he was sitting up, half smiling. He took the full count of nine and when he got up Jack dropped him again with a right to the jaw. Jess rose slowly to his feet at the count of six. The blood was pouring from his mouth and his right cheek was cut wide open. He turned away from Dempsey, who landed on him again twice with his right, Willard falling on his hands and knees. When he arose Dempsey crowded him into a corner and with a right to the body and a hard left to the head sent him to the floor again. Jess rose at the count of eight. Dempsey was on top of him with a fusillade of body blows and dropped him again. Willard took the full count of nine and got up hanging on to the second rope with his right hand, half stooped over. Dempsey landed on him again with right to the body and two hard lefts to the face and jaw. Willard's face was now a mass of blood. He dropped for the sixth time and apparently was counted out. Dempsey left the ring and was halfway up the aisle to his dressing room when Referee Tex Rickard informed Jack's seconds that the bell had rung before he had counted ten. Dempsey was hurried back into the ring.

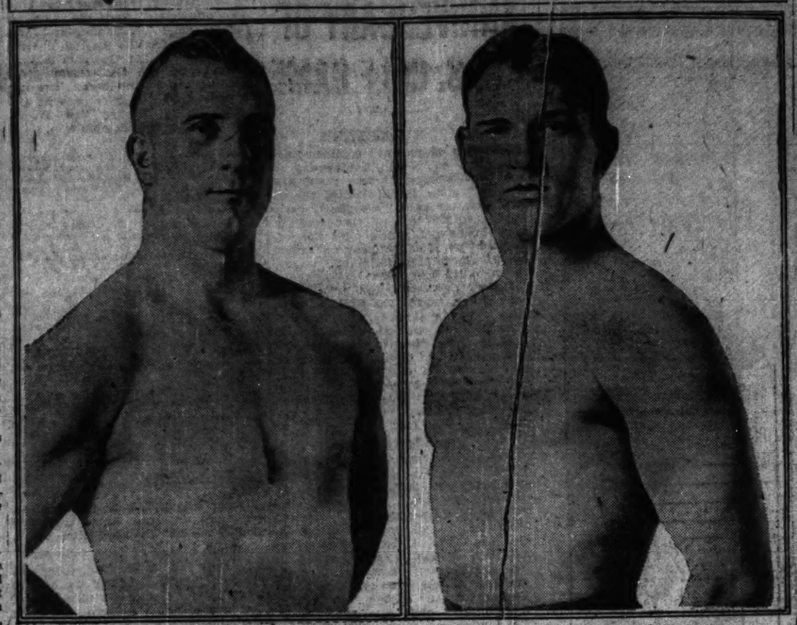
Dempsey Hurt.

ROUND TWO—Dempsey started a right for Willard's body. Jess blocked it and snapped a left to Dempsey's face and a hard right uppercut to Jack's jaw. They fell into a clinch. Dempsey seemed hurt and hung on for twenty seconds. They broke and Dempsey landed a left to Willard's badly cut face. Jack followed with rights and lefts to the jaw and body almost at will. At the bell Willard walked wabbly to his corner and fell heavily into his chair. His right eye was closed and that side of his face was cut and swollen entirely out of shape, while Dempsey was unmarked.

ROUND THREE—Willard staggered about the ring and wabbled along the ropes, unable to defend himself. Blood bubbled from his mouth with every gasp for breath. Dempsey was trying hard for a knockout, landing both rights and lefts. The crowd yelled to Rickard to stop the fight. Just as the bell rang Willard again fell into his chair. He spat out a tooth. His face and head were a mass of blood. Walter Monaghan, his chief second, talked earnestly to him. Willard nodded his head. Monaghan spoke to Rickard. The referee walked to Dempsey's corner, pulled Dempsey to the center of the ring, holding his hand high in the air.

Willard's seconds had thrown up the sponge. The fight had passed into history and Jack Dempsey was heavyweight champion of the world.

TWO NEW FACES IN LOCAL MAT CIRCLES



PAT M'GILL. FRANK JUDSON.

McGill, a farmer from Nebraska, and Judson, former wrestling coach at Harvard, are being boosted for a match here to settle their claims for consideration as heavyweight championship aspirants.

BY FRANK SMITH.

A giant from the west, which has produced so many good wrestlers, and another from eastern gymnasiums, and later of the navy, are among the new faces to be seen in the mat contests hereabouts.

Promoters old in the game have finally come to the conclusion that the fans want something new stacked up against the old fellows who now rank at the top of the various divisions. The Lewises, the Zbyszkos, the Plestinas, the Peseks have fought each other times innumerable for heavyweight laurels. The same thing applies to contenders in the middleweight and welterweight classes.

The latest new faces are those of Pat McGill, a farmer boy from the sticks of Nebraska, and Frank Judson, Harvard coach. The former has been beaten, yes, but point out a wrestler who hasn't. McGill, however, is young, just in his twenty-fifth year. To see him in citizen's clothes one would take him for anything but a wrestler. The telltale cauliflowered ears are absent and the bull neck is not there.

Stripped, McGill has no more muscle showing on his long frame than a woman. But nine-tenths of the fellows with bulging muscles have little chance with him. Pat, according to his friends, has few holds, but they appear sufficient for all purposes, for they are the kind that grind the very life out of an opponent.

The farmer's main suit is his scissors, applied on the order of a hook, and very effective on head or body. With his vicious holds, Pat has the strength to carry them through, coupled with speed and the endurance usually found in the outdoor man. In addition the Nebraskan is a great shooter, with the true Irish heart that knows no fear.

Judson a Big Fellow.

Rivaling McGill among the newcomers is Judson, whose real monicker is Jedlamski. He is of Polish parentage and was brought to this country while a babe. Now he tips the scales around 205 pounds and every ounce of it is bone, brawn, and muscle. Those who recall Frank Gotch marvel at the resemblance and only recently, after a grueling hour on the mat with Judson, Stanislaus Zbyszko, veteran of the game, proclaimed him as the coming second Gotch. Early in life Judson haunted the gymnasiums of Massachusetts and built up a remarkable physique, but it was in the navy five years ago that he actually started his mat activities. Frank liked the sport well enough to stick.

For upward of two years Judson has been coaching the Harvard wrestling class and has turned out some of the best amateur boys in the business. He is now on an extended tour and the entire body of the famous eastern university is pulling for him to annex the heavyweight title.

Why Not Match Them!

Why wouldn't it be a good plan to match this pair of giants and have them shoot it out? If half the stories of the prowess of the big fellows can be believed, the match should be worth going miles to witness.

Both have been wrestling around here for several weeks, taking on any one promoters could secure for them, and the showings made have been commendable.

12 QUINTETS OF K. OF C. LEAGUE IN GAMES TODAY

De Soto, last year's champion of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league, is one of the twelve quintets which will take the floor this afternoon in the opening of the annual championship race. The titleholders have practically the same lineup as last year, ruling the favorite in their game with O'Connor at Broadway armory, where north section games will be played. West section contests will take place at St. Ignatius gym, and south side games at the Eighth regiment armory. Today's schedule:

NORTH SECTION—O'Connor vs. De Soto; Columbus vs. Marquette; Setters vs. University; Browson vs. Hamerpin.

SOUTH—Dowling vs. Aquinas; Pores vs. McHale; Calumet vs. Loyola-Hyde Park; Englewood vs. La Rabida.

WEST—Feehan vs. Hildebrand; O'Connell vs. Tonti; Barry vs. American; St. Cyr vs. Charles Carroll.

King College Runs Season Score Up to 507 Points

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Nov. 17.—The Mountain Tornado of King college swept to decisive victory here this afternoon over Lynchburg college, 58 to 7, and brought its total score for the season up to 507 points, greater than that of any college team in the country. King college's total score in the last two seasons is now 1,005—498 points being compiled last season.

Including today's touchdown by Lynchburg, King's goal line has been crossed but twice this season. Elon College of North Carolina scored the other touchdown.

RIFLE MATCHES FOR CITY TITLE START FRIDAY

The city rifle championship matches held under auspices of the Chicago Rifle association will start Friday night, Nov. 30, for a ten weeks' schedule of shooting which will bring into competition three former city championship teams with other teams, and individuals representing the Commonwealth Edison company, Western Electric company, Hamilton club, Bell Telephone, Peoples Gas, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, Packard Motor, the city hall, University of Chicago, and the independent rifle and gun clubs of the city.

All clubs will shoot on their home ranges and the rules have been changed to permit any number of five man teams from each club, where formerly only one team was permitted.

Position Is Changed.

The old style prone position also has been changed to a combination of prone, sitting, and standing positions in order to eliminate so many perfect scores as were shot last year.

Among the individuals who will compete are present City Champion A. F. Hanke of the Irving Park club; former Champions Lively of Irving, Bronwell of the Edison club, and Burlingame of Centennial; last year's Leech champion, L. M. Felt; S. L. Touchton of Bell Telephone, iron sights champ, and E. D. Sulcer, last year's winner of the citizens' award in the President's match at Camp Perry, O.

Medals to Winners.

The Tribune trophy, gold, silver, and bronze medals, and merchandise prizes donated by leading business houses will be awarded to the winners.

Clubs or other organizations desiring to enter individuals or one or more teams of five men may phone or write A. F. Bronwell, 72 West Adams street, care of the Commonwealth Edison company.

DARTMOUTH JARS COLBY, 62 TO 0

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Dartmouth overwhelmed Colby, the Maine state champions, 62 to 0. After the Green regulars had plunged their way to four touchdowns in the first quarter, Coach Hawley rewarded the efforts of the scrubs by sending in practically all of the varsity squad in the remaining three quarters. Haws was outstanding for the Green. He made seven kicks after touchdown and scored four touchdowns. Lineup:

SIKI AND GEORGES ARE SHORN OF TITLES BY INTERNATIONAL BODY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Paris, Nov. 17.—[Tribune Radio.]—Battling Siki was shorn of his titles by the International Boxing union today. The union also declared Georges Carpentier, challenger for a return match, outlawed, and proclaimed the world's light heavyweight championship vacant. The next champion will be picked by a fight between some American boxer designated before July 31 and the winner of a match between two European fighters before April 30.

Siki has heretofore been recognized as the world's light heavyweight champion by the boxing union, despite his defeat by Mike McTigue last March 17 in Dublin. The union's ruling today fails to recognize McTigue, who is accepted as champion in America.

Representatives of Belgium, France, England, Italy, Luxemburg, Switzerland, and the United States, the latter represented by Tex O'Rourke, attended the session. They recognized the titles of Villa, Lynch, Dundee, Leonard, Walker, Greb, and Dempsey.

FIRPO ADMITS HE WAS "AN UNSUBSTITUTABLE" CONTESTANT FOR TITLE

Buenos Aires, Nov. 17.—Luis Firpo, who now is in Lagunas on his way to this city, said he had been able to prove that he was "an unsubstitutable contestant" for Jack Dempsey's title, despite the fact that he lost the fight at the Polo grounds last September.

The boxer said he had been disagreeably surprised by the publication in this city of reports censuring the conduct of his seconds at the championship battle. He praised his advisers and also commended the sparring partners who worked with him during his training campaign at Atlantic City.

Firpo asserted that his right to a return match had been clearly demonstrated by the flattering offers he has received. These included, he said, a motion picture offer of $10,000 weekly for twenty-one weeks. He added that Dempsey's best offer had been only $7,000 a week.

CHURCH LEAGUE BASKETBALL ON

Teams in the Church A. A. Basketball league will swing into action tomorrow night at the Normal Arts gym, 58th street and Stewart avenue, with three lightweight battles carded. Woodlawn Baptist meets Parkside M. E., Englewood M. E. plays Bethany Reformed and Lorimer Memorial Baptist and Rosedale Presbyterian clash. Other games will be played on Thursday and Friday nights.

WESTERN SKATE SEASON PLANS LAID TOMORROW

Frank M. Kaltenx, president of the Western Skating association, has called a meeting of the representatives of the clubs affiliated with the association at the Alverno A. A. clubhouse tomorrow night. The rules covering racing and eligibility of skaters will be discussed and revised, and plans for the winter season will be laid.

MARQUETTE PUTS SO. DAKOTA TO ROUT, SCORE 13-0

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Marquette's golden avalanche continued its two year winning streak here today by defeating South Dakota State, 13 to 0, but it got the biggest scare of the season. The Dakotans used a passing game throughout, and outplayed the Hilltoppers over half the time.

In the final quarter the Jackrabbits seriously threatened when a 35 yard pass from Welsh to Kelly put the ball on Marquette's 2 yard line. The play was called back because Welsh was not five yards behind the line of scrimmage. Lineup:

CUE STARS STAGE CLOSE RACE FOR W. G. BLAKE CUP

BY JOE DAVIS.

So close is the race for the William G. Blake cup in the Chicago Billiard league that the winning or losing of two games may make a difference of many positions.

Charley Le Gros of the Casino was the biggest hurdler of the week, his two victories advancing him from twelfth to third place. Helberg of the Belfield room, who was third last week, also won two games, but was unable to jump higher than to first place, which last week was held by Augie Kleckhefer, who was twice defeated.

Features of the week were the setting of a new season's mark of forty-three innings by F. E. Reid of the Kay-Bee-Ess room, two innings less than the mark held by Maupome and Le Gros, and runs of 10 made by Augie Kleckhefer and Ed Fisher. Standing:

CHICAGO PINMEN ROLL TODAY IN MEET AT RACINE

Racine, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—One of the most distinguished aggregation of the nation's ten pin stars ever entered in a sweepstakes tournament will compete here tomorrow afternoon and night in the second and closing days of the midwest tournament. Bowlers of Milwaukee, Chicago, Waukegan, Kenosha and Racine are entered.

Among the celebrities in competition Sunday are Jimmy Smith, Charles Daw and Doc Ehlke of Milwaukee; Devito, Marino, Blouin, Davis, Lundgren, Steers and Karthieser of Chicago. The famous Nelson-Mitchell team of Milwaukee and Minrolites of Chicago also are entered, the meet comprising 150 bowlers, with a sweepstakes prize of $1,500.

Racine and Milwaukee pin knights tackled the maples today, but their scores are expected to be overlapped tomorrow when the national stars take to the drives. However, there is one good score to shoot at, made by I. Christensen of Racine, 1,029, an average of 204 for the five games. G. Herzog of Racine and Kumpf were high individuals with 246 scores.

MAUPOME FINDS 3 CUSHION PACE IS SPEEDING UP

Pierre Maupome returned yesterday from his second trip in the National Three Cushion league in which he won three games and lost seven. "Maup" is satisfied that the pace this year is faster than ever. Clarence Jackson of Milwaukee, who also was on the road, won five and lost three, dropping two games to Otto Reisch of Philadelphia, who is leading the race.

Kleckhefer will make his second road trip starting tomorrow against Jackson at Milwaukee. On Tuesday he plays Maupome at Mussey's Madison street room. He then will play Layton at St. Louis and Denton at Kansas City.

Weston, Former Champ, Makes Record Cue Run

Lorain, O., Nov. 17.—Charles ("Cowboy") Weston, former world's pocket billiard champion, and representative of Lorain in the national championships, broke the world's record for high consecutive run in a practice match here last night, when he ran off 150 balls without a miss. The world's record, held by Ralph Greenleaf of Philadelphia, present champion, is 100. The new figure, played outside of a match game, is unofficial.

Credit Chalmers With Another Major Engineering Advance

HYDRAULIC 4 Wheel Brakes

The continuous progress of the improved Chalmers Six toward even greater performing and riding qualities is again evidenced in Chalmers' adoption of Hydraulic Four-Wheel Brakes.

Here is a major engineering advance that gives the rapidly growing Chalmers clientele the latest four-wheel brake equipment and the best available today.

This development of the Lockheed type of hydraulic application resulted from an intensive and protracted study of every known four-wheel brake at home and abroad.

In the laboratory and on the road there was only one answer. The hydraulic principle of braking proved to be so far superior that further consideration of any other became impossible. Furthermore the hydraulic type already had proved its complete efficiency to hundreds of owners who had driven their cars for a total of millions of miles.

Chalmers is the first in its field, and at anywhere near its price to offer the owner this great engineering advance. It is additional evidence of Chalmers policy to keep the Chalmers Six in the forefront of finer sixes.

Chalmers Hydraulic Four-Wheel Brakes equalize automatically on all four wheels—are positive in action, equally positive in release—require no lubrication—need practically no adjustments—never rattle or chatter—require no extra effort to operate—increase riding and driving comfort and safety.

Optional Equipment —$75 Extra

CHICAGO PINMEN ROLL TODAY IN MEET AT RACINE

Racine, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—One of the most distinguished aggregation of the nation's ten pin stars ever entered in a sweepstakes tournament will compete here tomorrow afternoon and night in the second and closing days of the midwest tournament. Bowlers of Milwaukee, Chicago, Waukegan, Kenosha and Racine are entered.

Among the celebrities in competition Sunday are Jimmy Smith, Charles Daw and Doc Ehlke of Milwaukee; Devito, Marino, Blouin, Davis, Lundgren, Steers and Karthieser of Chicago. The famous Nelson-Mitchell team of Milwaukee and Minrollites of Chicago also are entered, the meet comprising 150 bowlers, with a sweepstakes prize of $1,500.

Racine and Milwaukee pin knights tackled the maples today, but their scores are expected to be overlapped tomorrow when the national stars take to the drives. However, there is one good score to shoot at, made by I. Christensen of Racine, 1,020, an average of 204 for the five games. G. Herzog of Racine and Kumpf were high individuals with 246 scores.

MAUPOME FINDS 3 CUSHION PACE IS SPEEDING UP

Pierre Maupome returned yesterday from his second trip in the National Three Cushion league in which he won three games and lost seven. "Maup" is satisfied that the pace this year is faster than ever. Clarence Jackson of Milwaukee, who also was on the road, won five and lost three, dropping two games to Otto Reisek of Philadelphia, who is leading the race.

Kleckhefer will make his second road trip starting tomorrow against Jackson at Milwaukee. On Tuesday he plays Maupome at Mussey's Madison street room. He then will play Layton at St. Louis and Denton at Kansas City.

Weston, Former Champ, Makes Record Cue Run

Lorain, O., Nov. 17.—Charles ("Cowboy") Weston, former world's pocket billiard champion, and representative of Lorain in the national championships, broke the world's record for high consecutive run in a practice match here last night, when he ran off 120 balls without a miss. The world's record, held by Ralph Greenleaf of Philadelphia, present champion, is 100. The new figure, played outside of a match game, is unofficial.

EUROPE'S CUE CHAMP WEDS GIRL PLAYER, HEIRESS TO MILLION

MISS KATHERINE HAYWOOD.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A billiard romance culminated here yesterday when Miss Katherine Haywood of this city was married to Ary Bos of Holland, the amateur balkline champion of Europe. Miss Haywood, who is conceded to be the best woman balkline player this country has produced, was left over $1,000,000 by her father on his death a year ago. Bos, who has been a resident of this country for some time, will compete in the junior balkline championship at Detroit next week.

A. A. U. TO OPEN ANNUAL SESSION IN DETROIT TODAY

The national meeting of the Amateur Athletic union will open in Detroit today. Delegates from the Central association, including Julian T. Fitzgerald, Fred L. Steers, Charles A. Dean, F. W. Blankley, and Frank Martin, left last night for the meeting.

Other delegates of A. A. U. bodies who accompanied the Chicago delegation last night were Robert S. Weaver, Los Angeles, of the Southern Pacific association; Sam Goodman, San Francisco, of the Pacific association; Harry S. Burdick and Ed Ferris of Spokane, Wash., of the Pacific Northwest association, and L. di Benedetto of the Southern association, A. A. U.

The meeting will run three days, the main question for consideration being the arrangements for the Olympic games to be held in Paris next year.

Korthals' Bowling Stands Out in Logan Square Play

Andy Korthals, with some sensational bowling, featured the week's round of the Logan Square Majors, rolling at Schueneman's. He turned in a total of 725 for the three games, compiled with counts of 277, 225, and 223. Team scores:

Illinois Nimrod Kills 6 Raccoons in One Tree

Princeton, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Killing six raccoons, all of them in one tree, is the record hung up by Ralph Kimberly, local nimrod. Kimberly's dog "treed" a mother coon and her family of five and the six were brought down with as many shots fired from a rifle. The young coons weighed nearly twelve pounds each, the mother about twenty-one.

MATURO WINS 2 POCKET CONTESTS FROM ST. JEAN

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—James Maturo of Brooklyn twice defeated Andrew St. Jean of Minneapolis in national pocket billiard matches here, 100-42 and 100-93, each game going fifteen innings. Maturo's high runs were 28 and 21; St. Jean's were 5 and 23.

The New Jordan Victoria

THERE are a lot of people in this country who have been waiting for some leading manufacturer to build a roomy, comfortable, distinctive body of characteristic Jordan style—and of the desirable Victoria type.

Such a body must be roomy enough to carry four people with unusual regard for comfort, but compact enough to be used as a personal car.

The woman wants a car in which she does not have to feel and act like a chauffeur. She wants a personal, individual, intimate car, easy to handle, easy to park.

The man wants a car for business or golf—large enough for a foursome but compact enough to be used in his daily affairs.

So we've built the Jordan Victoria, for town and country use.

The driver's seat is purposely big, broad, loungy. Rear seat widest we have ever seen in a body of the Victoria type—disappearing seat full size, built for comfort.

Lines are low, with the modern modified radius at the rear corners. There is lots of head room. A handy compartment inside accommodates small parcels. A large trunk at the rear, contains two full sized suit cases for carrying bulkier luggage.

Deliveries of the Jordan Victoria will begin in limited numbers in November.

Harvey Launches Battle to Remove Halsted Barrier

Dangerous Grade Crossing Blocks Traffic 10 Hours a Day.

RIVERDALE, the little village nestling in a maize of Belt line tracks north of Harvey, Ill., became the battleground yesterday in a new campaign to rid Cook county of its ancient traffic enemy—the Halsted street grade crossing of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad.

Following a meeting of the Harvey chamber of commerce, which developed into a testimonial hearing for motorists who have been caught between the railroad gates, brushed aside by locomotives, held captive for hours by endless freight trains, and otherwise persecuted by the dangerous crossing, both state and railroad authorities have agreed to do their part toward the building of a viaduct to carry traffic over the railroad. It remains for Riverdale to enter into the general agreement, engineers say, and guarantee the needed right of way and its portion of the improvement cost. If the village agrees, work may be started immediately on the long needed improvement, to cost approximately $210,000.

The village, however, promises to be a stumbling block in the plan which will directly affect every Chicago motorist who uses the paved highway system in the southern part of the county. Charles Niemeyer, president of the Riverdale village board, threw the first sand into the machinery.

"We do not intend to do anything about the crossing," he declared. "Let the Harvey people build it. We are not interested."

Other members contend that an underpass is best, despite engineers' reports that show such a tunnel impracticable and prohibitive in cost. The feeling has run so high that highway authorities may appeal to the commerce commission to officially apportion the costs.

The grade crossing cuts the Halsted street road, Route No 1 in the Illinois $60,000,000 bond issue system, at a point just below 138th street. Six tracks carry a constant stream of freight cars in the I. H. B. district-ling yards and to the mammoth icing plant where all of the perishable freight cars of the Belt are shunted.

A traffic check made by Maj. George A. Quinlan, county superintendent of highways, shows that the railroad gates block traffic ten hours out of a normal twelve hour day. One day's check, taken from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., shows the gates dropping 144 times, or once every five minutes of the day. The crossing was actually blocked to all vehicle traffic 601 minutes, or ten hours. At times automobiles are banked up for a mile on each side of the crossing and the normally heavy commercial traffic which uses Halsted street as the direct route into Chicago from the south meets costly delay there every working day of the year.

Plans for the new viaduct have already been drawn up by Maj. Quinlan and tentatively approved by state engineers. They have also met the approval of President George Hanhauer of the I. H. B. railroad, who is anxious to see the improvement made at once and has agreed that his road will meet its reasonable portion of the cost.

With the state and railroad ready to go ahead, business men of Harvey and highway authorities generally intend to push the proposal to the limit. Their committee, appointed to meet the interested parties and keep the viaduct plan moving, includes William G. Morris, president of the chamber of commerce; Harry G. Gibson, Prof. W. E. McVay, Dr. T. E. Noble, Harris Danta, and A. W. Hersey, city engineer.

NEED MORE LIGHTS.

It is estimated that the annual property damage resulting from inadequate street lighting in the United States amounts to $64,000,000, which is $4,000,000 more than the entire country's annual street lighting bill.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," The Tribune, Chicago. For today's question J. W. Schaad, 4510 Keokuk avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you think all through street signs should be illuminated so that autoists can see them in the dark?

Where Asked.

Auditorium theater.

The Answers.

Arthur A. Basse, 1007 Marquette building, attorney—My view of the situation is that all new signs should be illuminated, all those located along newly designated through streets, and at other dangerous points. At all points where local drivers pass frequently and are accustomed to regarding the thoroughfare as a through street I would think the illumination of the signs unnecessary.

Paul Budney, 1639 South Hamlin avenue, auto tires—I have always considered that all such signs should be illuminated. This is an era of safety first, and there is nothing more important for the maintenance of safety on any through street system than illuminated signs at the entrances to it. An illuminated sign will command respect where it otherwise wouldn't even be noticed.

H. E. Ray, Civic Opera company, Auditorium, promoter—Absolutely they should. Autoists are pretty much alike in this, that it is nothing extraordinary to go rushing down the street, conversing, having trouble with the car, or preoccupied by one thing or another, and not see the through street sign until they are right onto it. New York City and Washington, D. C., have lighted signs.

Kenneth Culbertson, 1501 North Larrabee street, public school teacher—They should, because of the fact that when I have been driving, and often when riding with others, we have gone across through streets without knowing it. Had there been an illuminated sign there we would have stopped. Luckily, we have not been caught by motor cops.

W. G. Moore, 501 West Grand avenue, proprietor machine shop—Yes, I do, if they can figure out a practical light—one that doesn't blind or glare, and is not too expensive. As it is, they get onto the through street or boulevard and discover it when it is too late, and all due to lack of illumination.

DAY OF MOURNING.

A special memorial day was recently held in Rio de Janeiro for the victims of automobile accidents. Wreaths of flowers were placed on the graves of automobile victims.

Auto Body Makes Every Driver His Own Safety Cop

BELIEVING that the conscientious motorist suffers as much as the pedestrian from the careless driver, the National Motorists' association has outlined to its 300 of more affiliated clubs a plan for further development of its safety first work, which it is hoped will result in an immediate lessening of the number of traffic accidents.

A few weeks ago the N. M. A., through its Washington headquarters, urged the public to catch the spirit of the automobile clubs in automobile accident prevention. This spirit, as Executive Secretary Fred H. Caley explained, is the determination to get down to cases and make accident prevention a personal matter involving a definite decision on the part of every traffic unit to "prevent" and not "lament."

In its latest bulletin the association urges the members of motor clubs to keep their records spotless, so that the general public and the police authorities will more generally recognize the fact that the conscientious motorist and pedestrian have a common menace in the person who is habitually careless, both at the wheel and afoot.

On this turn in this important work, Mr. Caley says:

"One solution to the present accident problem is for the rank and file of motorists and pedestrians to conduct themselves so carefully in traffic that the acts of the careless minority will stand out in glaring contrast.

"It should be evident that if conscientious drivers take extra pains to see that they do not drive faster than twenty miles an hour over the city streets, the few who drive at thirty-five will be so conspicuous as to be quickly apprehended and taught their lesson through a fine before they enroll some innocent motorist or pedestrian into an accident. If the rank and file of car operators drive up to twenty-five or near thirty, the gross carelessness of the reckless minority is likely to pass unnoticed."

CUTTER PIN CULTURE.

The insertion of cotter pins usually requires considerable patience, for in the majority of cases the pin is slightly too large for the hole, or the latter does not line up correctly. Slightly tapering one end of the cotter pin will greatly prevent starting it so—that it can be worked into the hole by tapping the end with a hammer.—Automobile Digest.

STATE BOATS RESCUE MOTOR TOURISTS AT STRAITS OF MACKINAC

MICHIGAN'S state owned and operated automobile ferry service at the Straits of Mackinac is to be substantially enlarged next year with the addition of two more ferries, making it possible for the state highway department to give frequent and uninterrupted service to the rapidly increasing traffic.

Gov. Groesbeck has announced the purchase of two more boats from the government at a cost of $30,000. It cost the government $230,000 for the construction of these two boats.

The state ferries carry automobiles across the seven and one-half miles of water for $2.50 and $3.50 and $5 for trucks. Passengers in automobiles are carried without charge.

When the state owned ferries began operation last August an immediate increase in the number of tourists was noticed.

1924 Schedule to Produce New Ford Every 7 1-2 Seconds

Giant Industry Ready to Speed Production Jan. 1.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Never before in the history of the automobile have prospects for a new year been so bright at such an early date as they are at the present time. Practically every manufacturer is now framing schedules for the campaign that will call for capacity production throughout the entire year of 1924.

The situation at the Ford plant, where increased production is scheduled to an almost unbelievable extent, is typical of most of the large factories that are manufacturing the better known cars.

Officials of the Ford plant are keeping the wires hot ordering material, parts and accessories that go into the makeup of their production. Rumors are that beginning the first of next February the company will enter upon a schedule calling for a daily output of 10,000 cars and trucks. This alone is satisfactory evidence that the industry is expecting and preparing for a greater year than the one now closing. This announcement is an indorsement of recent statements by such authorities as President A. P. Sloan of General Motors, Vice President C. S. Mott of the same concern and John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, that the year just ahead of them is destined to break all past production records.

The Ford company will begin its big production drive on a twenty-four hour plan. A little figuring will show the birth of a Ford every seven and a fraction seconds. Even now the sales department is far behind in orders, and cars of the closed type especially cannot be had for from two to three weeks, despite the fact that two eight hour shifts are now turning out approximately 7,500 vehicles per day.

The Chevrolet, the second largest producer of automobiles, has a program calling for a monthly output of 50,000 cars, according to a statement of President Sloan of General Motors. The Buick plant is planning a step-up equally as great in comparison. Other General Motors plants are equally active in preparing for another season.

The Willys-Overland plant in Toledo will have turned out 200,000 by the end of the present year, but the 1924 schedule calls for a greater number than this. About 18,000 cars will

for all makes of cars, trucks, and tractors

Double the Life of Your Battery

Cold, snappy weather means battery trouble as sure as death and taxes—unless you have an Imperial Primer.

Don't blame the battery, and wear it out prematurely, trying to start your car. Remember, your engine is bound to be chilled and the oil settled and stiff after a cool night or a short stop when the weather is cold.

An Imperial Primer will save its cost in a month or so by saving your battery alone. Your storage battery has only about 50% of its efficiency in cold weather. Grinding away in a useless attempt to start a cold motor tears down the plates and soon ruins the battery.

One or two turns of your motor, and you're off—with an IMPERIAL PRIMER. It always works—INSTANTLY! A few shots of quick-firing vaporized gasoline, sprayed right into the manifold, gives that hot spark in your cylinder something to explode.

$4.75 $4.00 For Fords

Easy to Install. A garage mechanic will have your Imperial Primer on and ready for use in no time; or, if you prefer, install it yourself. Complete instructions with every Primer. All connections are made with Imperial Compression Couplings—no threading, flaring, or soldering.

Don't Ruin Your Motor by Using a Choker

Pulling and pushing the choker that came on your car, frantically, in an effort to start a cold motor, only floods the carburetor and cylinders with surplus gas. Where does it go? It simply seeps down into the crank case and thins out your oil, causing terrific wear on the bearings and every other part of your engine. To start your car instantly, the gas must be vaporized. That is exactly what the Imperial Primer does.

Get one today. It will be a great boon to you—not only during the cold weather, but the whole year 'round.

FORD OWNERS: Stop back-breaking cranking, jacking up your rear wheel and pouring hot water on the manifold as soon as cold weather comes. An Imperial Primer will start your motor INSTANTLY. No Ford should be driven without one. The Ford Special, $4 complete.

DEALERS: You know how the Imperial Primer saves time, trouble, money and dispositions. You know how easy it is to install. Order stock from your jobber now. Get ready to supply the demand. Everybody's putting it on, no matter what make of car they drive.

Convenient-Dependable!

With the driver's compartment completely cleared of all levers, with the starter, gasoline guage and motor temperature indicator located on the instrument board, the Apperson now presents a car supreme in driving convenience.

Too, the Apperson is above all dependable. In the coldest weather the motor never fails to respond. Its sturdiness of construction guarantees year 'round performance.

Among the other factories that are revising their schedules for greatly increased production are the Dodge Brothers, Hudson-Essex, Studebaker, Chalmers, Maxwell, Paige-Jewett, Reo, and Rickenbacker. The season will be officially opened and the big drive will be on with the opening of the automobile show in New York during the early days of January.

NEVER before have the blinds along the Illinois and bottom lands everywhere in the state offered up more ducks. The flight is astonishing, say old timers. With mild weather promised it is expected to continue through November and most of December. The Illinois hard road system is laid out perfectly for the man who cares to combine gasoline with black powder.

The map shows the "road of the ducks," with points of particular interest located by Bob Becker. It leaves Chicago via Ogden avenue to Lyons and the old route through Summit to Joliet, striking one of the best hunting spots in the state at Morris. Concrete continues west through Ottawa and La Salle, skirting the river to Chillicothe and Peoria. But one detour of eight miles west of La Salle breaks this trip. From Peoria the state road runs south and gravel, fair to rough, leads west to Havana, the heart of the duck country. Earth roads hereabouts are reported in fair shape now, but are subject to weather conditions.

The lower maps show the hard road progress in Michigan and Indiana. The latter state now offers an unbroken pavement following the National trail from Terre Haute through Indianapolis to the state line.

The New Hupmobile

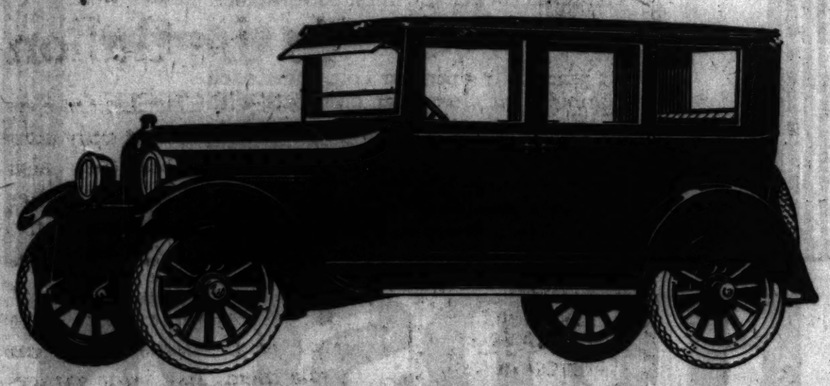
This Beautiful Hupmobile Satisfies Every Desire



The dignified beauty of this Hupmobile sedan is as outstanding as its brilliant performance.

It is obviously one of the most beautiful closed cars of the year.

Best of all, it is as sturdy and as durable in every respect as a closed car can be built.

It is built in Hupmobile's own shop. The lines are long and sweeping, the rear corners broadly rounded, windows are broader, and not so high.

The longer wheel-base and springs give the sedan, both in front and rear, entirely new and better riding qualities.

Upholstery is handsome gray cloth, with a distinct blue stripe. Exterior finish is a new Hupmobile blue, exceptionally pleasing. Equipment is complete, including rear view mirrors; and hardware is bright nickel in finish.

The increased power and smoothness of the engine, and the remarkable ease of driving which the new Hupmobile affords, are further reasons why you should experience a demonstration of the sedan.

Chicago Traffic Evils Attacked in Saarinen Plan

Depressed Boulevard and Underground Garage Proposed.

The following story deals with the motor transportation features of the monumental plan for lake front development made by Eliel Saarinen, the architect. Details of the proposed new buildings and real estate improvements will be found in the Real Estate news section of The Sunday Tribune.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

DIVERTING automobile traffic and parked cars from the loop is the sole solution for Chicago's street congestion problem, in the opinion of Eliel Saarinen, architect and international authority on city plan development.

Following six months of study he completed detailed plans, estimates, and drawings yesterday for a lake front development which proposes an entirely new north and south traffic channel and a 47,000 car capacity automobile terminal under Grant park as its motor transportation features. The traffic channel he suggests is, briefly, a wide, depressed boulevard running from Lincoln park south on a line with what is now Fairbanks court, through the heart of Grant park, to connect with the south park boulevard system. The terminal is an underground garage so designed that it can, theoretically, accommodate nearly twice the number of cars that now enter the loop daily.

Plans for the monumental development scheme have been worked out by Mr. Saarinen as an ideal rather than an official proposal. They have not been formally submitted to the City Plan commission or park boards, but have proved of intense interest to Chicago builders and traffic students who have had the opportunity to examine them. They will be published in their entirety in an early issue of the American Architect with the foreword that they are not aimed to present the development which shall be executed, but one that is possible of execution.

Lift bridges must be eliminated in the near future, says the expert in his plan description, and Michigan avenue must cease to be the main traffic artery, before congestion is relieved.

"I do not believe that any plan so far drawn will relieve Michigan avenue and the loop of congestion," he declared. "The proposed outlets, South Water street on the north and Roosevelt road on the south, will not, in my opinion, be efficient relief, but will rather increase the crossing difficulties in the loop by allowing more motor traffic to enter it. The parking problem will remain the same unless a safe and convenient place is offered for cars. If we can locate a new traffic channel between such a parking place—naturally in Grant park—and the north and south residence districts, then Michigan avenue could assume its proper function, that of an ideal business street carrying local traffic. Chicago cannot effectively remedy traffic conditions and parking in the loop itself, but it can solve them by diverting traffic and parked cars from the loop.

"It is this general idea that is followed in my plan. Speed and safety are essentials in the new traffic channel. It must be wide—120 feet at least—and it must be built at a low level with elevated sidewalks carrying foot traffic across it and connections for cross traffic made by the European system of gyration, where traffic is rotated around a central island instead of crossing at right angles.

"As to the river, it is only a question of time until the river will be recognized as a canal. Even now the river traffic does not necessitate lift bridges. The loop will enter a new era when fixed bridges are adopted."

The plan takes all motor movement eastward from its present channel through the projected "main traffic street." This runs south from Lincoln park via a new fill along the lake shore opposite Lake Shore drive, and continues south in the Fairbanks court line. The plan has widened this line so that on either side of the main drive local traffic streets may run these to be connected with one another by bridges over the low level channel, which is called "Fairbanks boulevard" in the plan.

As the boulevard nears the river it rises to ground level and crosses on a fixed bridge, then expands into "Central plaza," where it connects by gyration with local traffic from both sides. From "Central plaza" it goes south in two branches, one on either side of the tall hotel building, which the expert has proposed to rise above the subterranean Illinois Central station. Foot traffic is served by elevated sidewalks.

South of the hotel the two branches join again. The artery is depressed and runs straight south through the proposed automobile terminal which lies on both sides of it. Three cross traffic streets are proposed to connect with the main boulevard by gyration. One, called "Art Institute boulevard," comes in just south of the institute; another, "Fountain boulevard," comes in on a line with 7th street, and the third on a line with Roosevelt road.

From this point the main artery comes up to ground level again and goes south between the Field museum and the present I. C. station. This part of the drive has been designated as "Tower boulevard." Where it crosses 16th street another connection is made and the main artery turns east around the stadium and through Lagoon park. Here, too, it is depressed and pedestrians are served by elevated sidewalks. A depressed branch runs straight south from 16th street. Another expands at 22d street into "South plaza," where the plan proposes a high Chicago tower as a background. East of this plaza the boulevard goes into South Park boulevard and the Grand boulevard extension.

The planner estimates that traffic in this proposed artery can reach a safe speed of forty miles an hour, slowing to ten miles at connecting points. This, he estimates, will carry 20,000 cars an hour or 200,000 in a fifteen hour day.

The proposed underground garage and terminal in Grant park would be built in three levels and ten divisions. Thirty ramps, each thirty feet wide, would carry the cars to underground stalls so arranged and marked that the driver could handle his own car without aid, park it, and reach his destination in the park, railroad terminal, or loop in a minimum amount of time. The garage is planned to accommodate 47,000 cars and its designer declares that it can be filled and emptied in forty minutes.

Such a terminal and parking place, he estimates, can be built for $60,000,000. He allows a yearly interest charge on the investment of $3,000,000 and an upkeeep charge of $3,000,000, or a $6,000,000 total annual expense. In the year he estimates that 17,000,000 parking spaces will be available and proposes a charge of 60 cents a day in stalls nearest Michigan avenue and 40 cents in those to the east. This, he says, promises an annual income of $8,500,000 and will allow the project to pay for itself.

Better Every Year

In 1920 a total of $530,848,000 in new road construction was awarded in this country. In 1921 the amount was $630,712,000, an increase of $99,864,000 over 1920. Last year contracts were awarded to the amount of $669,428,000, an increase of $38,716,000 over 1921 and $138,580,000 over 1920. From Jan. 1 to June 1, this year, a total of $384,774,000 was placed under contract. At this rate new highways, for which contracts will be let during 1923, will cost approximately $764,000,000, a gain of about $125,000,000 over 1922.

GERMANY'S NEAR-AUTOMOBILE

German engineers have reached the practical limit in light car building with this new four wheel motorcycle, according to old world experts. It has been newly introduced in Berlin. The car includes features of both the motorcycle and the automobile, and is said to be making a decided hit. [Wide World Photo.]

Michigan May Cut License Fees and Add Tax on Fuel

INFLUENCES are working in Michigan which may bring the gasoline tax question before the special session of the legislature which has been called for the first week in December.

Gov. Groesbeck has announced that he would accept a gasoline tax to finance highway construction if the legislature would reduce the present automobile fee to a nominal sum, and plans to put his proposal up to the Michigan good roads advocates.

The plan now considered is to reduce annual license fees to not to exceed $2 for an ordinary passenger car. This nominal tax, together with fees for ownership certificates and drivers' licenses, will yield about $12,000,000 annually, of which $7,000,000 would be used for road maintenance and $5,000,000 for construction work.

Dominate the Field.

Progress in motor transportation in China is forecast in an economic survey of China published by the commission on commerce and marine of the American Bankers' association.

"There is probably no field in which American manufacturers have a stronger relative position in China than in the supply of motor cars," says the report. "Apparently 80 per cent of the motor cars now in use in China are of American make. The good roads movement is spreading and the next few years will doubtless see a great extension in construction of roads, as a result of the present movement."

Improve the Can.

Filling stations and garages make a practice of filling radiators with an ordinary sprinkling can which makes a convenient receptacle for handling water, but does not lend itself for the purpose intended. In filling the radiator considerable water is usually wasted owing to the inconvenience in handling the can. To eliminate this difficulty an ordinary pipe ell can be soldered to the spout of the sprinkling can and thus direct the water into the radiator regardless of the angle at which it may be necessary to hold the can.—Automobile Digest.

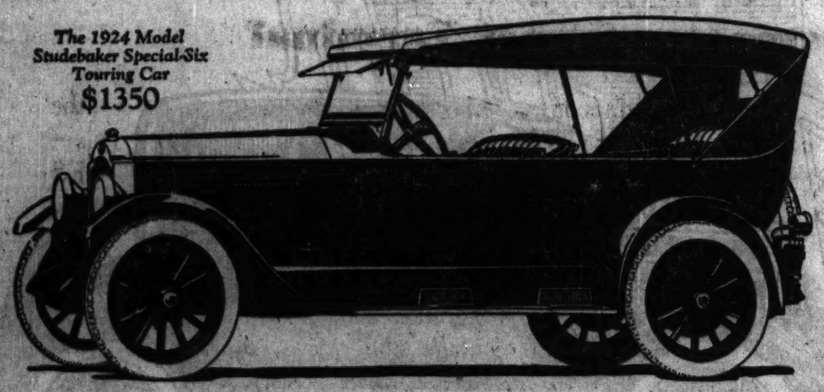
INTEGRITY Studebaker SERVICE

The 1924 Model Studebaker Special-Six Touring Car $1350



It is logical that we should ask the prospective buyer to gauge the worth of the Studebaker Special-Six by the measure of its sales success.

Why mention the distinctive motor or any other feature of this unusual car when the American public itself has established the greatest of all selling arguments in its favor by buying it?

Automobile license figures for every state in the Union continue to tell their own uncolored stories of Studebaker popularity.

POWER COMFORT

WATER POWER BODY ASKS FULL CONTROL OF U. S.

Vast Hydro-Electric Development Shown.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Amendment of the federal water power act to bring power developments of every type under control of the federal power commission was recommended by the commission today in its third annual report.

While great strides have been made in the last thirty-six months toward utilization of the national hydro-electric resources, the report said, the work has been hampered by the lack of complete authority.

"It was the evident purpose of congress," the commission held, "to place on this commission responsibility for all water power activities of the federal government to provide a common policy in investigation and administration."

Vast "H. P." Developed.

Operating with only "loaned" personnel from the four departments whose secretaries constitute the commission, applications involving installation of 21,500,000 horse power have been handled in three years, the report said, as compared with a total of 1,400,000 horse power developed under federal authorization in all the years preceding passage of the federal power law.

"Although the commission has accomplished all that could reasonably be expected with the means at its disposal," the report said, "it has not been able, on account of lack of personnel, to undertake certain important duties placed on it by the act. It has deemed it best to direct its efforts primarily to getting water power development under way. The act should be amended to permit the commission to employ sufficient force, in addition to the cooperating forces of the three departments, to carry out in the manner the law directs the duties which it imposes."

Great System Nearly Ready.

The era of superpower is "already with us," in the opinion of the commission. Only four "gaps" now remain to be closed, the report pointed out, and these aggregate only twenty-five miles, before the nation will possess "an interconnected system along the Pacific coast reaching 1,400 miles from British Columbia to Mexico."

In the southeastern section, a great system has been completed through Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, and Tennessee, with extensions already projected into Kentucky, both Virginias, and Ohio, the commission said, and it regards as "peculiarly desirable" that proposed construction of a superpower system in the northeast be rapidly carried out.

A real opportunity for Young College-Trained MEN

An industry (not merely one concern) wishes to be represented on the road by young men with college training—men who like to meet business men (in this instance, retail merchants), ask questions, talk business, and who can report their findings faithfully.

The nature of the work is such as to equip these young men for positions of responsibility later on within the industry.

Considerable traveling is required; ample training will be given; no samples to carry. Remuneration will be in keeping with the reasonable requirements of the type of men wanted; salary, not commission.

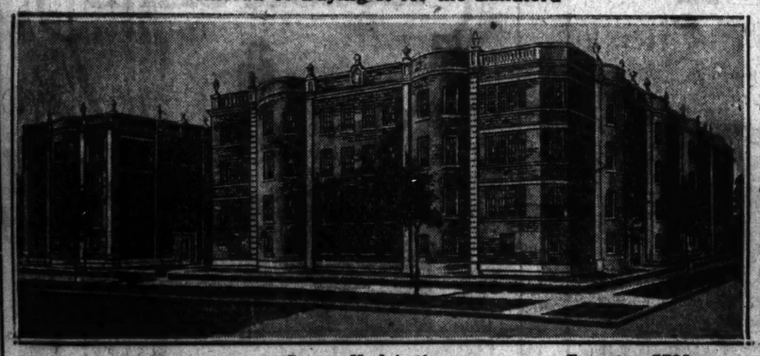
Own Your Own Apartment in Evanston

Instead of Buying It for the Landlord



800 Michigan Avenue, Corner Kedzie Avenue Evanston 5798

Best location in South Evanston. Large living rooms, with old fashioned wood burning fireplaces. Tile wainscoting in bathrooms. 20 minute transportation to the city.

This building, which is of Georgian architecture, was designed by Robert S. De Golyer, well known architect, who has designed the Plaisance, North Shore Apartment Hotel, Evanston, The Marlborough, and numerous other high grade buildings.

The average landlord buys a building, valued, for instance, at $120,000, by paying $30,000 cash and assuming a mortgage of $90,000 at 6½% with annual prepayments of $7,000. He rents these apartments for as much as he can get, using the proceeds to pay the expenses of operating, the interest on the mortgage, the payments on the mortgage (which increase his equity) and the balance is profit on the investment.

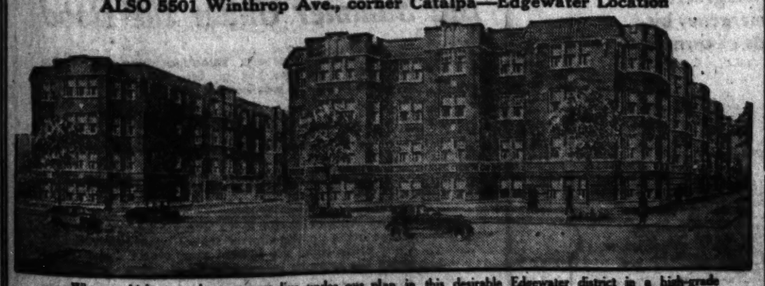
We will agree with a few responsible parties who can furnish proper social and financial references, to sell these beautiful 5, 6 and 7-room apartments upon deposit of twelve months' rent and deposits of 1⅓ times the rental value. This includes a substantial interest in the property.

15 apartments are to be leased to the public, the proceeds going to the tenant owners.

You can save half of your rent by co-operative ownership if you are now paying $130 to $265 per month. Live under our plan in the most exclusive district in South Evanston at the following low cost per month.

7 rooms, 2 baths (regular rental $265).....for $104.00
6 rooms, 2 baths (regular rental $225).....for 95.00
5 rooms, 1 bath (regular rental $150).....for 75.00
PRICES RANGE FROM $6,900 UPWARD.

ALSO 5501 Winthrop Ave., corner Catalpa—Edgewater Location



Why pay high rent when you can live under our plan in this desirable Edgewater district in a high-grade new apartment building at the following low cost per month. Sunnyside 2496

4 rooms $42.00
4 rooms, sun parlor, shower bath.....$52.91
5 rooms, fireplace, shower bath.....$65.00

All our buildings in locations where values are climbing rapidly.
Agents on premises any day.

Pay rent at $100 per month for five years and you will have paid out $6,000, with nothing to show for it. Pay it to yourself and own your own apartment. Be independent of the landlord without any of the responsibility.

Invest in Land at the New Dempster Street Terminal

The acres of yesterday are the subdivisions of today—the subdivisions of today are the cities of tomorrow; wherever transportation reaches out with its tendrils of steel rails—people, houses, apartments, stores, theatres—in short, BUILT-UP COMMUNITIES follow in its wake. It was true at Wilson Avenue, at Howard Avenue, at Kimball Avenue—at the site of every elevated terminal in Chicago's history—and it will be true at Dempster Street. Chicago's greatest fortunes have had their beginnings in the courage of a pioneer—"First Choice to the Pioneers" is the economic formula that has created untold wealth for the men who have had the courage and vision to lead the way. Opportunity is beckoning today to Chicago investors who can visualize the future of Dunas' Dempster Street Terminal Subdivision—with Chicago's population crowding toward the north so rapidly that quick transportation, involving the expenditure of millions of dollars, is already definitely planned and in process of accomplishment by the elevated lines. TODAY you can be a pioneer at Dempster Street.

Illinois Rebels Against Illegal Cattle Shipments

Plans to Close Gaps on State Lines Where T. B.'s Enter.

By Frank Ridgway.

THERE is general action among dairymen and citizens of the Chicago dairy belt against the alleged illegal trafficking in tubercular cattle between states and sections within states. Rebellion is on, and both city and country are throwing their forces into the battle to aid federal and state investigators and veterinarians in their attempts to corner the persons who persistently violate interstate shipping laws and state quarantine regulations.

In open violation of the regulations governing the transportation of live stock, unscrupulous dealers and dairymen are said to be coöperating in moving cattle over state lines without health certificates. While this practice is said to be more or less common covering a period of many years, Illinois farmers declare they are most seriously affected.

Northern Illinois Resentful.

Preliminary meetings — two in Woodstock and one in Chicago a few days ago—have been held by dairymen organizing the Illinois T. B. Vigilance association. Its primary object is to concentrate farmers' efforts and create a more active sentiment and spirit of loyalty in local communities where clean herds are in danger of being reinfected by diseased cattle shipped over the state lines.

The alleged illegal trafficking has been so common and has been carried on so extensively that northern Illinois has been branded the "black belt," which dairymen resent. Farmers who attended the preliminary meetings cited case after case of cattle shipped in from Wisconsin in violation of the federal interstate shipping laws.

Reports Prove Violations.

An example of this is revealed in the findings of an investigation of recent shipments from Wisconsin to Plainfield, Ill. The investigator's report shows that on July 26, 1923, twenty-six cattle without health certificates were shipped from Ripon, Wis., to Frank Gorman of Plainfield, Ill.

This was apparently repeated several times during the latter part of the summer and early fall, according to the report, which shows that on Aug. 7, 1923, seventeen cattle were shipped from Omro, Wis., to Clow and Gorman of Plainfield, Ill. Another shipment of twenty-four cattle from Ripon was sent to the same men on Aug. 13, 1923. On Sept. 15, 1923, twenty-two head of cattle were shipped from the same station to these persons, and a fifth shipment of twenty-four head of cattle was sent to Clow and Gorman on Sept. 25, 1923, from Rush Lake, Wis. Still another carload of twenty-six head of cattle came to the Plainfield buyers from Ripon on Sept. 26, 1923.

None of these cattle, according to the investigator, was accompanied by a health certificate including the tuberculosis test chart required by the federal regulation.

Farm Bureaus Active.

The cattle sale season is coming on and public auctions will be held in surplus dairy cattle producing sections, so farm bureaus in this state have decided that quick action is necessary to prevent the importation of tubercular cattle. A reward of $200 for the first conviction for a violation of the federal or state regulation is to be offered by farm bureaus in each county through a coöperative plan. The Illinois Agricultural association will pay $100 and the county farm bureau will pay the other $100. This offer will be made generally throughout the state wherever needed.

Railroads that haul cattle in from the north and west are coöperating. Many have notified their agents not to accept a single shipment which does not conform to the government regulation No. 7, B. A. I. order No. 273, governing interstate shipments, requiring that dairy or breeding cattle, irrespective of age, must be tested for tuberculosis before being shipped from one state to another.

Reflects on Sales.

Iowa is also said to have shipped cattle into Illinois recently without complying with regulations and Illinois has been known to send cattle into adjoining states without living up to the law.

Reliable dairymen and officials in other states bitterly oppose these practices. They realize such trafficking reflects on the sale of live stock. Breeders, whether beef or dairy cattle men, who have had their herds tested and are under supervision or are accredited through the coöperative state and federal plan, have suffered loss, and are not willing to have their herds reinfected by unlawful and costly practices of others.

Various groups are taking an interest in the agitation to stop this evil. Those interested include bankers who finance the farmer, the consumers of milk, and the taxpayer who contributes his share to the indemnity fund that aids in lifting the load off the farmer's shoulder when his cattle are found to be diseased and condemned.

Wisconsin's officials do not approve of this swopping of dollars and cows, and they are ready and anxious to do their share to prevent it. Dr. J. P. West of the Wisconsin state department of agriculture, was sent by the new commissioner of agriculture, J. D. Jones Jr., to a recent meeting of the Illinois T. B. Vigilance association at Woodstock to offer coöperation from his state. He announced that Wisconsin would go half way in prosecuting violators on the state line.

Nineteen suspicious herds recently shipped from Wisconsin to counties in northern Illinois were placed under quarantine, until they could be tested, by a veterinarian sent out by Dr. F. A. Laird, chief state veterinarian, Springfield, Ill.

"MINNESOTA SAYS IT WITH SUNFLOWERS.—With this seventeen footer a back lotter in Minneapolis is willing to throw his hat in the ring with Kansas growers or sunflower producers of the whole world. This sunflower, grown this year, measures seventeen feet from the ground to the top of the flower, which is fourteen inches in diameter. The plant was so top heavy that supports had to be used to prevent it from breaking.

Live Stock Show Entries Eclipse 1922 Records

LAST night when the accountants closed their books at the office of the International Live Stock exposition tabulated figures of the entries of live stock indicated that the aggregate total will greatly exceed last year's record of 10,000. All entries of the car lot marketable candidates and the horse show entries are not in. Books on the carload division do not close until next Saturday, and many entries of the horse show probably are in the mail, for they do not close until tomorrow.

Cattle lead in the number of entries in the individual classes with a total of 2,071. Fifteen hundred are to be shown in the breeding division.

Every breed of hogs shows an increase in entries over last year and the total runs up to more than 1,200, putting pigs in second place. More than 700 hogs will compete in the fat classes.

There are 1,048 sheep entered, 647 being listed in the breeding contests.

Those who attended the show last year will remember the magnificence of the draft horses that marched in the great live stock parade held each night of the exposition. This year, with 508 horses entered, there will be enough to fill the tan bark arena to the extreme edge of the white rim.

The management announced last night that many late entries had to be refused. If these had been counted, the grand total would have been much larger. But, officials say, that limited space will be crowded to capacity as it is, and is has been found necessary to provide additional quarters for the large increase of animals entered in practically all departments.

Thirty states and four Canadian provinces are already represented, giving a comprehensive display of the champion live stock, the best in the land, in each section of the continent.

"In checking over the 'who's who' in the entry list it has been encouraging and significant to note that fully 75 per cent of the exhibitors who won championships at the exposition last winter are to be here with their animals and other products this year," said B. H. Heide, general manager of the show. "In many cases we find they are returning with the same animals with which they triumphed last year. But the enthusiastic exhibitors' real surprises often come when the new animals—those making their first appearance at the International—are led into the rings.

"The list of exhibitors this time includes new names of breeders and farmers and names of animals, new lights of the live stock world, who have been making history at summer and fall fairs. We have every reason to believe that the closest contests ever held between cattle, hog, sheep, and horsemen may be expected at the show the first week in December."

Iowa Picks Contest Judges.

The seven men who are to represent the Iowa State college in the intercollegiate live stock judging contests at the International Live Stock exposition to be held here in Chicago the first week in December have already been selected. While only five will actually take part in the contest, seven have been chosen, but the final selection of the team will be left until later. The seven men, including the team and two alternates, are J. H. Turner, DeWitt, Ia.; C. P. Streeter, Croton, S. D.; K. J. Maltas, Delmar, Ia.; C. C. Malone, Delta, Ia.; Paul Williams, Villisca, Ia.; H. L. Gibson, Grimes, Ia., and W. A. Marshman, Hubbard, Ia. P. S. Sheaffer is coaching the Iowa team.

POULTRY TIPS

In this department it was recently incorrectly stated that hens molting early should be saved for next year's breeding pens. Early molting indicates either poor management or poor breeding. Save only the late molters; they are the best layers.

L. R. Card, poultry specialist, University of Illinois, says in discussing culling that all factors should be considered before culling a hen. "An early molter may be a reasonably good hen if all other things are in her favor," he adds. "She will show her quality by a rapid molt, a tendency to shed all feathers at once rather than a few at a time. Such hens are not common, to be sure, but they do occur. When found they should be given a chance."

Coast to Coast in High Gear!

New Oldsmobile Six demonstrates new degree of engine flexibility and motor car stamina

The first car to cross the American continent in high gear! Driven by "Cannonball" Baker, holder of numerous road records, a new Oldsmobile Six (stock car with standard gear ratio) traveled 3,674 miles under every conceivable road and weather condition. Rain, snow, mud, rock-strewn passes and washed-out roads were encountered. Grades ranging from 5 to 17 per cent were negotiated. Yet, during this test, the car averaged 28.7 miles per gallon of gasoline.

This run was planned to demonstrate the great flexibility and stamina of the new Oldsmobile Six by subjecting the car to the most unreasonable driving conditions. The 12½ days of the trip were equivalent to years of average driving. The fact that the car came through this gruelling test with only minor adjustments and no recourse to the emergency kit, is proof of the car's ability to give satisfaction in the hands of owners.

See the new Oldsmobile Six at our showroom.

Are You this Woman?

She is in the grip of a "social" disease.

Naturally she is worried—at times terrified—for she has heard of the ruin brought to health and life by venereal infections. She realizes, too, that these most serious of all diseases are easily transmitted to others and that she may accidentally infect some innocent person, perhaps some member of her family or a friend.

She dreads discovery. She knows that although many cases are innocently acquired, few people have consideration for those who have contracted venereal diseases. She has heard expressions which make her feel that she would be shunned or deserted by friends were her condition to become known. So she suffers in silence, hoping that "it may not be so bad after all."

Are you this woman? If so, let us speak frankly.

You are right in assuming that you have a serious disease. No matter which form of venereal infection it may be, if you let it go on unchecked it is sure to grow worse and sooner or later others will know because of symptoms which cannot be hidden.

You are wrong to continue to suffer in secret, hoping that it may become better, hoping that nobody may know. There is only one thing to do and that is to take treatment before the disease makes further inroads upon your system.

Most of the women who have to be operated upon for pelvic diseases go into the surgeon's hands because of venereal infection. Childless homes, children born blind, crippled or with imbecile minds, men and women made hopeless and often lifelong invalids, and thousands taken by premature death are other results of uncured "social" diseases.

You need not suffer such consequences if you act in time. "Social" diseases can be cured through proper medical treatment. Even in advanced stages they can usually be kept from doing further harm.

The Public Health Institute offers you the services of trained physicians to whom it gives every facility for treating these diseases by the most effective methods known to medical science. During the three years since its organization the Institute has restored health to thousands of infected people, many of whom thought their diseases were incurable.

Your case is like that of others who were once in despair, now well again because they took prompt steps to secure the necessary aid. You can learn just what your condition is by a visit to 72 East Randolph Street where the Institute maintains a department exclusively for Women and Children with experienced physicians in charge and women attendants. Treatment is given in privacy; the fees are small and the same to everybody. No patient pays more than another for the same service, and none need hesitate to come on account of lack of ready money.

The point is to get the treatment you need without delay. It is only folly to put off now what conditions will make it necessary for you to do later. You cannot avoid obtaining medical help and the sooner you obtain it the better.

We Treat Men Also

Men who require treatment for these diseases can secure the services of skilled physicians at the Men's Department, 32 N. State St. Every facility is provided here as at the Women's Department for expert diagnoses, and proper treatment.

With such service as this available no infected person should let the disease get the best of him. "Social" diseases can be cured.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

PLAN $1,000,000 12 STORY STORE, WABASH-ADAMS

Hartman Company to Use Entire Building.

Work will start May 1 on a $1,000,000 twelve story "department store of home furnishings" for the Hartman Furniture and Carpet company, to be erected by the Palmer estate at the northwest corner of Wabash and Adams, from plans by Alfred S. Alschuler. The Hartman concern has leased the building for twenty-five years from the Palmer estate and will occupy the entire building.

According to Martin L. Straus, vice president of the Hartman company, it will be the most elaborate and comprehensive furniture and home furnishings department store in the world. More than a hundred model rooms will be completely furnished, with decorations and furniture suitable for practically every thickness of pocket book.

The entire scope of the Hartman business will be enlarged to take in everything in the way of home furnishings, as well as furniture. It will be by far the largest retail furniture store in Chicago and possibly the entire country.

The present Hartman loop store at 226 South Wabash will occupy the new building. The company has branches on Milwaukee avenue, North avenue, and on 63d and does a mail order furniture business, with a warehouse on Wentworth avenue.

The new loop building will be 120x160 and will replace old improvements. Work will start May 1, and completion date is set for about a year later. L. L. Sachs & Co. represented the Hartman company and Ross & Co. the Palmer estate.

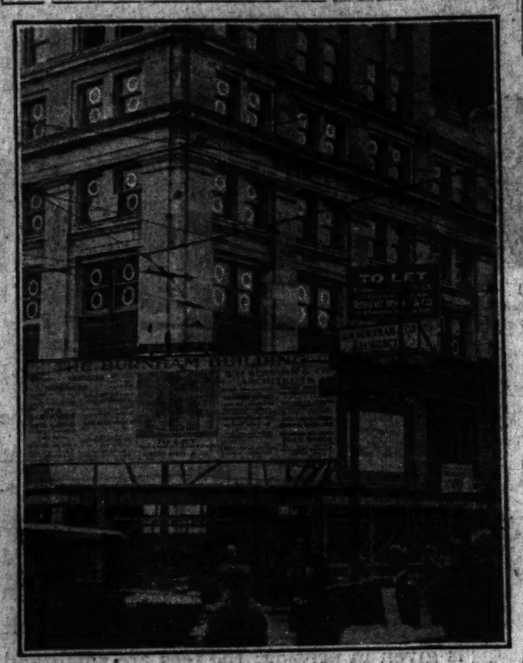
Sell Flats at Judson and Main, Evanston: $250,000

The three story apartment building at the southeast corner of Judson and Main, Evanston, adjoining the Evanston hotel, was sold by Jeremiah McGraw to an undisclosed buyer, Mildred E. Lindskog taking title, at a reported $250,000, subject to $160,000, the vacant northeast corner of Sheridan road and South boulevard being given as part payment at $48,000. W. K. Young & Bro. represented the seller and W. A. Pridmore the buyer.

Morgan Pk. Academy Buys Addition to Its Campus

The Morgan Park Military academy has bought 50x200 on the south side of West 111th street, 295 feet east of Irving avenue, in Morgan Park, adjoining the campus, for $8,500. The residence on the property will be made into a two flat building for use of the faculty and the grounds used as an addition to the campus. Enoch J. Price, president of the academy board of trustees, handled the legal details.

Tidying Up a Loop Skyscraper



With dozens of big loop buildings running a race to see which can put up the most artistic canopy to protect the passing pedestrians from skull fracture, it's interesting to note another innovation in keeping buildings under construction from being any more hideous than possible. It's a little thing, but, so far as we know, is a novelty and worth imitating.

Few people seem to know why windows in new buildings as fast as they are put in are covered with caballistic signs, which look as though the Halloween small boy had soaped 'em. These weird looking disfigurements are put on to warn the workmen that the glass is in and not to poke a piece of lumber through it.

Every builder knew they made the building look bad, but the same attitude that permitted ramshackle looking sheds to be erected in front of magnificent skyscrapers to protect passersby was responsible for the window disfigurements.

The Burnham building, now under construction at the northwest corner of La Salle and Randolph, has a canopy that looks pretty sick when compared with the attractive arcade-like structure in front of the new Straus building. But, as shown above, it has taken a step forward in construction neatness and attractiveness by having the warning marks on the windows made in clean cut circles instead of a mess of marks. It's only a small thing, but it's already caused much favorable comment.

Merrill and 67th St. Flats Change Hands at $300,000

The fifty apartments at the southwest corner of Merrill and 67th were sold by Winfield Scott Blocher to Dr. M. L. and Philip A. Winestein, through Hymen, Pfau & Stenhouse, for a reported $300,000, subject to $175,000, giving in part payment the seven stores and one flat the southeast corner of Brompton and Halsted, at $60,000.

Leases Crescent Arms for Ten Year Term: $108,000

The Crescent Arms apartments at 4063 Sheridan road have been leased by Joseph Levinson from Joseph S. Heil for ten years at a reported term rental of $108,000. These are thirty-two kitchenette flats. Sidney L. Stein & Co. represented both parties.

PLANS $1,000,000 APARTMENTS ON NORTH SPAULDING

Randolph W. Matteson has bought 420 feet of vacant on the west side of North Spaulding avenue, near Wrightwood, for $75,500, subject to $41,250 from Wolf Leibovits, according to Edelson & Tannenbaum, attorneys for the seller.

Herman S. Landfield, attorney for Mr. Matteson, states his client plans erecting $1,000,000 worth of apartment buildings from plans by Paul F. Olsen. There'll be six buildings, of thirty flats each, with two, three and four room apartments.

Brokers' Notes

H. M. Woods, formerly with E. C. Ecker and associates, announces opening offices at 230 East Ohio street, where he is engaged in the selling, leasing, and financing of construction of industrial properties. His phone is Superior 9360.

The North Side Realty company has moved from The Tribune building to larger quarters in the Chicago Temple, suite 711. The new phone is Central 867.

The Logan Square State and Savings bank announces the appointment of W. J. Roehler as manager of its real estate loan department. He was formerly with the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank.

The Peoples Mortgage company, specializing in second mortgage loans, announces opening offices in the Chicago temple. James F. Basiger, formerly general manager of the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation, is in charge.

BUY WOODLAWN GARAGE.

Ross B. Rector and Harlan S. Rector bought the garage and salesroom at 6059-3, Cottage Grove, 150x105, which they have occupied under lease for two years, from Leo Schmalhausen for an indicated $80,000. The buyers now operate three south side garages.

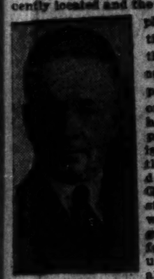
REAL ESTATE NEWS

SUGGESTS NEW DRIVE FROM 22D TO LINCOLN PARK

Saarinen Urges Big Union Depot at Randolph.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago will have the most magnificently located and the most elaborately planned union station and hotel in the world; at the north end of Grant park; a stupendous and comprehensive boulevard paralleling Michigan avenue from the Lake Shore drive, across Grant park, to 22d st., and the world's greatest garage, to care for 12,000 cars, under practically all of Grant park, if Eliel Saarinen's remarkable lake front plan, now made public, is carried out.



ELIEL SAARINEN. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

Mr. Saarinen, who won second prize in THE TRIBUNE tower architectural contest, suggests that not only the Illinois Central build its contemplated great terminal at the north end of Grant park on its own property, but that it be made a union station to be shared in by the Northwestern (which would tunnel under the river and bring its trains over its present tracks on the north side) and, of course, by the roads now using the Grand Central, Dearborn and La Salle stations.

Thus instead of the new I. C. terminal being a mile south of Madison street, at Roosevelt road, it would be just east of Michigan and Randolph, much more easily accessible to the loop. The present Roosevelt road site could be sold at a tremendous figure.

Boulevard to Parallel Michigan.

The second great feature of Mr. Saarinen's plan is so simple and natural a development that it seems odd none of our local city planners thought of it. It means practically the elimination of through traffic from Michigan avenue and the building of a magnificent boulevard starting from a point northeast of the Drake, to be made by filling in the lake, and extending south below present street level along what is now Fairbanks court, with a width of 120 feet; crossing the river on a permanent stone bridge and sweeping around a central plaza just north of Randolph, the center of which would be occupied by the big terminal hotel.

This magnificent boulevard would extend across Grant park, passing just west of the Field museum and the new stadium, with plazas at intervals, culminating in a great open place at 22d street, the keynote of which, perhaps, would be a 1,600 foot steel tower. This would be the highest structure in the world, even topping the proposed Philadelphia tower. A perfectly straight boulevard, about four and a half miles along, would extend directly north from the tower, with the view continuing out over the lake as the shore line sweeps to the west at the north end of the proposed drive.

Greatest Through Route.

This great boulevard from 22d to Lincoln park would be Chicago's greatest north and south through motor route, but would not interfere with the development of the Chicago plan commission's proposed hooking up of the Lake Shore drive with Grant park at the mouth of the river. The completion of that outer drive would merely give Chicago still another north and south boulevard and relieve Michigan avenue that much more.

The proposed underground union station at Randolph street and its forty or fifty story hotel on top would be the keynote to an intensive development of "air rights" over the entire section bounded by Michigan avenue, Randolph, the river, and the lake. Experts figure that these rights are even more valuable to the Illinois Central than those in New York are to the New York Central. They will total unbelievable millions.

Tracks Entirely Covered.

Of course, all roads using the proposed station would be electrified. The tracks through Grant park would be depressed much lower than now contemplated and would be entirely covered over.

And here is a prediction, made by Mr. Saarinen, which will cheer the hearts of the south siders. He says the most modern part of Chicago is going to develop along the I. C. The tracks can be depressed much more deeply than now planned, and, of course, it will be to the advantage of the I. C. to do so, for its "air rights" can be used along the entire right of way, overlooking the great shore development, and miles of magnificent hotels and apartment buildings erected, bringing in millions of revenue to the railroad.

Space doesn't permit giving all the details of Mr. Saarinen's great plan. John Jenkins, automobile editor of THE TRIBUNE, will tell all about the 38,000 car garage and the traffic features of the plan in his department in this issue.

Would Finance Itself.

Mr. Saarinen believes the entire project would finance itself. The garage rentals would soon pay for the project, he says. Of course, the I. C. "air rights" would mean more than pay for any cost of a terminal, no matter how stupendous.

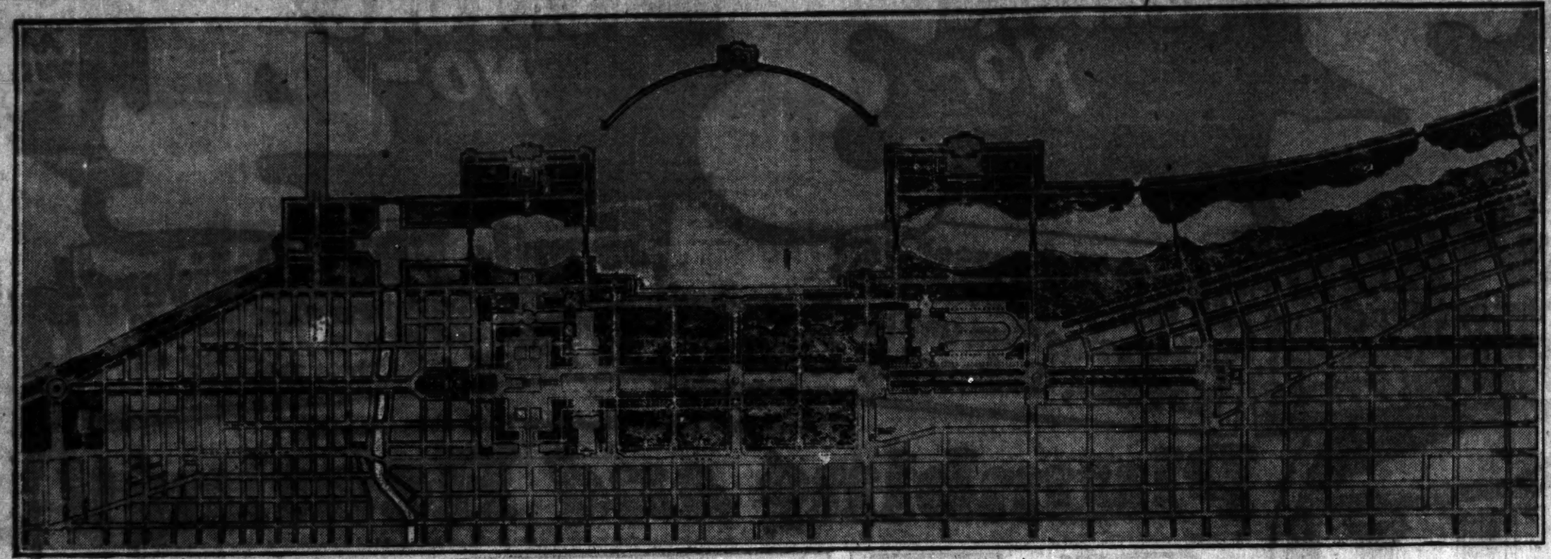
Lest Chicagoans think that this great Saarinen project is a bit presumptious on the part of an outsider, we'll quote the great architect and city planner. He says: "I've not aimed to present that plan which shall be executed but one that can be."

LEASES HALSTED STREET GARAGE.

John F. Lynch is erecting a one story garage 100x125 at 1514 North Halsted for Gartman & Singleton on a fifteen year lease at a term rental of $81,000. R. A. Sadtke of E. E. Dortzin & Co. represented all parties.

(For other real estate news see page 14.)

ELIEL SAARINEN'S PROPOSED LAKE FRONT DEVELOPMENT



Above is the suggested linking of the north and south sides with a boulevard comparable with some of Paris' famous thoroughfares. This is a plan which would place the world's finest union station at the foot of Randolph street, give Chicago the largest garage in the universe, and take countless other steps toward making Chicago the world's most beautiful and convenient city. More is told in another column.

ARCHITECTURE

BY ARTHUR WOLTERSDORF.

[F. A. I. A.]

This column on architecture is written for The Tribune by Mr. Woltersdorf, representing the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The November meeting of the Chicago chapter A. I. A. brought forth two subjects for active discussion.

Howard C. Alley, formerly of Boston, now of Chicago, dwelt on the subject of color in architecture. He found the greatest shortcoming in architecture from 1870 to the present day was its lack of color. Color and form, he said, were inseparable. Good composition is often entirely ruined by mistakes in the selection of color of the material in juxtaposition. Additions to existing buildings were cited as causing most unfortunate changes. Color was of two kinds, active and passive. Active color had three dimensions, the third being caused by relief or reveal. Passive color had two dimensions, or pattern work in color on a plane. The Monadnock block and the Marshall Field wholesale house were cited as examples of active color.

Henry K. Holsman led the discussion on a school for industrial art. Of all men that should be interested in this subject, architects, he thought, should be the foremost. A resolution was passed to create a committee to assist in the promotion of such a school. A committee of citizens is now at work on the same subject, and the architects' committee to be appointed will work with the citizens' committee, whose first duty is to formulate plans and collect or find funds.

George Maher pleaded for active prosecution of the restoration of the Fine Arts building in Jackson park and for reinstatement of hte architects' committee.

AID SOCIETY BUYS HOUSE.

The Mutual Benefit and Aid society, for the last thirty years in the Ashland block, has bought the Dr. Frank D. Moore residence at 2934 Washington boulevard, lot 80x200, for $26,000. Edward J. Scott of E. Wetterdorf & Co. represented both parties. This is the second recent sale in this block for office purposes made by this firm.

START $300,000 FLATS AT ROGERS AND EASTLAKE

Work has just started on a $300,000 flat building at the northwest corner of Rogers avenue and Eastlake terrace, to contain eighty-four two and four room apartments. The architect is Ralph Hussagh. Mrs. Alice Ingram is owner. It will be completed May 1.

First Prosecution Made Under Surveyors' Act

The first prosecution under the Illinois Land Surveyors Act, passed in 1919, has just been completed before the board of examiners of land surveyors for Cook county, consisting of Joseph F. Haas, recorder, William Kramer, vice president, and W. D. Jones, secretary.

The prosecution was brought by the Advance Window Frame company, represented by Attorney Joseph F. Eiserd, against Jens D. Doe, a Chicago surveyor of many years practice, for the alleged gross negligence of Doe in surveying tract of ground at 4450 West Division street, in such a manner as to put the foundation of a building six-teen feet north of the lot line into street.

The board found Doe guilty of gross carelessness and ordered his license suspended for a period of three months.

PLANS WINNETKA BUILDING.

Herman Feigenheimer has bought the 153 x140 vacant on Winnetka avenue, west of Warwick, in Winnetka, from William Pampel, for an indicated $60,000. It probably will be improved with a large store building.

MR. RILEY VS. COOK COUNTY REAL ESTATE BOARD—ON TORRENS

We give below a copy of a bulletin issued by the Cook County Real Estate board under date of Nov. 14, which speaks for itself:

"We reproduce herewith a letter broadcasted by Harrison B. Riley, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, together with comment of J. P. Hecht, chairman of the Torrens committee of the Cook County Real Estate board.

"Though it may amaze the reader, Mr. Riley's communication is in accord with the position long ago taken by our board that the guarantee policy has inherent weaknesses which make it undependable and therefore, in addition to other reasons, the Torrens certificate must be considered the only satisfactory evidence of a good title. It might also be added that the escrow department of the Torrens office, established by law, will suit the purposes of the real estate vender or purchaser much better than that of the private company.

A. J. R."

(Letterhead.)

CHICAGO TITLE AND TRUST COMPANY
69 West Washington Street
Chicago
Office of the President.
Nov. 5, 1923.

T. A. McGrogan,
9211 Broadway,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir: A gentleman with a serious grievance walked into my office the other day.

"I took out a guarantee policy on my new property," he said, "and now here's a lien for $1,000 that I am told is the guarantee department is not covered by the policy."

So we checked up, and we found that the lien had been created in THE PERIOD BETWEEN THE EXAMINATION OF THE TITLE (DATE OF GUARANTEE POLICY) AND THE DATE OF RECORDING THE DEED (i. e., THE "LATER DATE").

Had he closed his purchase through escrow the title gap would have been fully covered. As it was, he was in trouble—and his opinion of the real estate dealer who had allowed him to take such risk was most unflattering.

This is not a single instance—it is typical of many. Yet we don't feel that it is for us to tell your client that he should close through escrow — that suggestion should properly come from the realtor, or the attorney, who is representing him.

Yours,
(Signed) HARRISON B. RILEY,
President.

News of the Architects

The Chicago Architectural club announces a prize competition of architectural problems in charge of Fred Hodgdon. The first of these monthly events will take place at the club rooms, 40 South Clark, next Friday evening. There'll be a dinner before the contest begins.

Architect Ralph Hussagh has moved to 14 West Washington street. His phone number is unchanged.

Eliel Saarinen, winner of the second prize in THE TRIBUNE architectural contest, left last night for Ann Arbor. He will lecture during the next four weeks on architecture at the University of Michigan.

Leonard Anthony Gliatto has opened offices for the practice of architecture at 64 East Van Buren street.

BUY SITE FOR GARAGE.

Henry P. Reger and Daniel J. Harris have bought the 100x175, with old improvements, at 7519 Exchange avenue, for $41,000, as the site for a garage. Carroll, Schacdort & Bernicke were brokers.

ARCHITECTURAL CLUB HEAD NAMED AS JUDGE ON GOLD MEDAL JURY

Pierre Blouke, president of the Chicago Architectural club, has been selected by Charles E. Fox, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, and Alfred Granger, president of the Chicago chapter of the A. I. A., to be the third judge in the jury which will decide which is the most beautiful building erected during 1923 in the north central district.

PIERRE BLOUKE. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

A picture of the medal to be given the winning architects by the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank was shown in this department on Nov. 4. Mr. Blouke is a graduate of M. I. T., '17. He won the $1,000 traveling scholarship of the Chicago Architectural club in 1919. He was at one time on the Chicago zoning board, later with Parsons & Bennett, and is now practicing architecture at 721 Upper Michigan avenue.

Walgreen Company to Open 41st Chicago Drug Store

The Walgreen Drug company has leased the store at the southwest corner of Clark and Belmont from Nathan T. Brenner at a minimum guaranteed rental of $50,000. This will be this concern's forty-first store. Carl A. Ehrenhalt and George J. Kappes were brokers.

WHEAT VALUES HOLD UP DESPITE BEARISH NEWS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Foreign political conditions with a continued decline in exchange rates attracted more attention from the grain trade than of late, but wheat prices failed to break into new ground during the day, and sufficient support was received from commission houses and shorts to hold values within a range of ½@⅝c on the nearby futures, with the finish at net losses of ⅛@⅜c. Corn was easy and finished ⅛@⅜c lower with oats unchanged to ⅛c lower and rye ½c higher.

In the face of the break in exchange, export demand for wheat from Europe showed more activity, much to the surprise of the trade, and Winnipeg developed independent strength in consequence, closing ½@⅝c higher, while Minneapolis was ⅛@⅜c lower, getting farther out of line for further business in Canadian. Elevator interests there sold futures, suggesting that farmers were cashing in on their storage tickets and not replacing with the May.

Market's Action Surprising.

When everything is considered, the action of the wheat market the last week has been surprising. Liquidation was on at times, and news was of a most depressing character, yet at the close December was off only 1½c as compared with a week ago, May off 1c, while July was unchanged. The northwest was a good seller of May and July here during the day. The trade generally look for a good increase to be shown in the visible supply statement Monday, and settlement generally is still decidedly bearish.

Corn Has Easy Undertone.

Reports of hog cholera are increasing from parts of the corn belt, although there are claims that in some sections the losses are due to typhoid pneumonia rather than cholera. However, the fears that consumption of corn will be restricted due to the desire to get rid of the hogs is causing increased pressure on corn futures and with a majority of local traders bearish the range was lower, with December 73¾c and May 73c at the last, the lowest prices for the week.

As compared with a week ago values show losses of 1½ to 2¾c with December leading. Dryers are buying No. 4 and lower grades of cash corn. Sample values were unsettled with No. 3 grades firmer and some of the poorer kinds were off 1c. In parts of Iowa and Nebraska it will be two weeks or more before husking is completed.

Oats Attract More Attention.

Several commission houses have come out with a bullish view on the oats market, regarding prices to relatively too low in comparison with other feeding stuffs. Trade in futures was slightly larger and increased speculative offers the break in corn. Cash premiums were slightly firmer at 1¼c to 3c over December for No. 2 white. As compared with a week ago prices are ¾c higher to ⅛c lower, the former on December.

Talk of export business and buying by commission houses in rye more than offset the easier tone in wheat and the undertone was firm. No 2 on track sold at 2c over December.

Provisions were dull and easier with lard and ribs 2½c lower, and ribs 2½c to 5c lower at the last. Liverpool lard was up 3d to 1s 3d, and a loose with Liverpool connections bought January early which was sold by packers. Prices follow:

WHEAT VALUES HOLD UP DESPITE BEARISH NEWS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Foreign political conditions with a continued decline in exchange rates attracted more attention from the grain trade than of late, but wheat prices failed to break into new ground during the day, and sufficient support was received from commission houses and shorts to hold values within a range of ½@¾c on the nearby futures with the finish at net losses of ½@¾c lower with oats unchanged to ¼c lower and rye ¼c higher.

In the face of the break in exchange, export demand for wheat from Europe showed more activity, much to the surprise of the trade, and Winnipeg declined independent strength in consequence, closing ½@¾c higher, while Minneapolis was ½@¾c lower, getting farther out of line for further business in Canada. Elevator interests there sold freely, suggesting that farmers were cashing in on their storage tickets and not replacing with the May.

Market's Action Surprising.

When everything is considered, the action of the wheat market the last week has been surprising. Liquidation was on at times, and news was of a most depressing character, yet at the close December was off only 1½c as compared with a week ago, May off 1c, while July was unchanged. The northwest was a good seller of May and July here during the day. The trade generally look for a good increase to be shown in the visible supply statement Monday, and settlement generally is still decidedly bearish.

Corn Has Easy Undertone.

Reports of hog cholera are increasing from parts of the corn belt, although there are claims that in some sections the losses are due to typhoid pneumonia rather than cholera. However, the fears that consumption of corn will be restricted due to the desire to get rid of the hogs is causing increased pressure on corn futures and with a majority of local traders bearish the range was lower, with December 73¼c and May 73c at the last, the lowest prices for the week.

As compared with a week ago values show losses of 1¼ to 1¾c with December leading. Dryers are buying No. 4 and poor grades of cash corn. Sample values were unsettled with No. 3 grades firmer and some of the poorer kinds were off 1c. In parts of Iowa and Nebraska it will be two weeks or more before husking is completed.

Oats Attract More Attention.

Several commission houses have come out with a bullish view on the oats market, regarding prices to relatively too low in comparison with other feeding stuffs. Trade in futures was slightly larger and increased speculative offset to break in corn. Cash premiums were slightly firmer at 1¼c to 3c over December for No. 2 whites. As compared with a week ago prices are ½c higher to ½c lower, the former on December.

Talk of export business and buying by commission houses in rye more than offset the easier tone in wheat and the undertone was firm. No 2 on track sold at 2c over December.

Provisions were dull and easier with lard and hog ribs 1½c lower, and ribs 2½ to 5c lower at the last. Liverpool lard was up 3d to 1s 3d, and a house with Liverpool connections bought January early which was sold by packers. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of wheat at the seaboard were estimated at 200,000 bu, but inquiry from the amount of buying of futures at Winnipeg the quantity was in excess of this figure.

Chicago handlers sold 15,000 bu wheat, 50,000 bu corn, and 90,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with 1,150,000 bu oats said to go to store.

Cash wheat here was unchanged here, with No. 2 hard 1¼@2c over December, receipts 30 cars. Outside markets were easier, with Kansas City unchanged to 2c lower, Omaha unchanged to 1c lower, and St. Louis generally unchanged.

Weakness has developed in the southwestern and western cash corn markets, with St. Louis and Omaha unchanged to 1c lower for the day, while Kansas City declined 1@2c. Peoria and Milwaukee were off 1@2c. A car of old No. 3 white at Chicago sold at 93c, but there are very few cars of old grain coming forward from any section at the present time. New corn was unsettled, with some dry No. 2 yellow and white selling higher, while the lower grades were off as much as 1½c in some instances. Receipts, 175 cars.

Demand for cash oats showed improvement, with No. 2 white 1¼@3c, and No. 3 white ½c under to 2c over December. Receipts, 55 cars.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

A surprising feature of the wheat market was the limited selling pressure in the face of the demoralization in the foreign exchange markets. Failure of English markets to weaken, despite demoralization, was given as one of the reasons for the strength. Sentiment remains bearish, but the indisposition on the part of the largest traders to press the selling side largely accounted for the stubbornness of the market. The trade on the whole still looks for lower prices.

A local long who has endeavored to support the corn market of late was credited with selling a big line of December and May toward the last through a number of commission houses, which made the closing break. The trade is looking for a larger movement of cash corn and lower prices unless weather conditions prevent. The cash corn market was a puzzle to the trade, but speculators mainly seem to have but one idea and that is that corn values are headed for a lower level.

Dryers are being operated more extensively than for several years and the low grade corn is being bought freely and No. 3 and No. 3 corn made. The elevator people are to be a big factor in the corn market this season because of the large quantity of low grade grains.

Hog cholera is reported serious in many sections of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri and Indiana. Reports received by Chicago commission houses who have investigated show heavy losses. One farmer at Macomb, Ill., reports a loss of 400 hogs. A message from Sioux City, Ia., to J. E. Bennett & Co., said that hog cholera prevailed in that section of Iowa and South Dakota. A specialist advised it is not cholera, but typhoid pneumonia, which is worse than cholera, due to wet, damp weather.

Wheat receipts at primary markets since July 1 aggregate 206,250,000 bu, compared with 231,548,000 bu last year. Oat receipts since Aug. 1 aggregate 90,777,000 bu, against 97,023,000 bu last year.

"It is intimated that the lower grades of wheat are being placed in position for delivery on December contract with some of the outside markets," says Thomson & McKinnon. Outside interest in the market is beginning rather than broadening, the entire market seeming to have gone stale. Originally this condition precedes a period of liquidation; we think that is the case at the present time."

"In view of the almost complete absence of accumulations of corn in all elevators," said a commission man, "there is a possibility that the December price must make the adjustment between cash and futures. However, it depends entirely upon the movement from the country."

Weather and crop reports from Argentina suggest rust in wheat. Harvesting is making fair headway in the northern section.

Australian shipments of wheat for the week were 960,000 bu, compared with 544,000 bu the previous week.

RAILROAD NOTES

The traffic reports of officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis showed little change in general conditions from recent weeks. The totals will compare favorably not only with those of a year ago but with those of the last few weeks. General purchasing shipments are heavy. Most of the roads continue to place new equipment in operation and are finding use for all of their cars and motive power.

There were 146,205 cars loaded on the Southern Railway system during the month of October, compared with 136,093 cars loaded during the corresponding month last year. Receipts from connections were 83,644, compared with 73,216 last year.

A call for a meeting tomorrow of the board of directors of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railway to elect a president to succeed the late George B. Huntington, was issued yesterday.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—COTTON—Cotton was under pressure from holders and short sellers owing to the demonstration in the foreign exchange markets. Liquidation carried prices down materially from which there was a fair rally on profit taking at the last. Net losses were 19 to 21 points. Strength in Liverpool was without effect early but there was good absorption on the break. Bullish southern spot advices helped the late rally. Prices follow:

Outside interest, attracted by the sharp slump in hog values last week, caused a slight reaction at the close, although top remained unchanged at $6.95 and average only 5c higher at $6.55, due to the accumulation of common grades. Values ruled strong to 15c higher, with underweights and pigs largely 25c above Friday. Shippers absorbed more than 50 per cent of the fresh receipts, while only 4,000 were estimated in the pens at the close. Prices ranged unevenly 30c to 70c below previous Saturday, light and butchers showing the most loss, with average price off 55c. "Spread" in prices was narrowest of the year.

Chicago hog receipts last week at 274,200 were the second largest since week ending Jan. 11, 1919, when offerings at 302,900 were second largest in history. Arrivals last week were 56,700 more than previous week, 56,300 more than a year ago and 79,300 above the ten year average. Estimated average weight of hogs at 224 lbs. equaled the lightest in over eight months, but stands unusually heavy for this season, comparing with the lightest on record during the corresponding week in 1918, when hogs averaged 189 lbs. This week stands 21 lbs above the ten year average. Hog average price at $6.75 equaled the lowest week since December, 1915, being 35c below previous week, $1.40 below a year ago, and $4.00 below the ten year average.

Cattle receipts last week at 82,500 were the smallest in two months, being nearly 20,000 smaller than a year ago, and 43,500 smaller than the corresponding week in 1920, when arrivals at 111,966 were the largest on record. Barring weighty beef steers, which were neglected at little change in prices, most classes of cattle shared in advances of 15@25c for the week, with butcher stock up most. Calves closed 25@50c higher.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Sheep receipts continued to decrease throughout last week, the total at 78,500, being the smallest in about three months. However, with eastern demand lacking after midweek, reactions in all branches of lambs and yearlings were sharp, closing prices being nearly steady with a week ago. Aged stock held up well selling 25@50c above previous week's close. Market in the feeder division ruled 25@50c lower.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 24,000 cattle, 56,500 hogs and 22,000 sheep, against 24,654 cattle, 74,227 hogs and 27,411 sheep, a week ago and 22,684 cattle, 51,483 hogs and 59,415 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 68,000 cattle, 235,000 hogs and 75,000 sheep, against 82,944 cattle, 214,962 hogs and 81,964 sheep, a year ago.

Southern Asks Permit for $20,000,000 Bond Issue

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—The Southern Railway yesterday asked for authority to sell $20,000,000 of development and general mortgage gold bonds to yield 4 per cent.

The bonds will mature April 1, 1956. The bonds were heretofore nominally issued and held in carriers' treasury. They have been sold to J. P. Morgan & Co. at 93 per cent and accrued interest to date of payment of the purchase price by the subscribers on approximately a 6.50 per cent basis.

The issue is to have appended an unsecured promissory obligation to pay additional interest at the rate of 2 per cent, and is to be sold in accordance with the carriers' plan to carry out a comprehensive program for additions and betterments to be made during the next two years.

Do You Want a Steady Income—or to Take a Chance?

When one takes his money out of the bank to invest in a security he does so with the purpose of putting it to work where it will bring him in a steady income. At least that is the intention of the average investor.

If he invests in high grade bonds that are well secured and where the margin of safety for payment of interest and principal (as evidenced by the issuer's past and present earnings) is large he is practically assured of a steady income. He knows that at certain definite dates each year he will receive a fixed sum of money and that on the maturity date the face value of the bond will be returned to him. In the case of a callable bond, if redeemed before maturity, he will usually receive a premium over and above the face value. Thus he is assured not only of a definite income but also of the return of his money at some definite time in the future. And, while holding the bond, he has something which he can use as collateral for a loan in case he needs some ready money and does not want to sell the bond.

If the investor, on the other hand, puts his money into stocks the assurance of a definite income and of the return of his money is lacking. A company may be paying good dividends regularly on its stock, but if for any reason its business falls off and earnings shrink it may either reduce the amount of its dividends or discontinue their payment entirely. A stock is not a secured obligation of the company nor is it a promise to repay a loan. A bond is both. A stock is merely a certificate of ownership in the company. It is entitled to share in the profits of the company (if there are any) after all expenses and charges—including interest on the bonds—have been paid.

Furthermore, a stock has no maturity. There is no date on which the company agrees to return the principal invested. The money stays in the company, and the only way to get it back is to sell the stock for whatever it will bring on the market. It may bring more or it may bring less than it cost. When a stock is paying good dividends it can usually be sold for a good price—but that is not the time one wishes to sell. If the dividend is reduced or discontinued the stock ceases to be as desirable an investment and the owner is likely to want to get rid of it. At such a time, however, the market price has fallen and he may have to sell at a large sacrifice. In that case not only has the income on the investment dwindled or ceased but the investor may not be able to get back anything like the amount of money he put into it.

The investor should bear these things in mind before putting his money to work for him. Do you want an investment that is a secured promise to pay a fixed income regularly and to return your principal at a certain future date, or do you want to take chances on a security that may prove profitable or may ventuall lose? Each kind of security has its place in the investment field and the desirability of of each kind varies just as the resources, conditions, and requirements of each individual investor vary.

New York Cotton Brokers Closed as a Bucket Shop

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Attorney General Shermast today announced he had obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Mullan, enjoining continuance in business as cotton brokers of Scott, Norris & Co., described by Mr. Sherman as a company which has been doing an enormous business in cotton and cotton futures in odd lots, and alleged by him to have conducted a bucket shop. He asserted the brokerage firm, through various technicalities, refused to pay profits to the customers.

FINANCIAL NOTES

There was no particular pressure to sell stocks yesterday, despite the trend of the market, and the belief in some quarters is that the reaction was due more to the cancellations of bids by prospective buyers who have been intimidated by the foreign news rather than to hasty selling on the part of holders of stocks. Virtually all sections of the list participated in the reaction.

Some sharp recessions took place in the early dealings when large blocks were pressed for sale by professional speculators for the decline. Good buying support was met here in forthcoming, however, and early losses of 1 to 3 points were materially reduced. Baldwin broke 2¼ points, but the other recognized industrial leaders showed only fractional recessions on the day.

The usual week-end short covering was particularly effective in some of the low priced oil shares. California Petroleum, Mariand, Coaden, General Asphalt, Pacific, and Pan-American B all closing slightly higher on the day. Other issues to move against the current downward trend were Schulte Stores, up 3%, and United Cigar Stores, up 2.

Some of the heavy spots were General Electric, Stewart-Warner, American Hide and Leather preferred, Computing-Tabulating-Recording, and National Enameling, off 2 to 3¼ points. Railroad shares lost ground with industrials, losses of a point or more being recorded by Northern Pacific, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, Atchison, Missouri Pacific preferred, and Texas and Pacific.

New York Canners, Inc., resumed dividends on its common stock with a quarterly declaration of 50 cents. The last dividend on the common stock was $1.25 a share, paid in October, 1920. Preliminary figures show combined earnings of the company and its subsidiaries for 1923 in excess of $650,000 available for taxes and dividends.

There were 390 commercial failures in the United States last week according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 422 in the preceding week and 431 during the corresponding week last year.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

(Copyright: 1923 Fairchild News Service.)

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Prior to extinction on the boll weevil was declared at the first meeting of the recently organized national boll weevil menace conference. Leading cotton men, agricultural experts and consumers are attending the meeting.

NEW YORK.—American raw fur prices for the new season appear to be still undecided. While talk of a low price scale continues, lists issued by some houses, both locally and out of town, indicate that dealers have changed their views somewhat on the extent of needed reduction from last year's levels.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—One thousand more textile operatives will return to work in the mills on Monday, bringing the total working force to 3,000. New departments opened will go on a schedule of three days a week.

NEW YORK.—Competition in the imitation leather industry is of the keenest, according to general reports, and some manufacturers are alleged to be stopping at nothing. Substitution of inferior base fabric to meet price appeals is hinted.

$50 a MONTH

LAST SUNDAY we showed how a young couple built a beautiful Dutch Colonial Home in North Oak Park by investing only $50 a month in our First Mortgage Bonds. But here is something even more wonderful.

William and Carolyn Davies (we keep our clients' real names in confidence) have just bought the above two-apartment building in a new section of the Northwest Side for a home and an income.

When first they came to us for advice we showed them that investing $50 a month in our bonds, then paying 6%, would give them $3,500 in almost exactly five years. This they did. With this amount of cash and a first mortgage loan that we made them, and also a second mortgage that the builder was glad to take back for the balance, they bought this building. Here are the figures:

COST OF PROPERTY		HOW PAID FOR
Ground and Building	$13,500	Cash Paid to Builder	$ 3,500
		First Mortgage	7,000
		Second Mortgage	3,000
	$13,500		$13,500

Now see how profitable this will prove. First, the Davies own their own home—five rooms and bath, hardwood finish, furnace heat. Second, the rent of the other apartment, $60 a month, will pay off the second mortgage in a little over four years. Of course they pay interest on the mortgages—this month only $50. This is less than the rent they paid before they bought, and as the second mortgage is paid off the interest is constantly reduced. Third, they are continuing to invest $50 a month in our bonds. This $50 added to the $60 rent, which they will also invest after the second mortgage is retired, will pay off the first mortgage in seven years, entirely freeing from debt their income-producing home.

ANY MAN, woman or family who can invest $50 a month in our First Mortgage Bonds can do even better than the Davies, for they invested at 6%, while you can now get 7%. All of the above figures are at 6%, for we cannot tell how much longer 7% will last. Begin now to save and invest for ANYTHING YOU WANT, while you can get 7%. The extra interest is a big help. The New York Times.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The outstanding movement in today's financial markets was again the break in sterling, carrying the rate down 2⅝ cents from Friday's lowest to a figure, $4.37⅛, which was 10¼ cents under the closing of the previous week and 21 cents below the final price of October.

A downward movement on such a scale could not reasonably be expected to continue much longer, unless something disastrous were to happen in European politics or in England's economic situation. There was no indication of either result in last week's markets, which ended with the prophets of further collapse urging that the decline was likely to continue until the result of the general election, to be held on Dec. 6, is known.

Forecast English Labor Victory.

Not highly speculative markets do not wait so long as that. The fall in sterling has already pretty fairly "discounted" a Labor party victory as a result of Baldwin's ill considered move. Between now and the voting we are not unlikely to be favored with convincing arguments as to why a Labor victory is impossible and why, if that should happen, the extremists will not be in control of the party's policies.

Not the least interesting phase of the foreign exchange market's movement today was that while sterling fell thus violently continental rates advanced after only momentary weakness. Under the circumstances this recovery of the franc and lira is reasonably good evidence that a night's rest had removed the acute fears of a "rupture of the entente."

Stocks Dull and Easy.

In today's stock market there were numerous irregular declines. But they were not greatly impressive, affecting mostly the highly speculative industrial shares of the secondary order. As a rule the day's declines were purely fractional, and they occurred on the basis of the smallest total business of any Saturday in three weeks. This readily suggests an investing community frightened about Europe.

Taking the week's changes as a whole, the stock market has lost ground considerably, but less because of the "European scare" than because of realizing sales by purchasers in the impressive advance of the two preceding weeks. The firmness of the domestic bond market has been somewhat striking; but that need hardly cause surprise when the money situation has been making so manifestly for ease and when evidences of the large available supply of investment capital has been so convincing.

N. Y. Bank Deposits Gain.

Net demand deposits of the New York clearing house banks increased $48,091,000 this week, according to the weekly statement issued today. Time deposits, however, showed a decrease of $7,996,000. Surplus reserve was up $1,339,160 and loans and discounts increased $375,000. Reserves in excess of legal requirements now stand at $25,737,490.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in the local unlisted security market continued on a broad scale, with price changes generally showing moderate improvement.

The Buckeye issues were in demand, the preferred being bid up approximately 3 points to 107, without bringing out offerings. In addition to paying the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on this issue, a 97 payment was declared on the back dividends of $16. The common gained 3⅛ points to 43⅜ bid, 43½ asked. Butler Bros. advanced sharply from 33¾ to high sales at 35, but later reacted to 34 bid, 34½ asked. A further rise of 6 points was recorded in Motor Products, closing at 180 bid, 182 asked. Ford of Canada continued its downward trend, being off an additional 3 points at 290 bid, 293 asked. Paige Motor was erratic, advancing sharply 1¾ points to 20⅛, then breaking to 20¼ bid, 20⅝ asked. Timken Axle at 5⅞ bid, 6⅛ asked, was off a fraction of a point.

Burroughs Adding Machine was quiet and 1 point lower at 138 bid, 138 asked. Elgin National Watch was again quoted at 45¼ bid, 47 asked, with little stock changing hands. Bids of 75 for Acme Steel Goods were again unsuccessful in attracting sellers. Shares of National Grocer common ranged between 7⅜ and 7⅝, while the preferred was quoted at 84, with odd lot offerings at 85. The company eased off fractionally to 2⅜ bid, 20¼ asked. Wahl preferred was unchanged at 85, with little interest on the offer side. Some few trades of Albert Pick preferred were reported at 93 and 93. The common and preferred issues of Chicago Railway Equipment showed fractional betterment at 29⅜ bid, 30¼ asked, and 94½ bid, 95 asked, respectively. Sherwin-Williams common rose a major fraction to 91¼ bid, 91⅝ asked.

With the exception of Godchaux preferred, the senior issues showed little change in volume. Godchaux, however, was in demand, advancing some 7 points to a close of 60 bid, 64 asked. Columbia ranged between 6⅝ and 7⅝. Holland St. Louis sustained a loss of ¼ at 5⅛ bid, 5⅜ asked, but Michigan Sugar fractionally higher at 6⅜ bid, 7 asked. Wash-Idaho changed hands at 3⅝.

Public utilities were strong, most issues showing gains of several points at the close. Common Light rose approximately 15 points to 121, but later sold off to a close of 120½ bid, 120½ asked. American Public Utilities was well taken and some 3½ points higher at 30 bid, 31 asked. Commonwealth Power corporation preferred recorded half a point at 69¾ bid, 70¼ asked. Illinois Traction common suffered a slight decline of approximately 2 points at 66 bid, 67⅛ asked.

The firmness of the domestic bond market has been somewhat striking; but that need hardly cause surprise when the money situation has been majored to emphasize the issue and when dealers of the large available supply of investment capital has been so convincing.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in the local unlisted security market continues on a broad scale, with price changes generally showing moderate improvement.

The Bourse issue were in demand, the preferred being bid up approximately 3 points to 107, without bringing out offerings. In addition to paying the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on this issue, a like payment was declared on the back dividends of 8¼. The common gained 1¾ points to 43¾ bid, 43¾ asked. Butler Bros. advanced sharply from 33¾ to high sales at 35, but later reacted to 34 bid, 34¾ asked. A further rise of 6 points was recorded in Motor Products, closing at 180 bid. Part of Canada continued its downward trend, being off an additional 3 points at 200 bid, 203 asked. Fairy Motor was also forcing sharply 1¾ points to 38¾. Then breaking to 20¼ bid, 20¾ asked. Middle Asbestos, 6¾ bid, 6¾ asked, was off a quarter of a point.

Reynolds Adding Machine was quiet and 1 point lower at 128 bid, 128 asked. Elgin National Watch was again quoted at 45¼ bid, 47 asked, with little stock changing hands. Bids of 75 for Acme Steel Goods were again unsuccessful in attracting sellers. Shares of National Grocer common ranged between 7¾ and 7¾, while the preferred was quoted at 84, with odd lot offerings at 86. Other issues were those of fractionality to 1¼ points, with Wahl preferred weakest at 65, with little interest on the other side. Some few trades of Albert Pick preferred were reported at 92 and 93. The common and preferred issues of Chicago Equipment showed fractional improvement at 29¾ bid, 30¼ asked, and 24½ bid, 25 asked, respectively. Sherwin-Williams common rose a major fraction to 31¼ bid, 31½ asked.

Of the section of Goldcrest preferred, the other issues showed little change in value. Goldcrest, however, was in demand, closing some 7 points to a close of 60 bid, 66 asked. Columbia ranged between 6½ and 7¾. Holland St. Louis sustained a loss of 1 at 5¾ bid, 5¾ asked, but Michigan Automobile was fractionally higher at 6¾ bid, 7 asked. Prices changed hands at 3¾.

Public utilities were strong, most issues showing gains of several points at the close. Illinois Light rose approximately 15 points to 121, but later sold off to a close of 120½ bid, 121½ asked. American Public Utilities was well taken and some 3½ points higher at 30 bid, 31 asked. Commonwealth Power corporation preferred rose almost half a point at 69¾ bid, 70¼ asked. Illinois Traction common suffered a decline of approximately 3 points at 59 bid, 57½ asked.

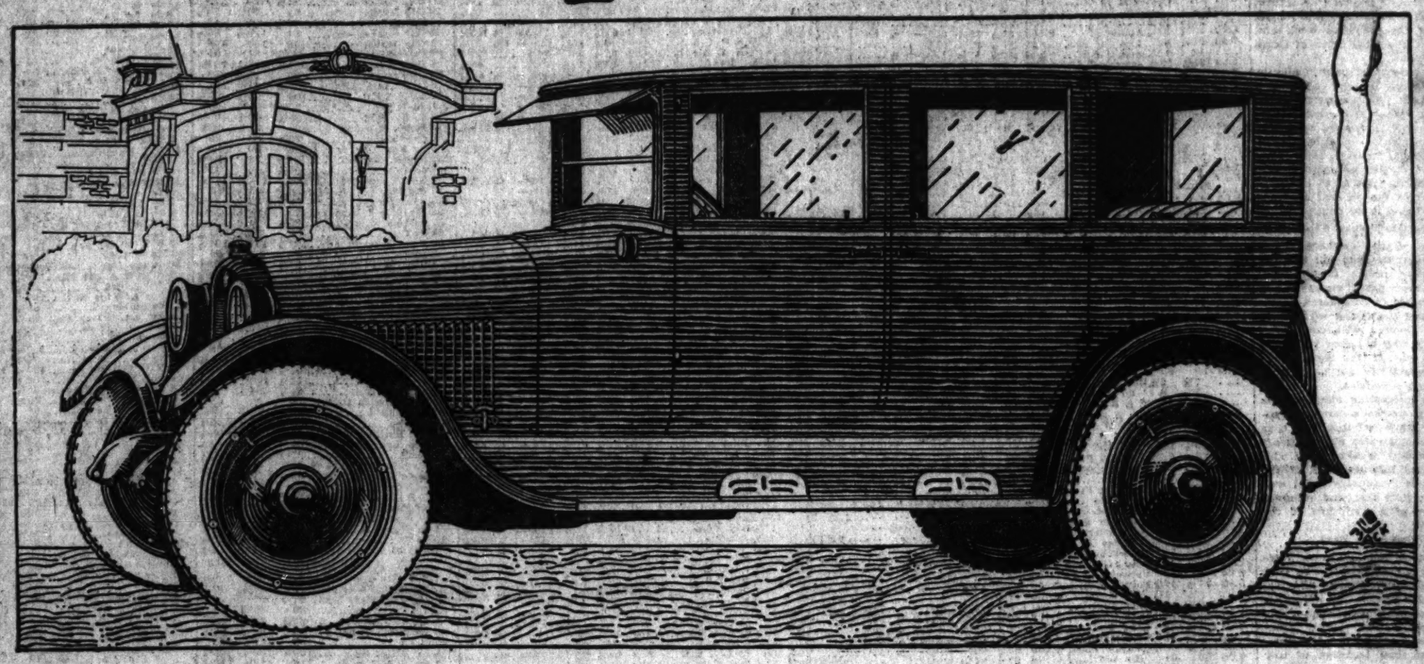
Cuban Gray Cuts Maintenance Cost $300 per Car



Saving the Reo owner trouble and expense with a handsome and more fashionable finish

Five years ago the close of the war set the Reo Engineering Department free again to pioneer new progress in body construction, design and finish.

The resulting improvements now promise to match in importance its more widely appreciated achievements in motor and chassis design.

Cost of materials and labor for repainting with Cuban Gray is only one-fifth that of a good "piano" finish

Difficulties of the shiny "piano" finish

Five years ago the shiny "piano" finish, inherited from the old-fashioned carriage by the automobile, was practically the only one in general use on automobiles.

The shiny gloss of before-the-war furniture had already been displaced by the more beautiful—and more practical—dull finish.

Highly varnished floors and woodwork in homes were being displaced by the more beautiful—and more practical—dull finish.

But the old expensive and impractical "piano" finish in automobiles was still the only one in common use.

It was expensive to apply. It didn't retain its freshness very long under the attacks of coal-smoke, sunlight, rain, snow, mud, and garage washing.

Three good repaintings cost the owner from $150 to $350, and the necessarily difficult washing and polishing cost just about as much more.

In spite of the trouble and expense entailed by the "piano" finish, it never looked well for many months at a time.

Three years ago—Cuban Gray

It was as plain then as it is now that sooner or later the automobile owner would demand a more practical and handsomer finish for his car, just as he was demanding it for his home and furniture.

So three years ago the first Cuban Gray Reo was put into owner service.

It has not been repainted to this day—and is still a well-groomed and handsome car.

The first Cuban Gray Reo in Chicago has now been in use for eighteen months, and it still looks new.

In the meantime many hundreds of Reo purchasers in Chicago have chosen Cuban Gray mainly because it is more attractive in appearance than the "piano" finish.

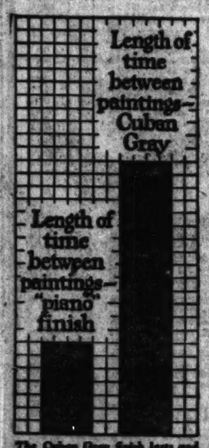
In every case they now value it as highly for its greater economy and convenience as for its good looks.

How it saves trouble and money

In ordinary service, Cuban Gray lasts at least twice as long as the very best "piano" finish.

Under exceptionally hard usage it lasts many times longer.

When it does have to be renewed, repainting requires only as much time as—in many cases less than—the varnish part of a "piano" finish and the material costs only half as much.



The Cuban Gray finish lasts and looks equally well three times as long as the "piano" finish

The resulting saving in repainting costs will run into several hundred dollars for the average car owner—and into hundreds of millions for the entire country.

Easier to wash and polish

For an ordinary cleansing of Cuban Gray all that is required is a liberal use of the garden hose. There is no need for the interminable wiping and polishing required by the shiny "piano" finish.

Every three months the dull gloss of Cuban Gray can be restored with a rag soaked in gasoline and another dipped in olive oil.

This reduction in the high cost of washing and polishing is in many cases quite as important as the saving in repainting costs.

And when the hood or a door is scratched, a can of Cuban Gray paint and a few minutes with a paint brush will remove the marks completely.

Making Reo maintenance costs still lower

The cost of operating and maintaining Reo cars has always been remarkably low.

The Cuban Gray finish is one of the Reo Engineering Department's many achievements in making maintenance cost still lower.

Service costs of $25 for 25,000 miles are commonly reported by Reo owners in Chicago, an average of 1-10 of a cent per mile

Another is the Reo Safety Axle, the driving shafts of which can be replaced at one-tenth the cost entailed by the ordinary axle.

Another is the giant Reo intake valve which steps up power and lowers the cost of carbon removal from 60 to 70 per cent.

These and other factors combine to make maintenance costs of one-tenth of a cent a mile—$25 for 25,000 miles—common with Reo owners.

Reo Motor Car Company, Lansing, Michigan

For those who prefer the standard shiny finish, Reo Blue and Dust Proof Gray will continue to be optional colors on Reo models. Cuban Gray is furnished at the option of the purchaser and without extra charge.

How Reo regards four-wheel brakes

The adoption by the Reo Motor Car Company of any principle of design involving safety, or any other vital interest of the car owner, is governed entirely by the Reo Engineering Department.

Neither the exigencies of competition nor matters of cost have ever been permitted, or will ever be permitted, to over-ride the deliberate decision of this Department.

For the reasons cited in the Reo booklet, "The Present Status of Automobile Brakes," and for many others of a more technical nature, the Reo engineers have decided that four-wheel brakes are still an experiment that may seriously menace the property and lives of the driving public.

The four, foot-controlled, rear-wheel Reo brakes will therefore continue to be the Reo standard unless—and until—some other system has proved itself definitely superior and as incontestably safe.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
PART FIVE. NOVEMBER 18, 1923.

ON THE WHOLE, THE BLACKS HAVE IT

by Mary Homes Howell

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Black velvet frocks with tender, slender collars of ermine—hats to match—are our daily afternoon bread, and we go partying in black velvet, too. Black is eating up all the style menu. Or, if not quite that, it is indulging in the style banquet far more heartily than any other color, black velvet leading, and black satin and black broadcloth helping themselves freely, as far as daytime modes go, with the other colors getting what they can, if they can.

Green, for example, appears to be working hard to make its way by daylight, with small help from anybody.

Knowing there are women in New York who can't, won't, or don't see beauty for themselves in black, or the black and white combination, an effort to meet their desires is being valiantly made. Occasional windows on the avenue and in 57th street are given over to displays entirely in some one other color. For example, a new, pale gold fur is featured to wear with frocks of beige, also featured, but here we are with the browns again, which keep on having their say, repeating in general what they said last season in color.

Not all the silhouettes were beltless and tubular in a certain noted tearoom the other day, and not all the frocks were black, and of velvet, satin, or cloth. Most of them were, it must be confessed, that is, the ones that stood out for smartness.

Still, a navy blue serge with an overdress of georgette effectively enhanced with banding of black soutache stood out as something different in color.

It was a Jenny frock, with the leg of mutton sleeve favored by that establishment, and showed its French origin particularly in the use of a bright color contrast with navy blue. The French dressmaker usually does this with her navy blue serge frocks, and so Jenny used a rose and blue velvet ribbon to make the little tie sash which seemed to carry on the applied girdle.

The frock is the first illustrated to the left. Mother of pearl roses ornament the belt in front, and rows of rose velvet buttons finish the sleeves. The collar is of the high choker variety, and the satin cloche is trimmed high in front with grosgrain ribbon loops.

Another soft cloth dress of the camel's hair type, in navy blue, pictured second from the left, appeared in an exclusive shop fresh from the salt water. It displayed a trimming of self-material on sleeves and skirt that could easily be adopted by a clever needle. Embroidery of blue and vermilion, with a touch of gold, is used. A monogram-like motif headed the bow and sash ends which make the side drape of the distinctly tubular, beltless sheathe. Straps of material swing around the sleeves below the elbow on each arm, one end hanging free. Observe how high up the little embroidered cuff is placed on the sleeve. The actual wrist part is quite unornamented.

Collars hide their diminished heads, so to speak, on street frocks, the favored collar being a simple band. Flat fur is favored, say, black Persian, astrakhan, or broadtail with black velvet, satin, or cloth, or else the white ermine contrast, or perhaps mink, mole, or gray squirrel.

But heads hide their diminished locks when it comes to the evening wrap. As we have said before, and say again, there is nothing the evening or formal wrap won't do to prove its supreme indifference to everything but its own beauty and magnificence, and so with the loveliest evening wrap that stepped out of the Metropolitan door at the call of its carriage number one night, and here given the center of the page. It was of velvet, of course—a blue brocade with silver, banded so royally with kolinsky that only the edge of the top of the wearer's head appeared, a graceful black head, at that. As if realizing that no effort towards success should be omitted, bands of the fur united collar and cuffs.

Seems as if when it comes to a choice between suits and dresses, the little dress with the coat has the ayes or most of them. So when our friend appears with her new fur coat, short, as many of them are, or the three-quarter length, as many are offered in the shops, we immediately begin to wonder what's the idea of the dress under it.

The cleverest little turnout one meets is checks either in two shades of brown, or black and white, with the jacket carrying one of the colors.

Still the costume suit has many admirers and comes out daily with new devices worked upon it. As, for example, the fourth model sketched, a suit of gray twill with a high bloom and rich trimming of sealskin. At the open bolster collar a new device, seen frequently with furs of late, is employed. That of combining two furs. The gray of squirrel that harmonizes with the cloth of the suit is here used, banded with sealskin. The scalloped tier effect, produced by lapping bands, employed so much last season in frocks, appears here in a skirt, and there is a blouse of silver cloth.

The coat of a green velours costume suit without fur trimming, worn by an actress, had a shirred collar and was almost of skirt length. The wearer displayed the silver monogrammed blouse of Lanvin when she removed her coat.

For the little girl's coat, at the extreme right, illustrating the round neck and cuff trimming, tan cloth is combined with otter.

Small hats quite rule the fashionable tearoom of the hour. Though the cloche is, and some say will be for a long time yet, mistress of the situation, its general practicality and frequent becomingness endearing it. Our model, second from the left, though she declares for the tiny frame and the cocarde, still accepts a high roll to one side that is novel.

A four pointed satin turban has come from over seas, to be taken up by Park avenue, and we've noted, among other exceptional shapes, a Russian effect with a round, rolling brim, rather wide, done in white ribbon, that is brought to a peak in front. This was worn with a straight black velvet frock with a V-collar of ermine, banding of ermine at the wrist of the long sleeves, at the elbows, and set into a godet at one side.

Ostrich feather trimming set in a coronet-like circle or fan, was worn with a rose tweed frock and a silver fox fur. A black satin small shape turned up sharply in front and with a stroke of gray ostrich coming from the back at an angle was worn by a girl in black velvet with a short coat of ermine.

Coat dresses are liked as much as ever, judging from the number one meets daily, a white line of ermine accenting the crossed-over closing on black velvet, in instances, or perhaps a black broadcloth will boast of a narrow turnover collar of gray krimmer that widens into broad flaps almost reaching the waistline, and flaring sleeves with wide bandings of the gray krimmer. This frock was worn with a black satin hat also trimmed with ostrich, a downward sweep of gray feathers setting off one side.

MY SON — BY MARY HEATON VORSE

ANTHONY WON'T SHOW OFF.

PAULA was going on a great expedition. The janitress had put it in her mind. Mrs. Spear was going to help her. Anthony was going to emerge from the obscurity of the backyard into the park. This was as it sounded from the outside, but what Paula Andrews was really doing was to show Anthony to the world. She was going to show the other women in the park what an incomparably beautiful baby she had. Every one who had seen him had agreed upon his perfection; now Paula wanted a bigger audience. So Mrs. Spear, her mother's old friend, and Paula put on Anthony's best things.

For some reason Anthony didn't feel like being dressed. It seemed that he didn't care for his debut. He kicked when they tried to put on his jacket. First he punched with his arms when they tried to slip them through the sleeves. Anthony, in fact, gave a splendid impersonation of a human eel. Beads of perspiration stood out on Paula's upper lip, for she couldn't get used to his crying.

At last Mrs. Spear said, "Let me have a try at him." And with the dexterity that Paula so admired she used some legerdemain which made Anthony's arms go where they should. It seemed as if she were doing it almost behind his back when she put on his white coat. She slipped on his little cap, and tied it. But still Anthony continued to howl. The long and short of it was, he didn't feel like being dressed. He was being crossed. His dignity was outraged.

"Let me carry him downstairs," Mrs. Spear urged with that note of eagerness that Paula found so touching.

Let her; Paula was only too glad not to have to carry the squawking Anthony down two flights of stairs. How Paula hated to have Anthony cry; she never could rid herself of the idea that there was something wrong with him whenever he did. She tried to keep quiet, but the words would come.

"You don't suppose he's sick, do you, Mrs. Spear? Or a pin, or something?"

"Of course not," Mrs. Spear answered from the height of her knowledge. "He's one of those babies who have a temper. Some have and some haven't, and he certainly does know his mind, Paula. You mustn't imagine every time he gives a squawk that there's something wrong with him, because you'll be worried half your life if you do."

Mrs. Murphy, the janitress, had the baby carriage ready for him. She remarked proudly, "Sure, it's a grand fit of temper he has." She gave the impression that it was clever of Anthony to have a grand fit of temper.

Usually when Anthony was put in his carriage deep content came over him, but not today. Even being wheeled didn't appease him. Cry he would. Paula had hoped that people would turn and look at him the way she turned to look at people's babies. No one paid him any attention. Women and men passed the screaming, kicking Anthony as if he wasn't there. No one paused to look at him.

It was a fine day and the park was full of mothers and nursemaids with babies of various ages. Mrs. Spear and Paula sat down on a bench. Mothers and nurses passed by. Most of them acted as if Anthony were invisible. They were taken up by the beauty of their own babies. A little Italian girl with a shabby baby carriage which held a lovely sleeping child about Anthony's age sat down beside them. Paula opened the conversation with the time honored formula.

"How old is the baby?"

"He's four weeks old," she told Paula. "How old is yours, ma'am?"

"Almost four weeks, too," said Paula.

"He's pretty small for his age, ain't he?" said the Italian girl. "An' my, what a temper! I guess you've spoiled him fierce! You hadn't ought to spoil babies. Why, if we spoiled ours like he's spoiled we couldn't live! Do you know what I'd do if that was my baby? I'd spank him!"

The Park Belonged to Babies.

BEFORE Anthony was born the park had seemed to Paula a breathing place in the city. She and David had used it for a garden before they were married. After a walk they would sit there and talk about everything in the world and watch other young people like themselves, young sweethearts, who seemed to have an idea that they were invisible, young girls and boys who had no other place to go to talk together except the places that the city affords, museums, the libraries, and the park benches. They were more fortunate, but you don't always want to talk indoors, and if you are city bred the park bench makes a pathetic substitute for your own garden.

Now Paula scarcely noticed the young couples who used the park for their courtships. The park really belonged to the babies. There were the bigger children who scurried noisily past on roller skates or flew along on scooters. There were other children who proudly rolled past on tricycles. And there were littler ones still who made solemn, earnest progress on small cars.

The park had become for Paula a picture of the world. You could know what the world was like by sitting there and watching people. It was especially satisfactory that there were always people who looked at Anthony. Women would stop and turn their heads and look into his carriage, saying audibly:

"Isn't he a love! Wouldn't you like one just like that" Just as Paula hoped that they would do that first lamentable day when she took him out. When people admired Anthony Paula would be filled with sinful pride.

"Wait," she thought, "until he's a little older! Then we'll show them something, won't we, Anthony?"

Generally when he was out of doors he slept. Sometimes he would lie fascinated by the rattle which hung on a ribbon where he could take hold of it. There were times he made funny enchanting little noises that were the beginning of speech. Then Paula would lean over him and talk to him, but he never talked back, not being old enough to converse yet.

The Woman Who Was Cheated.

IT was one of these days that a shy, meager looking woman sat down beside Paula. Paula knew, of course, that she had sat down to look at Anthony, so she liked the woman.

"He's a beautiful, beautiful baby," the woman said in a tentative voice—the sort of voice that means, "You don't mind, do you, if I share your happiness a little bit?" Then she asked the inevitable question:

"How old is he?"

Paula told her in rather a boastful way on account of Anthony's being such a powerful, satisfactory baby.

"My baby looked like that."

"He looks a lot older than that," the woman said. "My baby looked like that."

It was then that Paula realized that the woman was young—not over thirty certainly. She was dressed with a strict neatness, but every line of her from her retapped shoes which were brushed so clean to her hat which showed that she had painstakingly trimmed it at home, spoke of a meager life. She had the look of a woman to whom life had been stingy. There was an austerity to her that spoke more of an old maid than of a mother of babies.

"How old is your baby?" Paula asked.

"He'd a-been five years old if he'd lived."

Paula didn't answer. There was nothing to say to a woman who spoke in such a tone.

"My husband died," the woman went on; "he died before the baby came—and my mother's half paralyzed. She lives with me. There was nothing to do but to send the baby to an institution. Mother couldn't take care of it and I had to go to work, of course. I used to have the baby all of Sundays for myself—and then he died. I have to take care of mother, of course, but Saturday afternoons I come out and look at the other babies. It's a great pleasure—a kind of a holiday for me."

They were silent for a time. Then the woman said shyly:

"I come out to get away from things and make believe how I might have been out here with my baby—if things had been different."

Of all the people in the park Paula liked best the jolly Italian mothers. They were on such easy terms with their children.

She was sure not one of them had ever been afraid of their babies as she had. They had no rules. When their babies cried they took them up and tossed them up and down. There were no regular dinner hours for their babies. They nursed them when they felt like it, pulling their bright colored shawls about themselves. Babies were a part of their lives, as much a part as eating or breathing. They had no overwhelming sense of importance at being mothers. They were unoppressed by the fragility of babies.

There was one jolly woman who came with two babies in one carriage and another old enough to take precarious excursions which made Paula's blood run cold. He chased unknown dogs, when his legs were so unsteady they would hardly carry him. He got in the way of scooters. He climbed park benches.

The second baby stood on his mother's vast lap and ped up and down all the afternoon. One such hour ..ula felt would have wrecked her, while this able Italian .oman never seemed to notice what was going on, but .alked on with the other women as if being used for a recreation pier were a usual thing.

They Don't Know What to Do.

PAULA'S doctor was talking to David.

"There's a new kind of mother growing up today," he said. "I have had more women who have come to me the last few years who felt their lives would be complete if only they had a baby. Most of these women are intellectual women. Lots of them earn their livings. If their work doesn't get on well or they're unhappy with their husbands or if they're nervous, they feel that a baby is the answer to all their ills. Well, now they have got them. And now I am getting the reaction. They don't know what to do with them when they have got them. Besides, these women keep fussing over their children until they're wrecks. They can't seem to take them naturally. One afternoon with a baby alone seems enough to give them nervous prostration. Now most of them are looking for some solution to the problem, like a babies' club with a high priced specialist to take care of five or six of them. Some of them are looking for day nurseries. They love their babies, of course, but the great maternal urge is over."

Paula felt half guilty and half resentful. She wanted to say:

"You don't know what it is to take care of a baby night and day and all the time."

Then she wondered why she should be different from the Italian women she saw in the park who seemed able to be the mother of half a dozen and never worried about any of them.

When she went out to the park next day she found herself talking to a pretty blonde woman who had a lusty fourteen months old baby. Here was a spoiled baby, if you like. He had obtained complete mastery over his mother. When he wanted anything, he shrieked for it. When he shrieked, she gave it to him. What he wanted to do was to walk, leaning against a broad harness the reins of which his mother held in her hand to keep him from falling. The woman's face, which should have been pretty and unlined as a young girl's, was haggard. She looked haunted. She was matching her strength with the relentless desires of a growing baby, and she didn't know what to do about it.

"Let mamma sit down," she urged; "let mamma sit down. I'll show you the pretty moo!" She extracted a rubber animal, which squeaked, from the baby carriage. The baby was no sooner seated in her lap than he wanted to get down; no sooner down than he wanted to be up again. The woman lifted him a dozen times.

"I don't know how to manage him," she told Paula. "I had a nurse girl, but she left, and now I have had to give up my work. I was doing special stuff on a newspaper."

The baby realized that his mother's attention had wandered from him for a moment. He screamed.

"Yes, darling, yes, mamma's precious! Yes, he can come up." She hauled him wearily into her lap only to have him squirm for freedom again.

"You see, I haven't any domestic gift," she confided. "I don't know what to do about him. And it keeps on all the time. They never stop. And taking care of babies makes me nervous. What can one do?"

Here was the question, plain and broad. When you have been trained all your life to do something else, and have no domestic gift, what can one do?

"Poverette."

PAULA changed her habitual seat, which was near three supercilious nursemaids. They were French. All the appointments of their baby carriages were of the best. All three young girls who took care of the babies sat and gossiped together. If one of the babies cried, it was swiftly provided with a sucker, a rubber contrivance which is allowed in no well regulated home. One of the babies' mothers made a visit almost every afternoon. She walked up briskly. No one by any chance would have suspected her of being the mother of a baby, so young did she look. She was dressed exquisitely and like a young girl. She bent over the baby carriage and talked to her baby with a great emphasis of maternal affection for at least two minutes, and then after performing her maternal duties for the day she walked to her limousine which waited by the corner and went off, happy and self-righteous. After she left the nursemaids laughed and talked about her.

The jolly Italian mothers accepted Paula because of Anthony. Anthony was a baby that would attract any women who knew a good baby when she saw it. There was a slender young mother who looked like a Florentine madonna whom Paula especially liked. One day when she came in the park the other Italian women were clustered about her while she drooped, trying to keep tears from her eyes.

"What's the matter?" asked Paula, "is the baby——"

The big Italian woman who trailed after her a brood of children like steps answered: "Her baby, no. He's alla right! But she's awful 'fraid—maybe there's another!"

"O, the poor thing!" said an Irish girl who was married to an Italian.

"Poverella!" the other women murmured.

Paula stared at them. They had seemed to take their many babies such a matter of course, but the thought of a new baby moved all their hearts to compassion. Another mouth to feed. More doctor's bills. The long time of adjustment to life before you can feel strong again and the housework to be done all the time. No Miss Spong to bridge that time over for you.

Paula pushed her carriage slowly away and sat down by herself to think over the pageant of the park. Women who wanted babies and when they had them didn't know what to do with them. Women whose babies died and whose hearts were so hungry that they must spend their spare time looking at other people's children. Older women, like the janitress and Mrs Spear, whose homesickness for the days when they were young mothers was so great that they couldn't leave Anthony alone. All these other women for whom life was so difficult that their welcome to a new life was inevitably "Poverella!" All of life was in that park. All the questions that our civilization puts to women were there—not abstract, but written in terms of flesh and blood, and there was no answer that Paula could find to any of the questions.

FOUR UNFORGIVABLE [SINS]

"Her Voice Was Ever Soft, Gentle, and Low, an Excellent Thing in Woman."
—Shakespeare.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—This is the fourth and last of the transgressions against feminine pulchritude, deemed unpardonable for the simple reason all four of them are within comparatively simple human powers of correction. Halitosis (bad breath) due to neglected teeth, stomach disorder and constipation, was the first; uncleanliness of person, failure to bathe frequently and to correct unpleasant body odors, the second; dirty fingernails third—and today, we have vulgarity of manner, of dress, of speech.

Now, there are beauty liabilities which are quite another thing, for the most part they seem to us "as has 'em" the result of a grouch nature had on the day of our nativity—big feet, a nonclassic profile, thick lips, eyes too closely set and perhaps of a washed out blue, a scalp that cannot be coaxed or nurtured to produce a bounteous crop, short, stubby fingers, broad shoulders or bones built for durability rather than to appeal to a strong, protective instinct, pale and scanty eyebrows, and so on. These are things over which we have little or no control except as artifices may be resorted to hide them behind what assets we may have. And few women are without some assets—also one or more liabilities.

Can and Should Be Remedied.

But the out and out offenses named in this short series are unforgivable because they are not permanent liabilities. They can be remedied. And unless they are remedied, one simply cannot be attractive. Whereas, one may make herself extremely creditable in spite of one or several of the liabilities named.

I might disclose here a secret about some of the world-acknowledged beauties I have interviewed. And I have seen and talked to many of them. Few are without some imperfections, which they quite frankly admit. So no woman need be discouraged just because she is not perfectly proportioned or artistically designed.

The four besetting sins, however, are not included in these imperfections. Not with a reputation for superlative beauty to maintain! The cause and remedies of and for the first three I have already outlined.

Perhaps this fourth is a bit more difficult to remedy, since in a sense it has need of a certain intuitive instinct as to what is vulgar and what charm of manner, conversation, and dress.

I remember interviewing a "Follies" beauty, who announced, "I dress quietly on the street, because men do not want to take a girl out who can be heard before she is seen." Commenting on an acquaintance, she said, "O, she is so loud in her actions you hate to go to a restaurant with her." That is the vulgarity against which even the most uneducated raise a barrier.

Refinement of manner is not a matter of education or financial opportunity. It is true, of course, that a cultivated environment has a refining influence, just as it is true that association with low and coarse companions has the opposite effect. Vulgarity is not confined to rich or poor. It is met in every social grade.

Perhaps this fourth is a bit more difficult to remedy, since in a sense it has need of a certain intuitive instinct as to what is vulgar and what charm of manner, conversation, and dress.

I remember interviewing a "Follies" beauty, who announced, "I dress quietly on the street, because men do not want to take a girl out who can be heard before she is seen." Commenting on an acquaintance, she said, "O, she is so loud in her actions you hate to go to a restaurant with her." That is the vulgarity against which even the most uneducated raise a barrier.

Refinement of manner is not a matter of education or financial opportunity. It is true, of course, that a cultivated environment has a refining influence, just as it is true that association with low and coarse companions has the opposite effect. Vulgarity is not confined to rich or poor. It is met in every social grade.

But in this enlightened age, with newspapers and magazines stressing the points of every day polite conduct, loud voiced speech and laughter are not indulged in because one does not know better. The offender simply refuses to learn the elementary principles of a charming manner.

The Mother's Responsibility.

A young woman, commenting on the poverty of her youth and the few advantages her mother had in travel and education, said: "I have wondered often where my mother absorbed the points of etiquette she taught us youngsters."

Mothers nowadays have the opportunity to teach girls and boys every day good manners at table and away from it—at least the general points of good behavior which will save them from being characterized as vulgar, loud, and boisterous when they are grown.

Hundreds of cases might be cited of girls with pretty faces who have attracted eligible young men only to lose out on a first public appearance with a display of uncouth home training.

One does not have to be graduated with honors in all the intricate details of an etiquette book. Heaven forbid that life should be so complicated. Whether the butler's cuff links are plain or fancy or the footman's trousers maroon or buff is important to a minority. But not to eat noisily, not to slam doors in another's face, not to drink from a cup with the spoon in it, not to chew gum in public, not to interrupt a conversation without an apology, not to make a public exhibition with a toothpick, not to draw undue attention to yourself by loud laughter—these and the hundred other obvious offenses are worthy of the consideration of the most humble.

Ignorance No Excuse.

Not to absorb the niceties of social intercourse is detrimental, particularly to a girl, and emphatically to one who would be considered attractive. In fact, ignorance is not a legitimate excuse because the only reason for ignorance is an unwillingness to improve. This observance has a deeper psychology than "show mannerisms." It is not just a great pother about trifles.

A worthy consideration of others is back of the every day, ordinary points of etiquette. And good manners mark the slow progress of social intercourse in the upward climb of man from the primeval state. They make you liked or disliked.

The cultivation of agreeable speech is desirable. Affectation is abominable—crudeness is more so.

The pitch of the voice matters a great deal in women. You and I both know the woman who ruins the effect of her pretty face the moment she opens her lips.

Her loud, strident, rasping tones are like a picture scratched by a sharp instrument. All women have not the tonal capacity for a musical voice. But that is not necessary. All have the capacity to lower or modulate the voice out of a discordant key.

Must Be Aware of Faults.

Pronunciation, too, is desirable to cultivate. Association with cultivated people is a fortunate advantage. Still, a small pronouncing dictionary of words in ordinary use is within the range of everybody.

Men and women who have been handicapped in youth by circumstances have made the most creditable position for themselves by being alive to the importance of these items of etiquette, manner and speech.

So, when a girl is criticized for saying, "Them things is awful," and saying it in a voice with a razor edge, the criticism is justified, because she is guilty of an infraction against the ideal we have in mind of charm and attraction in womankind.

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Sky on hair? Oily hair oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

BEAN RANDY: FOR THE PIMPLES on the back and chest, you must look to your diet for remedy, to freedom from constipation, and to the daily bath. To water consumption—six glasses a day. Truth is, they are nothing more than blackheads that have been allowed to lodge in the pores too long, until they fester. Eat a salad made of fresh fruits or lettuce and tomatoes or some other vegetable every day at noon. At night, again, and forego the candy, pastries, and pies. If you are troubled with constipation, I should suggest your taking the bran treatment. Take it as a cereal with cream, or else a tablespoonful in water every morning for awhile. Take a mineral oil, if necessary, until you are in shape again. If you can get in some exercise every day I strongly urge that, as nothing clears the skin like blood circulating strongly through the veins. Scrub the back and chest well with a flesh brush when you bathe, and take a cold shower to tone up the skin.

MARY F.: ALMOST EVERY ONE is complaining now of falling hair; that is, those who fail to observe the rules of daily brushing to keep the shedding down to normal. There is a normal shedding, you know, but the lost hairs are replaced with new ones, so that the scalp shows no particular thinning. I have a booklet telling you just what to do for falling hair, which contains a formula for a tonic to be massaged nightly into the scalp. Send for it, please, won't you? And in the meantime, put the hairbrush to work morning and night. Never mind if you do become terrified at the number of hairs that come out. They are loose and must be removed, and the sooner the better for the new crop. The brushing is about the best form of scalp massage you can apply.

MADELINE: A NURSE TOLD ME the other day of her treatment for dandruff. I put much credence in it because her hair is glossy and beautiful. She suffered with an advanced stage of dandruff. A doctor told her to massage her scalp lightly every night with olive oil—just a little on her finger tips—followed by a good brushing. Her hair was thin and dry and falling. A year after she began this once a day treatment I saw her, and her appearance spoke volumes for the directions. She kept up the olive oil application for six months and from then on continued the brushing, shampooing every two weeks betimes.

PATRICK: TWENTY-SIX, 6 FEET tall, and you weigh 147. One hundred and sixty-seven is the allotment prescribed by standard chart. Surely you can put it on. Try adding to your breakfast a bowl of oatmeal covered with cream. Drink half and half cream and milk three times a day. Get out and walk or do some exercise to increase your appetite and keep you in good shape while you are adding the extra weight. Help yourself most generously to butter on your bread, and in between meals drink milk or treat yourself to a malted milk. That ought to bring you up fairly quickly.

SUSIE: TO GIVE THE HAIR that reddish tint, they use henna. But will you tell me, dear, why any one with perfectly good black hair would lend to it a red color that would not agree with the general scheme of skin coloring and eyes? I saw a head the other day that was originally of that dark brown tone which is usually deemed black hair. It had been done over with henna and was most distressing purple brick shade. It gave the hardest touch imaginable to a remarkably pretty face. Henna itself may not be a bad thing. It is the way it takes on certain heads.

New! Rosemary-Basco Linenized

A Beautiful Cotton Fabric That Looks Remarkably Like Linen— Even After Many Washings

In appearance and "feel," these new damasks have nearly all the qualities of linen, and months of service have proved for them also an ability to withstand wear and laundering in a manner comparable with the best of linen. In some of the largest and most famous hostelries of the country where the Rosemary-Basco Damasks are in use, their presence is known only to those in authority.

MANDEL BROTHERS

Mandel Brothers Pre-Thanksgiving sales of homefurnishings are advertised in Part 7, Page 8, of this paper.

1-inch monkey fur, 1.50 yard

One of the fashion's favored trimmings for the winter season. A remarkable value at this special price.
Trimming section, second floor.

Specially purchased and closely priced are

Women's modish fur-trimmed coats of this season's preferred pile fabrics

Fashion permits a variety of silhouettes this season. The straight-line, tier, and flare models are all included in this splendid selection of handsome coats, priced unusually low for our November sale. Three groups, at

$115

Viatka and sable-dyed squirrel, fox, beaver, wolf and opossum, of selected quality, adorn these modish garments of rich deep-pile materials. All are crepe silk lined and warmly interlined, to provide protection against the most severe weather. Models at 59.50, $85 and $115, are pictured in the order named. Fourth floor.

Extra quality poiret twill

54 inches wide 3.35 Satin finished

This closely woven, high satin-finished cloth is one of our best grades, and the weight is correct for dresses and suits. A broad selection of colors, navy and black.

Coating remnants reduced 1-3

A clearance of all our better qualities of imported and domestic coating remnants. Included are such fabrics as

Tarquiana Oriona Gerona Veldyn
Velmara Nubian Arabia

Also many sports coat materials, as Scotch and Irish tweeds, and camel's hair novelties. The season's accumulation offered one-third below regular prices at 3.85 to 11.50 yard. Second floor

New imported metal laces

—for hat and frock adornment

The newest, the most popular and the richest lace trimmings this season has produced. Monday we offer designs such as only European artisans can create, at

95c and 1.45

The shades are gold, silver, antique and steel; widths up to six inches. The values are much out of the ordinary. Second floor

Tailored & dress hats reduced 1/3 to 1/2

—of vogue-assured velour, velvet and felt

The prudent woman always has an "extra" hat to wear in an emergency, and here is an unequaled opportunity to purchase one in gay or subdued colors.

$3 — $5 — 7.50

Nobby pokes, snug turbans and charmingly brimmed hats in shapes and colors for any occasion, and varied styles to suit all tastes, may be found in this remarkable array of models for women, misses and children. Moderately-priced-hat section, Fifth floor.

Paris' latest whims are reflected in these

Gowns for day and evening wear

—adaptations of imported models

Individuality and elegance are the dominating characteristics of these dresses, in styles and colors more attractive than ever. Chiffon velvet, georgette crepe, satin and exquisite fabric combinations give distinction to frocks for formal and informal occasions.

Interestingly priced at $50

New colors are riotous or somber, as you choose; black continues a favorite, and for evening the delicate pastel tints are coming very decidedly to the fore. Embroidery, beading and rich metal laces add novel touches to the frocks. A few models are pictured which suggest the charm of all. Fourth floor.

8,000 yards of exquisite silk duvetyn, special, 2.45

—all-silk and silk-faced—20 beautiful shades and black

This superior quality soft, velvety fabric, in drapy finish, is in high favor for street, afternoon and evening wear. It is available in brilliant high colors, medium tones and street shades; also black; for frocks, suits, wraps, millinery.

Heavy spiral crepes featured at 2.95

The model sketched is in popular shades and lengths.

Sports length bloomers of wool jersey with plaited silk cuffs, 3.95. Third floor.

Infants' white coats at 6.75

Dainty all-wool coats are these for baby's first winter days. They are fashioned of wavy white crepella or cashmere, with silk lined cape and cuffs hand scalloped and embroidered.

One typically charming coat is pictured on the right.

Long, six month and one year sizes.

Imported hand-made dresses, 2.95

For wee girls and boys are filmy dresses, as sketched. Hand-embroidered yokes are set in with French veining, and sleeves and skirt are embroidered also. Many styles in long, 6 months and 1 year sizes. Third floor

Suzanne coat dresses

So handy to slip on for the morning's housework, and always give a neat appearance.

Of imported gingham

The model pictured is fashioned of excellent gingham in wanted colors. It has long fitted sleeves and white pique collar and cuffs. Third floor.

Women's wool underhose for wear under chiffon stockings

We made a fortunate purchase and are offering this popular accessory at the very low price,

1.75

Of very sheer texture, flesh color and of French manufacture—they assure warmth as well as a neat appearance.

Chiffon hose, 2.95

Women's full-fashioned, all-silk chiffon hose, silk to the top; in modish cinnamon, ponge, natural, noisette, elan, mode, haze, atmosphere, gun metal, African brown, beaver and black.

PROLOGUE.

We left Pa at the threshold of the old office and a new life . . . he has made up his mind to hit the Boss for a bigger job with broader opportunities—with a horizon and a scope and all that sort of thing. But at the first sight of the Boss his heart begins to fail him and his knees begin to knock.

SCENE I.

The Boss is one of those cold, fish eyed, frozen faced propositions that shuffle papers when you come into their offices and then look up suddenly and yell, "Well, what is it?" . . . He has just come out of his lair and spied Pa in the outer office.

PA (bustling up and holding out his hand):
Hello there, Mr. Brehm. How's business?

"Potter, Mr. Brahm, Potter."

BOSS (pretends not to see outstretched hand . . . Pa holds it out a while helplessly and then withdraws it, feeling foolish . . . the Boss now has the advantage, which he proceeds to push):
Er—Mr. (hesitates as if trying to remember the name): O, yes, Mr. Plotter.

PA (growing a little bit numb):
Potter, Mr. Brehm, Potter.

BOSS:
O, yes, yes, Potter. What can I do for you, Mr. Potter?

PA (shuffling feet nervously):
Well, I thought . . . well, I thought . . . (plunging in bravely) I thought I'd just drop in and see how everything has been going along since I left.

BOSS (enthusiastically):
Very fine indeed. (Leaves Pa to understand that his absence is largely responsible for prosperous summer.)

PA (who had vaguely hoped somehow that the business had suffered severely by his resignation):
Why—that's fine; glad to hear it.

BOSS (briskly):
Yes, business is splendid . . . getting better and better . . . planning a lot of big things . . . going to make a lot of changes here. (Suddenly.) What are you doing now?

PA (taken off his feet):
Why—nothing—just sorta looking around—sorta, you know, just looking around. (Feels this sounds foolish but can't somehow find the right come-back).

BOSS (eying Pa keenly):
Going to start a new department. Growth of business demands it. Been wanting to put somebody in charge of it for some time.

PA (warmly):
Well, I'm sure glad to hear that, Mr. Brehm. (To himself) This is going to be easier than I thought it only goes to show you can't keep cream on the bottom.

BOSS (enthusiastically):
You know that young fellow I got to take the place you had? (Pa nods confidentially.) Well, he's turned out pretty good. In fact, he's too darn good for that place, and I am going to promote him to the head of this new department. And that leaves your old job open and you can step right in again. What do you say?

PA (dumfounded):
You mean that I—he—this fellow comes in a couple of months and grabs off a bigger and better job, and I've got to take my old one?

BOSS (callously):
Well, you don't have to, of course. But I thought you'd like to have it. You've done some pretty good work for us and we'd like to have you, but of course if you don't care to come back——

PA (bravely):
But, gee whizz! . . . here I come back with a lot of new experience—yes, sir, a lot of European experience . . . I should have a bigger job and more money . . . there's no future in that job.

BOSS:
Well, I don't know . . . the young fellow that's got it made one. And what has your European experience got to do with it? What did you learn in Europe that will make you more valuable to this business?

PA (struggling desperately):
Well, I—well, it's pretty hard to put in so many words, but—well (blurting) you can't ... for yourself, can't you, that it's valuable?

BOSS (callously):
No, I cant say that I can. (Turning to go.) Well, I guess you don't want the job; is that it?

PA (bewildered):
Without a raise or nothing? Gosh, I couldn't do that, could I? Gee whizz!

BOSS (turning brusquely):
Well, glad you came in. Let me know if you change your mind. Good day.

PA (feebly):
Good day.

(Staggers out in a daze and comes to on the street feeling sick and empty . . . wanders around a while talking to himself, shaming the Boss with well turned, crisp comebacks, and finally leaving him crushed and confused, begging him to return, but no, he laughs scornfully, turns on his heel, and stalks majestically out . . . the picture dissolves and the keen, searching eyes of Ma Potter transfix him . . . What have you done? Now what are you going to do? . . . Poor Pa, and here he is home already . . . better walk around the block two or three times, Pa, and think up a good one.)

SCENE II.

Dinner over and the table cleared, the Potters scatter; Bill out to meet Annabelle; Mamie to her room to tog and to figure out just what to do now that Red and Gleason both have decided to come over for the evening . . . Pa is furtively scanning the small type in the back pages of the evening paper, but hurriedly turns over to the sporting section whenever he finds Ma regarding him curiously . . . meanwhile Mamie has decided on a plan of action: she will go out with the first one who comes, either Red or Gleason, and let Ma tell the second one that she is in bed with a violent headache . . . and then, as if on signal, the doorbell rings.

BELL:
Brrrring! Brrrrring!

MAMIE (scurrying through those necessary final touches):
Ma, go see who it is.

(Ma goes to the door . . . footsteps on the stairs . . . the door opens.)

VOICE (hearty and happy):
Hello, Ma. How's the old globe trotter? Where's Mamie?

MA (getting her cues mixed):
Hello, Red. My, you're looking fine! Why—er—Mamie's sick in bed with a terrible headache.

MAMIE (overhearing faux pas and rushing out):
Why, Ma, how can you say such a thing when it isn't so? (To Red) Ohhhh, Red, it's so good to see you again!

RED (throwing his arms around her and kissing her heartily):
Mamie! (Holds her out by the shoulders and looks at her hungrily.) Gosh, I missed you something terrible! I'll never let you get away from me that long again (hugs her warmly.) (To Ma): I smell something burning in the kitchen.

MA (smiling faintly):
That's queer, because there isn't any fire on.

(But Red doesn't hear her . . . Mamie, with the wisdom of the sex, came out with her hat and coat on, so it's up to Red to take her out . . . a little rough on Gleason, but she can see him some other time, and, besides, if she wants to spend her first evening at home with Red that's none of Gleason's business, is it?)

RED (briskly):
Come on, we'll take a ride. You'll like the new bus.

MA (eagerly):
New bus? You must be getting along pretty well to afford a new bus.

"O, no. Brehm offered it to me, but I turned him down."

(And out they go into the night . . . it's wonderful to be young, it's wonderful to be in love . . . but to be young and to be in love at the same time!)

RED (easily):
Pretty well? I'll say I am. Knocking 'em dead. This advertising game was made for me. And that just reminds me, I took another account away from that cuckoo Gleason last week. Hot cat, but he loves me now!

MAMIE (enthusiastically):
My, that's fine! (Internally and nervously) I do hope we can get away from here before Gleason comes. (Taking Red's arm.) Come on, we can talk in the car. Good-by, Ma; don't forget what I told you.

MA (who always gets her numb-moments at the wrong time):
What's that?

MAMIE (helplessly):
Why, what I told you about—you know—if that certain—well, if—a—well (fiercely) don't you remember?

MA (placidly):
I can't tell for the life of me what you're talking about.

MAMIE (to Red):
Excuse me just a minute. (Whispers to Ma) I'm going out with Red, and when Gleason comes just tell him I'm sick in bed with a terrible headache and to come back tomorrow night. Be sure and don't ball everything up, now. Good-by.

Potter living room and Ma begins to worry already that Mamie and Red may return while he is still there . . . glares at Pa, who squirms uneasily.)

GLEASON (after the usual preliminaries and a running ac-

"Be sure and don't ball everything up, now."

count of the European trip has been disposed of):
I suppose you're going to take your old position again?

(PA (with affected nonchalance):
O, no. Brehm offered it to me, but I turned him down. That job? I said; I should say not. Why, I'm qualified to hold a real job, and I'll have it, too. You needn't think because I worked here that I've got to take that job back when I have all kinds of opportunities open, and then he said, I wish you would come back, Potter; we miss you terribly; the business hasn't been the same since you left. But I said no, and I made him understand that I meant it. A better job or more money or both, that's my proposition, I said to him; take it or leave it; the cards are on the table; and then I went out and left him flat.

MA (not believing her ears):
You mean to tell me he offered you your old job back and you didn't take it?

PA (quailing internally, but keeping up the bold front for Gleason):
I sure did. Take your old job, I said to him. Take it and stick it in your eye. If you can't recognise exceptional ability when you see it, that's your misfortune. There are other firms, Mr. Brehm. Good day to you, sir. And I walked right out and left him flat.

GLEASON (noncommittally):
Well, sometimes it pays to be independent and not grab at the first thing that comes along.

PA (gradually hypnotizing himself into believing in what he's saying):
Catch me grabbing the first thing! No chance!

MA (worried):
I hope Gleason goes home before Red and Mamie get back.

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

Introducing The New Model "D" 1900 Cataract Washer

The Acme of Washing Machine Perfection

Although Greatly Improved The New Cataract Washer Has Not Advanced One Cent in Price!

You'll Like This New Cataract

FOR it represents the finest washer ever produced by the makers of the "Cataract," the result of twenty-five years of actual washing machine building. All the superior, exclusive features which went to make the "Cataract" nationally famous have been enclosed, the swinging wringer lowered and, in fact, the whole machine has been beautified and improved.

Thousands of women in Chicago are now using the "1900 Cataract" with enthusiastic satisfaction, and over a million women in America attest the uniform quality and serviceability of "1900" products since 1898.

Cataraction—The Wonderful Water Action of the Cataract is still the outstanding feature of the Cataract washer, for there is no better method of washing clothes. This famous patented, dipping, swaying movement of the tub (cataraction), flushing (with all the power of a cataract) the most water through the most clothes in the shortest space of time. And remember, there are no moving parts inside the tub—nothing to lift out—and no possible chance of injury to even the most delicate fabrics. You can entrust your most dainty garments to the Cataract with utmost confidence, because nothing can touch them except the flushing, cleansing water.

The New Model "D" 1900 Cataract Washer

$155.00

The Payment Price Is $164.50

Easy Payments If Desired Only $10 Down and the Balance on Convenient Monthly Terms

Of Interest to All "Cataract" Users

BY special arrangement with the 1900 Washer Co. of Binghamton, N. Y., sole manufacturers of the 1900 Cataract, we have established and maintain an expert service station for Cataract repairs and replacements. This is the only authorized service station in Chicago. We are fully equipped to give prompt "Cataract" service at factory prices, regardless of where your machine was purchased. This arrangement is the result of the manufacturer's desire to assure every user of "1900" products 100% satisfaction and the best service possible. Just phone The Fair—State 2500, Local 208 or 237.

Come In Tomorrow and Let Us Demonstrate This New Model

WE want you to see for yourself the wonderful new qualities of this new "Cataract." See the strong, heavy copper tub, with curved, corrugated bottom, just like a washboard. See the 12-inch swinging wringer, which has been lowered to a more convenient height; the beautiful pressed steel frame which adds attractiveness and still permits easy accessibility. And, above all, move this new "Cataract" and see how quickly and easily it responds to the lightest touch.

JEUNE FILLE COSTUMES.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—You would say the jeune fille stood not much of a chance in Paris—not any more, indeed, in the department of dress than in any of the other large divisions of life. One hardly ever sees anything for her in the large houses. The girls who presumably would be buyers sit there with their mothers at the showings, but never a thing is shown for them. Yet all the while they are beautifully costumed, and the situation is enough to start an investigation by any one of a reportorial, investigative mind. Surely the young girls do not accomplish those charming results through trusting to chance and haphazard, and I will hasten to answer my own conjecture, that they do not. Certain designers, as it were, have a flair for dressing the youthful type and by the laws of attraction the two groups seem to search each other out. Where you find one young girl dress that is good looking you are almost sure to find many. And I know an establishment which houses several at the present time.

Mme. Jo Davidson, while not limiting her activities to this branch of the business, seems to turn such dresses out with the ease and assurance that indicate a particular flair for that branch of the work. You know who Mrs. Davidson is, of course. She's the wife of the distinguished sculptor, and is herself a distinguished sculptor of clothes. She is a French girl who was reared in America, and so besides her natural talent for dress as such she has a sense of how it ought to go for Americans. Her excellent friend, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, wasn't afraid to use all of her influence to turn her loose on the wedding outfit for Sonny (or, more formally, Cornelius Vanderbilt) Whitney's bride.

The first dress shown today is an adaptation of one made for the trousseau. It is of dark blue kasha, but what I love about it is the combination of the finely plaited skirt with the jaunty ease of the embroidered jacket and those scarf ends that are also acting revers for the coat. The costume looks as if it had come easy indeed, and this we know is the sure evidence that some one has spent time and blood over it. A dress that is easy to make is hard to wear. But this one bears other marks of coming from smart hands more. One sign of the smart jeune fille, which must prevail up until the hour of her marriage, is utter and entire simplicity.

Mrs. Whitney, being a bride, might have indulged a little in elaboration, but did not. She availed herself of the only garnishment allowed the young, and that is a certain amount of a certain kind of embroidery—that is to say, of embroidery that is rugged and woolen and has a look of home and mother to it. The young girl must not wear the silken and diamond studded embroideries of evening—perish the thought.

In the present costume the jacket is covered with embroidery in dull grays, brown, red, and blues, with threads of dull silver running through it. And don't the scarf ends hang down the front of the jacket in a graceful way? It seems to me I should miss no possible chance for copying that movement.

And now let me introduce you to Mrs. Davidson in a costume of her own creating, which would be good for young girl and mature matron alike. It was becoming to her slim figure. It was of dark blue crêpe morocain, and was composed of bias folds running diagonally, one overlapping another, almost like thatch, the length of the garment, while the sleeves were edged with the same bias folds. The charm of the dress lay in its quaintness and the faint suggestion which it carried of an old directoire coat.

Mrs. Davidson gets into her work a quality of neatness, and she handles bands of material interestingly. She has a good sense of composition, and gets a genteel air into her things. We were asking her to show us something in a demi-toilette, and she touched off her own character and disposition in her reply. She said her things didn't often turn out to be demi-toilettes. They were either for the stern everyday encounters of life or else they were the grand toilettes for the gala events. You knew this would be so—she would do one extreme or the other, and would not be one to compromise. The dress which she has on in the picture is the best I have seen for wearing without a belt.

Next for the two remaining jeune fille costumes. Sketch 3 is a smart red serge with a brown leather belt, by Doeuillet. There are circular folds enveloping the front of the skirt, and the straight dress is buttoned all the way from throat to hem. It has an interesting stand up collar that ties in front—but don't go in for it if you are past 21. It makes me think a little of the soft collars that men are so fond of getting themselves up in, that stop just in time to show their Adam's apple. Of course, in the age and the sex of which we are now treating there are no such blemishing features; later on come others which such a collar would show to advantage. But we are according the column this week to the young girl, who has little enough showing here.

The fourth dress is by Mrs. Davidson. It is of dark blue crêpe de chine, and has a suede skirt. That is to say, folds of the suede are stitched on the crêpe in the interesting way we were saying she commanded. They are so neatly done, and they overlap so that they give the impression of making up the skirt.

The bodice has slits cut in it, like a series of little frames, through which one sees blue, and silver and mauve lamé. This same scenic effect is repeated on the sleeves. There is a short jacket of suede accompanying this dress.

Practical and Fancy Needlework

SOMETHING NEW IN ALPHABETS.

A GOOD looking alphabet is begun in today's paper and will run for three successive Sundays. It is quite different from the usual alphabet and suitable for all purposes where letters are needed. It should be especially liked now, to use on Christmas towels and other things. Another point in its favor is that the letters are not too elaborate, so it will not be tedious work in embroider them. Where the padding is done the raised path stitch will be best, while the fine lines will be outline work.

Each letter must be clearly stamped on the material and then a single strand of darning cotton used for outlining. Take small, even stitches, exactly on the lines, making them shorter on the wrong than on the right side. Putting a couple of strands in the needle at a time, use darning cotton for the filling in or padding. A darning stitch may be used, making it a little long on the right side and as short as possible on the wrong. This work is always done on the length of the letter, and the padding is always heavier in the center of the space, making it lighter as the outline is reached. This work should be done with the material in rings.

Choose a needle that will take the floss easily and pull through the material without any effort. If it is difficult to pull, the material will be jured.

To make embroidery good looking, the work must be evenly done—haste is out of the question. The stitch used is simply an over and over one, always taken across the letter, at right angles to the filling stitches. Where there are curves, the stitches have to be taken especially close together on the inside, and on the outer side there must be no spaces, but try to have them come close together—and on the inside they must never lap.

A little practice will make it possible to do beautiful work, and if one is inexperienced it will be time well spent to practice first on an ordinary piece of cloth. It is fascinating work, but unless it is well done there is no beauty in it.

The second installment of the letters will appear next Sunday.

Answers to Sewing Queries.

MRS. R. S. J.: I am sorry, but I have no copies of the slipcover article. But you might write to the circulation department of the paper, inclosing 10 cents, and ask for a copy of the July 2, 1922, issue.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Patterns

1787—Woman's bungalow apron. Sizes 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material with 4¼ yards of edging.

1631—44 inches requires 3 with ¼

How to Use the Patterns.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

PATTERN No. 1631 is a one piece apron, but it would do quite well for a morning dress. This pattern provides for a one piece Ragian sleeve, and it wouldn't be a bad idea to use a piping of some contrasting color to outline these seams. There is a trimming band across the front of the neck, and the opening in the dress is at the side edges of this band.

A pocket trimming band, sleeve band, and belt come with the pattern, and the dress or apron will be pretty if time is taken to use the piping, and either make the trimming bands of the piping material, or use the apron material and pipe all edges.

An attractive design for an apron is given in pattern No. 1343. The front quite covers the dress, and the skirt extends far enough to the back to be a protection. It is held in place there by being buttoned to the lower edge of the waist of the apron.

A small dart is cleverly placed so it comes on the top of each shoulder, and it has the effect of making the apron fit beautifully there.

One can make the apron of percale with the armholes, neck, and pocket tops edged with ric-rac braid, or the edges may be bound with some bright, contrasting color. It is, of course, possible to make an apron of this kind

MEMORIES OF YESTERDAY.

DEAREST MARIE: I have been retrospecting tonight—studying your picture (you remember the small one you gave me a year ago), and rereading your last letter. Though it is painful to bring to mind the memories of other days, when life was so full and beautiful, and fate now flings little more than a rusty iron bed, an unvarnished chair, a nerve wracking job, and a life full of loneliness, it is also a source of infinite joy to live again in mind days that were associated with the past.

RED PEPPER Heat Stops Backache

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

1631—Woman's apron. Sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 36 inch material with ¼ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

1343—Woman's apron. Sizes, 36, 40, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2 yards of 36 inch material with 8½ yards of binding.

How to Use the Patterns.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

PATTERN No. 1631 is a one piece apron, but it would do quite well for a morning dress. This pattern provides for a one piece Raglan sleeve, and it wouldn't be a bad idea to use a piping of some contrasting color to outline these seams. There is a trimming band across the front of the neck, and the opening in the dress is at the side edges of this band.

A pocket trimming band, sleeve band, and belt come with the pattern, and the dress or apron will be pretty if time is taken to use the piping, and either make the trimming bands of the piping material, or use the apron material and pipe all edges.

An attractive design for an apron is given in pattern No. 1343. The front quite covers the dress, and the skirt extends far enough to the back to be a protection. It is held in place there by being buttoned to the lower edge of the waist of the apron.

A small dart is cleverly placed so it comes on the top of each shoulder, and it has the effect of making the apron fit beautifully there.

One can make the apron of percale with the armholes, neck, and pocket tops edged with ric-rac braid, or the edges may be bound with some bright, contrasting color. It is, of course, possible to make an apron of this kind most attractive—first by choosing the right material and then by decoration. The plain colored percales or chambrays are attractive, and come in beautiful shades.

The edges of such an apron would look well bound with the same material in a contrasting color. The pockets may have a design in cross stitch, and something similar could be worked on the waist. Or one's initial done in cross stitch would look well, placing it a little to the left and below the lowest point of the neck opening, or else just below the neck opening exactly in the middle front.

The slip-on house dress or apron pattern No. 1787 is cut in two pieces—front and back. There is an applied bib to which sash ends are joined, and there are large patch pockets. The bib and sash hold the fullness nicely in place at the waist line, and aid in giving a jaunty appearance to the whole.

There are shoulder seams that extend the length of the short sleeves. These, and the combined under arm and side seams, are all there are. French seams are good, but some care must be given where the greatest curve comes under the arms. After the first stitching is done, trim the edges off to about one-eighth inch, and besides this carefully clip at short intervals where the curve comes. Then turn to the wrong side, crease the seam in place, and stitch, making this second stitching about one-eighth inch from the first.

Percale is one of the best materials for the purpose, and while there are solid colors and many designs on a color, there is nothing prettier than the white ground with dots or some design in black or colors. For such a material, ric rac braid will look well.

The edges of the big, neck, sleeves, and pockets will have to be faced first, and then the ric-rac is basted on so that nearly half the width shows on the right side. It must be stitched on twice, once close to the edge and the second time about one-eighth inch inside.

LOVE LETTERS

MEMORIES OF YESTERDAY.

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

DEAREST MARIE: I have been retrospecting tonight—studying your picture (you remember the small one you gave me a year ago), and rereading your last letter. Though it is painful to bring to mind the memories of other days, when life was so full and beautiful, and fate now flings little more than a rusty iron bed, an unvarnished chair, a nerve wracking job, and a life full of loneliness, it is also a source of infinite joy to live again in mind days that were associated with the past.

I have always kept you enshrined in my heart—I like to have you there, and secretly (although 'tis no secret now, since I am telling you) I worship you.

To you, I know, I am just the shadow of one you knew ages ago. Your world, your friends, circumstances, all of these have changed since I used to be a part of your world. Truly, it is tragic that our love did not culminate in the one way, but behind every move of destiny there is a motive, and we both are insignificant atoms who have not much to do with the events of our lives.

There, now. I have been feasting upon stolen sweets—the memories of yesterday, but I think, dear, you will understand. You may even join in the spirit with me, and write me candidly if you have, at times, thought of yesterday and sighed, felt two lips on yours and two arms around you.

EDWARD.

RED PEPPER Heat Stops Backache

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

MY MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENT

Complications.

While attending college I was lucky enough to attract the attention of our star athlete. At that time I was going with a young man I really cared for, but enjoyed flaunting my power to vamp the athlete.

I had accepted an invitation from the latter to the senior prom when I received a letter from my sweetheart saying that he was coming to see me. Well, I did not wish to tell the athlete of the existence of my sweetheart, so the day before the prom my chum told him I had contracted a severe cold, and would not be able to go.

My boy arrived, and suggested that we take a walk, as he had something important to say to me. Joyfully we strolled down the avenue, with my arm on his. Just as we turned a corner we came face to face with the other. He raised his hat. I was speechless.

When I tell you I had to attend two classes to which he belonged on Monday morning, you can realize my embarrassment did not end on the street corner.

Y. J.

When One Helps Oneself.

One Saturday I did my marketing at a self-help grocery during the rush hour when the store was crowded. When I went to pay the cashier I discovered I had only a few cents in my purse. I was obliged to return each of the numerous articles I had selected to its original place on the shelves, much to my embarrassment and the amusement of other shoppers.

E. D.

No Rest for Him.

I was an office boy in a hotel during vacation.

I wanted to read a magazine one day, so I took the freight elevator and went to the fifth floor. I had been reading a while when I heard something creak.

I ran back and up the fire escape lest some one should see me. I sat down on the roof and started to read. To my embarrassment out walked the manager.

She said: "After this do your reading in the office."

F. K. S.

Retaliatory.

When I first moved to this suburb I went to return the call of a friend. She was not at home, but her parents were. It seemed her mother had a pet grievance. Her daughter, who was devoted to music, had not married.

We were hardly seated when the woman began, "You girls don't have good times at all nowadays. When I was young we had the boys over every evening. And we got husbands, too," this accompanied by a vigorous shake of her head.

Not thinking, I replied, "O, well, maybe you weren't so particular."

And her husband was sitting right there!

Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club

Ginger Runs Away

By Raymond Kelly.

"OH GEE!" whined Ginger, the fox terrier; "I'm bored to death. I've half a mind to bite somebody and get shot for it. Then that old cook would be sorry she threw the scrub water on me. I don't see what she had to be mad about, anyhow. All I did was to roll the garbage pail down the back stairs, and she was going to throw the stuff away anyway. She wouldn't give me any dinner, and now I have a headache, and I can feel it in my bones that she's going to give me a bath. I'd rather be drowned. I would drown myself if it wasn't that I'd catch my death of cold doing it. I know I'd catch cold.

"Maybe I'd better run away. I bet it'd take most a year to go everywhere there is to go, and do everything there is to do, and see everything there is to see, and hear everything there is to hear. I'd kinda like to take Boy Ted along, but we'd only get caught if I did. So, I guess I'll have to travel alone."

And that's how Ginger, the fox terrier, happened to run away. He didn't pay any attention to which way he was going, which would be the nicest way there is to travel, if only it were respectable. But teacher says that when you don't know where you are going, you are a tramp instead of a traveler, and that tramps aren't respectable like other tourists. So, I guess, poor Ginger was a tramp that day.

But he had a wonderful time. He went 'way, 'way out in the country, where there were chickens to catch, and flowers to smell, and pigs to chase. And, by and bye, he came to a little town where a perfectly lovely dog fight was going on. There were six dogs in that fight, and they asked Ginger to join them, but he was bashful, and stayed on the outside, only biting the other dogs enough to keep them interested. He didn't want to be greedy, and so he left before any of them had time to bite him. Even a tramp dog can be a gentleman about such things, you know.

Then Ginger went out into the country again, and just as the katydids and crickets were tuning their fiddles for the bunnies to dance to, he came to a big barn where forty nine cows lived. There used to be fifty, but one had gone to a barbecue picnic where she was so popular that she never came back.

Ginger slipped around to the back door of that big barn, and leaned against the side of a stall with his front feet crossed, while he talked to the dignified, motherly looking old cow who stood there, chewing her cud and reading a newspaper that was tacked up over her manger. Ginger was hungry, and so very polite.

"Madam," said he, with a bow, "it's easy to see that you are a most unusual milk animal and much better educated than any common cattle. Could you spare me, say, a pint of your best milk?"

"I'd like to do so," the cow answered, "although it takes only half an eye to see that you're a runaway dog. But, the fact is, I'm trying for a record as a milk producer, and every pint counts. You'd best ask one of the others. You'll find their milk all right if you drink enough of it to get used to the flavor."

So Ginger went from stall to stall, asking each cow, but not a one would give him a drop of milk. This made him feel so bad that he sat down on the barn floor and howled at the top of his voice.

Now, listen to what happened to poor Ginger, and you'll never howl again, when you don't like your meals because you haven't any. The barn boss heard Ginger howling and became so angry that he chased that fox terrier out of the door, and around the barn, and around the chicken coop, and around the pump, and then just around, until Ginger got so dizzy he stumbled into a bee hive and spilled it right into the middle of next Sunday's story.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each children saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address Bright Sayings to Aunty Bee The Tribune, Chicago.

Rosemary is the only child, and so her parents have provided her with a dog, parrot, and kitten for company. But when she saw the brothers and sisters of a neighbor's family playing games and having fun on a stormy day, she exclaimed to her mother: "It's nicer where every one of the pets are children, isn't it?" A. R.

Donnie was boasting about the family's radio and our visitor remarked, "I'll bet you listen to the bedtime stories every night, don't you?"

"Bedtime stories! Huh! I'se no baby. I listen to the jazz bands!" he said. I. C.

Bill had attended a movie, and on his return his sister was trying to get him to tell her about it. After relating a few incidents he started to read, but his sister kept coaxing for more.

Finally, in disgust, he said: "G'wan, keep still. Don'a you think a guy ever runs out of think?" M. O.

Margaret, who dances remarkably well for a 5 year old, was recently asked to help entertain guests at her grandmother's home.

She sternly refused and when coaxed replied, "I has no pep tonight; my feets are sleeping." E. J. D.

When Dick came in bearing unmistakable signs of having got the worst of a fight, his brother said to him: "Why didn't you stand up to the guy?"

"I did," was Dick's laconic answer, "but he falled me." J. A. O.

Louise's youngest aunt had a caller. Louise took it upon herself to entertain him. We heard her ask, "Are you a husdum?" B. C.

Jean is a neighbor. We live in a small college community in the country. The child, therefore, has few playmates. However, she plays busily by herself, and hails all passersby.

One day she decided to call on me. This she did with all the air and formality of a grownup. As she was leaving she remarked that she had had a lovely time and hoped my wife and I would return the call.

She then raised her chin and said: "Indeed, if you are in this part of the country again I wish you would drop in and spend the day. We have a spare room, you know." A. S.

Golda was in the habit of using bye words, but her mother told her it was unladylike to do so. She had about broken herself of the habit when her brother did something to annoy her which caused her to exclaim: "My goodness, Joe, if I wasn't a lady I'd say 'gosh darn' at you, sure!" V. H.

"My, why are you crying so hard?" I asked a little girl on the sidewalk who was squealing at the top of her voice.

"'Cause," she answered between sobs, "That's how hard I hurt myself." M. C. R.

Jennie, who often comes to see me, had not been in for some time, so on seeing her in a neighbor's yard I told her how I had missed her.

Danny, who was standing beside her, spoke up with: "Didn't you lonesome for me?" J. A. O.

Edward hates wearing dresses, so on his third birthday was presented with a boy's suit, which delighted him. The following morning bright and early he came marching into mother's room, suit in hand, saying: "Mother, dear, please don't dress me today; suit me." M. C.

Rex was given little meat—just bones with a small amount of meat on them. However, one day the new maid gave the dog a whole chop. Mary Alice was surprised to see Rex with so much meat, so she said: "O, mother, just look at Rex! He's got a full bone." C. C.

Never have we known of such a sale—never have we heard of such values—never have we seen coats made of the genuine Kerami cloth being offered so much below the regular prices. Values to $95 at $53.

KERAMI is a rich, lustrous fur like fabric made by the Shelton Looms, foremost makers of high grade fur fabrics. One of the biggest manufacturers in New York made up these coats in fashion's newest and most stunning styles, and turned them over to us at the same amazing price concession that he procured on materials from the "Shelton Looms."

Kerami FABRIC MADE BY The Shelton Looms

This Shelton Looms label is found in all coats that are made of the genuine Kerami cloth. Notice it in these coats.

Nearly a Score of Striking Models Many Are Fur Trimmed

This collection features fashion's every newest whim. Wrappy models, side effects and straight line coats in every variation, fastened at side with large buttons, fine cords and fancy buckles.

Every Garment Exquisitely Silk Lined

The finest crepe silks are used for linings in these Kerami coats. Plain or brocaded Canton crepe, with plain or fancy borders. Every coat is interlined throughout.

The Six Styles Shown Were Sketched from the Actual Garments

They can picture only the lines on which these coats are fashioned. To know the beauty and fineness of Kerami cloth and the altogether thoroughly fine workmanship embodied in these coats, a personal inspection is necessary.

How to Be Happy Though Married

By DORIS BLAKE

Is It True that Nature Is Not in Favor of the Superman, and Seeks to Prevent His Birth?

FROM a study made by Honell Norris Hart, Ph. D., for the University of Iowa, the conclusion is drawn that the poor and ill educated, the unsuccessful in a word, are the highly fecund class.

"The types of individual becoming parents most extensively in Iowa are the tenant farmer, the foreigner, and the badly educated," he writes. "The types most meagerly participating in the bearing and rearing of the next generation are the economically successful, the native born, the highly educated, and the city dwellers. These differences in fecundity are so radical that they cannot fail to have a profound effect upon the sort of home and community environments provided for them and hence upon the trend of character of the Iowa population.

"Such conditions in cooperation with the selective emigration to cities and to other states tend strongly to aggravate the danger of progressive social deterioration in the least favored rural areas of the state."

On the basis of his findings, the author suggests the formulation of definite social plans with a view to counteracting the menace of progressive deterioration in the quality of parenthood.

Are Eugenists Right?

Which again raises the query of just what faith may be given the eugenist plea for quality instead of quantity, and how much in accord with their plea is nature's plan for human evolution.

Who knows whether it is a national calamity that eugenically superior persons are not contributing more generously to the next generation?

According to Mendel laws, mediocrity is a dominant character—extraordinary ability a recessive character.

As Mencken says: "We have, indeed, no ground for assuming that the continued progress visualized by man is in actual accord with the great flow of elemental forces. Devolution is quite as natural as evolution, and may be just as pleasing, or even a great deal more pleasing, to God. All animal breeders know how difficult it is to maintain a fine strain. The universe seems to be in a conspiracy to encourage the endless reproduction of peasants and Socialists, but a subtle and mysterious opposition stands eternally against the reproduction of philosophers."

Brain Workers Not So Virile.

Certain it is that the more artificial circumstances under which people live, the smaller their contribution to the future generation.

Ludovici speaks of the "greater irascibility and nervousness, together with the usually lower passion, of all people engaged in the more intellectual pursuits of life.

In an earlier article attention was called to the curious fact that so many of the great men of letters and of genius have no posterity, and Wadia's reminder is that "it is a matter of common physiological experience that men given to brain work are not as virile as men given to purely physical labor.

"Their powers of procreation are affected, and this is a danger that faces the educated," he emphasized; supporting the suspicion that eugenists are up against inverted evolution, or a scheme of nature over which they have little control.

A selective scheme of her own is granted, since many of the world's greatest men have come from the humbler walks of life. Many of the greatest men have been youngest members of large families, and of the few larger families still met with the younger members are by no means the least gifted, either mentally or physically, as has been observed by students.

More College, Less Babies.

Some professor affirmed his belief that statistical and biological data do not make a baby's difference, so to speak, compared with human motives of love and culture and ideal nurture. This observation was made by him after viewing some of the statistics on marriage and children among college people, declaring there would be more babies if there were more human education.

College women, and, to a less extent, college men have a low marriage and birth rate, the causes of which are receiving considerable inquiry.

The marriage rate of college men is about 75 per cent, geographical and social conditions appearing to affect it little.

"The marriage rate of college women is much more variable and uniformly lower. In some of the colleges of the middle west," according to Paul Popence of the American Genetic association, "it reaches 80 or even 70 per cent, while in other institutions, including all the separate women's colleges of the east and such widely different co-ed colleges as Stanford and Syracuse, it is below 50 per cent.

"Neither college men nor college women have a birth rate high enough to reproduce the group. So far as is known, however, the birth rate of college men is about twice as high as that of college women. For example the number of children is per graduate at:

Yale	1.99
Harvard	1.71
Syracuse [men]	1.66
Vassar	0.8
Wellesley	0.80
Syracuse [women]	0.83
Bryn Mawr	0.37
Wellesley [honor scholars]	0.20

The number of children per married graduate is at:

Yale	2.57
Harvard	2.51
Syracuse [men]	2.00
Vassar	1.82
Wellesley	1.56
Syracuse [women]	1.46
Bryn Mawr	0.84
Wellesley [honor students]	0.57

Popence sees hope in the lowering of the average age of marriage of college men.

Why College Girls Don't Marry.

Additional causes contribute to the low marriage rate of college women, which eugenists classify roughly as avoidable and unavoidable. Among the latter is placed those girls who are inherently unmarriageable because of physical defect or emotional defect which makes them unattractive to men and inclines them toward celibate careers and away from marriage and motherhood. Opinions differ as to proportion of college girls who are inherently unmarriageable—to the large majority is granted immunity from the charge.

Celibacy is claimed on the ground of supporting parents, preference for a career, or from development of a cynical attitude toward men and matrimony, due to a wrong education.

A census taken of Vassar students recently, however, would destroy the last theory. Those registering cynicism or preference for a career were in a distinctly small majority.

That they have remained in college past the age when they are most attractive is suggested; also, that their education demands on the part of suitors higher educational, ethical, or financial qualifications than the average young men of their acquaintance possesses. Such girls pass the marriageable age while waiting for a suitor above the average in all respects. Being better educated than the young men they meet back home, the latter are afraid of them.

It is curious that the honor scholars show the lowest marriage and birth rates. It would be interesting to get statistics on honor students from all the colleges, and thus shed a little more illumination on the theory that nature is not in favor of the superman and seeks to prevent his birth.

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

She Won't Believe.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm in love with a girl where I work. But every time I tell her that I like her and would like to take her out she won't believe me.

"I don't blame her for not believing me, for I know that the other girls told her that with me it is new face, new fancy. I'm willing to stop fooling and I told her so, but she won't take my word—she thinks it will be just the same.

"Please kindly advise me what I should do. B. H."

Perhaps the girl really does not feel that way at all. She may be saying that to hear your repeated promises of loyalty. Tell her the next time that if she will only give you half a chance you will prove you are not the fickle youth reputation has made you appear to be.

Have you a persistent love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

Why Not?

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 17, and went out with a fellow for about three months. Then I did not hear from him any more. Then a girl friend of mine told me he was going around with another girl. Whether it is true or not I do not know. Four weeks ago I received a letter from him asking me to renew my friendship. I consented. He tells me he loves me. I don't know whether to believe him or not. He also asks me to wait two or three years until he finishes college. L. R."

Why not, L. R.? The boy had every right to take up with another girl. But, you see, your company apparently proved more agreeable, and he has come back to you. Why raise any double in your mind?

GIRLS! USE MOIST CLOTH ON HAIR

Instantly! A Gleamy, Abundant Mass of Wavy, Luxuriant Hair—So Youthful—So Beautiful

Try it! The effect is startling! Just moisten a cloth with a little "Danderine" and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and really appear twice as thick and abundant—a mass of luxuriant, glinty colorful hair—so easy to do up.

Besides instantly beautifying the hair "Danderine" is the best hair-tonic and corrective of dandruff and falling hair. It is not greasy, oily or sticky.

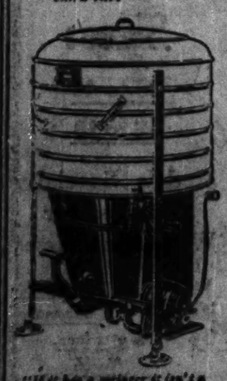
Get a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine" today at any drug store or toilet counter. Use it on cloth as told, and just see how even dull, dry or dead-looking hair becomes naturally beautiful, youthful, and full of life.

THE KRATZ LAUN-DRY-ETTE electric washing machine

WASHES AND DRIES WITHOUT A WRINGER

This washing machine hurries the drying on cold, damp, days.

The Laun-Dry-Ette Way Means—
No hand rinsing
No hand bluing
No buttons broken
No hooks bent
No fasteners jammed
No red hands
No hard-to-iron creases
No wringer and no extra tubs



"If it has a wringer it isn't a Laun-Dry-Ette"

NOT going to get through—Stuff won't dry—can't iron. Many things left over. You know the story. Why repeat it? Yet the Laun-Dry-Ette will banish the gloom if you'll permit it to do so.

Simply let the dryer whirl a trifle longer and it will cut down the after drying time materially. Some folks iron direct from the dryer in order to speed up. Simply cut out sprinkling—that's all. We don't recommend this short cut except on rainy days. Ordinarily it is preferable to hang out the clothes for bleaching and airing—but on rainy days like a good umbrella it's a blessing.

Do you know about this amazing wringerless washing machine? May we show you how much easier it is to wash the "Laun-Dry-Ette Way"?

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

I want to be the medium through which a friend in need and the friend in need may be brought together, if may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send mail to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

FIGHTING TO GET WELL.

HERE is an appeal that I am sure all of us will only be too happy to answer:

"You have helped our boys here to receive such splendid bathrobes which they truly needed, and they are grateful. I am writing to say that if at any time you have wool sweaters, caps, or stockings, we shall be glad to receive them. You know this is a county sanatorium, and patients are truly needed. Also, we need music for player piano and phonograph. We have not a large supply and these shut-ins who are fighting so bravely to get well of tuberculosis truly appreciate and love music. I hope I am not asking too much.

"MRS. E. H."

Surely with such a variety of needs and such a good cause all of us can help. There are few families these days which do not have phonographs—and every family with one has lots of discarded records. When records will help many a brave man and woman in the fight for health and life, who would begrudge the old ones? Those who can't give records may have piano rolls.

And there's always need for garments—particularly woolen ones, caps and mittens, during the winter days when hours in the sunshine and fresh air may turn the balance between life and death for many a fellow being! Remember the need—look over what you have—and let me know what help you can lend—tomorrow, if possible!

For Winter Comfort.

"I wonder if some of your readers have heavy portieres and strips of carpet that I could use. The high rent forced us to build a shack and we cannot afford doors on the rooms, so I thought heavy covering in the daytime would keep the heat in the main room. I would gladly call for them. MRS. D. F. O."

Discarded materials or old draperies would aid in solving a problem in this home. Carpets are badly needed everywhere to make homes comfortable for the winter. Please let us know if you can help.

Pets in Abundance.

"I have six beautiful collie puppies I should like to place in good homes where they will receive kind treatment. Only people who are really fond of dogs need apply for these lovely little companions, as I would rather have them killed than given to people who would mistreat them or abuse them in any way.

"As almost every one knows, collies are noted for their beautiful dispositions. They are the gentlest kind of pets, and will make ideal playmates for children. There is no more faithful friend to human beings than a dog, to my way of thinking.

"The puppies are now 8 weeks old.

"MRS. M. F. S."

Please write in if you want to offer a home to one of these puppies.

How to Make a Heel.

"I am a young Danish woman, married, and my husband has an outdoor job and needs warm socks. My dear old mother in the old country taught me how to knit, but I haven't had much chance to practice since childhood, and find I have forgotten how to make the heel. I wonder if some one would show me how. I would be grateful. MRS. T. H."

Who is willing to teach this girl what she has forgotten in all these years? It will be a great pleasure for both teacher and pupil, I am sure.

Appeal to Mothers.

Will you please ask in your department if some kind mother has outgrown clothing to fit two little girls, 11 and 15? Their mother ran away from them seven years ago, and I took care of them until 2 years ago. I have six children of my own, and the work and worry got to be too much. They now live with their father in a little flat, and they both go to school. Their father is a teamster and not earning much to buy the things they need. I look after them as best I can, but I am not well. The girl will be glad to call, or things can be sent to my house—they come here every Sunday. MRS. M. K."

An appeal to mothers from a mother who has plenty to worry her with her own family, but is willing to help two motherless girls. Any donations in this case, I'm sure would be put to good use.

Fruit Jars Offered.

"I have about seven dozen fruit jars that I would like to give to some housewife who does canning and who would be willing to call for them.

"MRS. O. T. S."

What housewife wants to take advantage of this offer by calling for the jars? Please write in to the donor.

Would Appreciate Clothing.

"I wonder if any of your readers have discarded clothing that would fit my two boys, aged 3 and 1½ years. I have been confined in a tuberculosis hospital for ten months, and don't know when I will be discharged. I would also appreciate clothing for myself and wife, size 38. M. H."

If this father were assured that his wife and babies were warmly clothed for the winter, I am sure it would help toward his recovery. His address may be had upon request.

Who Wants a Kitten?

"I have a black kitten, 2 months old, which I can't keep, as I have one cat. I'd like to give it to some one who would be good to it.

"A. H. D."

Does any one want to promise a good home to this kitty? Please write in to Mrs. A. H. G.

Request for Sweater.

"I have been here in the tuberculosis sanitarium for a long while, and I am writing to you for a little help in the way of clothing. It was all right in the summer, but it is cold now, and I can hardly stand it. I need a sweater, but cannot afford to buy one. My mother is poor and cannot come to see me, and my father is dead. I would wear size 15 or 16. M. G."

A good heavy sweater for this unfortunate girl probably would mean a whole winter made happier.

Four Children Motherless.

"I am in need of clothing for some motherless children I am caring for, and wonder if your kind readers have anything to pass along to them. The ages of the children are: girls, 14 and 12; boys, 11 and 10. MRS. A. S."

This is just one of many similar requests, the fulfilment of which would mean much to those benefited. These children are all of school age, and naturally need warm clothing to carry them through the winter.

Must Learn to Typewrite.

"I have an office position, but I must know how to type before I can be promoted. I would like so much to have an old typewriter that some one no longer used. I hope I am not asking too much. R. D."

Who can furnish this means to promotion for an ambitious little girl? It is quite a large order to fill, but I'm sure would be appreciated proportionately!

Lonely at Times.

"We are working hard to make a farm here in the north woods on a piece of cut over land. We are a mile from our nearest neighbor and, though we get along all right and have two little girls, it does get a bit lonely at times, especially during the fall and winter days. I love reading almost more than any other pastime, and wonder if any of your readers have any old books or magazines for me. I would gladly pay the postage and send them on to others. MRS. G. M. B."

Here is a request that surely is worthy of any discarded reading matter that we can forward. We have the address on file.

ANSWER TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

Do not leave your room in confusion for your roommate to put in order or excuse.

MEN'S FASHIONS

GLOVES THE FINISHING TOUCH TO STREET ATTIRE

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Gloves, both from a practical and an ornamental standpoint, form one of the most important items of a man's wardrobe. As a protection from cold or dirt, and as the finishing touch to the well dressed man's street attire, they are indispensable.

Probably the average citizen knows as little about the gloves he wears as he does about birth and death rates in the South Sea islands. He has a mistaken idea that all gloves that are made of leather come under the heading "kid gloves," and that the terms cape, mocha, suede, and buck refer vaguely to style, color, or perhaps some other kind of leather. He probably would be surprised to learn that the leathers which go into the higher priced gloves that he sometimes indulges in are secured from animals caught in the remotest parts of the globe, including Somaliland, Egypt, Russia, and Mexico.

Being interested ourselves, we went up to the office of one of the most prominent of gloves manufacturers to get some first hand information on the various kinds of gloves that will be covering the hands of well dressed men this year. The commonest leather glove used by men in the street is the so-called cape glove. The name refers to South African goatskins, but includes also Russian, French, and Spanish leather, and Turkish, Greek, and domestic skins, ranging in value in the order named. Cape gloves are used with business clothes, and are usually tan in color. They wear well, and are weatherproof. They come in different weights, the thinner ones being higher in price, due to an extra process.

Mocha gloves, slightly more formal than the cape variety, are made from skins which come from Arabia and Somaliland. They receive a special dressing process which gives them a soft velvety finish. Mocha gloves are extremely durable, but should be protected from a wetting, as in such a contingency they become hard and stiff. For this reason they are not suitable for sport wear, but should be reserved for business or semi-formal wear.

Buckskin is another leather which is made into gloves for business wear. Such gloves possess great durability and may be used for sport as well, but should be avoided by men whose hands perspire easily, as in such a case the gloves are apt to crack. Most buckskin comes from Mexico, Central America, and Brazil. They are small skins, and sometimes are faulty because of wounds and thorn scratches. But this does not weaken the glove, and is, indeed, good proof that the gloves are genuine buck and not sheepskin fixed up to resemble buck. The leather is dressed in oil and the color put on with colored clay dust. The color most commonly used is the natural color, which is a sort of cream, although the beaver tone is a frequent substitute. A pearl button is a characteristic of the buckskin glove. If buckskin gloves seem stiff upon a first wearing, they soon soften and are comfortably warm.

Suede gloves are distinctly for dress wear. They are made from a skin prepared for grain leather, and on which the grain is found to be defective. The skin is finished on the flesh side, the nap taken off with an emery wheel, and the grain split off. A suede glove is a weaker one than mocha or cape, and therefore not exceedingly durable. But being reserved for dress occasions, it is not subjected to great wear. There is a form of suede that is specially processed to give a strong leather, but this takes away some of the elasticity, making it unsuitable for dress gloves. Lined suede gloves are made from this heavier leather.

Chamois is another leather that is used for dress gloves more than for those intended for business wear. It is not suitable for heavy wear and will not stand up under severe treatment. It is a form of suede, oil dressed, which gives it the yellow shade that is characteristic of it. Chamois gloves are not made from the animal whose name they bear. They are washable, which is fortunate, since they are of such a light color.

Among other unusual leathers used for informal gloves for street or sport wear are horsehide, pigskin, deerskin, and reindeer. The last mentioned makes extremely expensive gloves when the genuine Russian reindeer is used, but they give unusually good wear, as the leather, which looks like a heavy mocha, is one of the closest fibers and most durable leathers known.

Real pigskin comes from the Peccary hog of Mexico. It has an extremely coarse grain, and wears remarkably well. Pigskin gloves can be washed while on the hand by the application of a dampened cloth. They come mostly in the natural yellow shade, although it is sometimes dyed tan.

Genuine horsehide is a heavy firm leather which is best suited to motoring and sport wear. The domestic leather is used, and gloves from it are commonest in black. Horseside, like the pigskin, may be washed with a damp cloth.

As far as the style of this year's gloves goes, there is no change from last year or the year before, and so on back. Although there has been some attempt to popularize the slip on glove, and the wrist strap type of glove, the one button or one clasp glove remains the favorite.

For an extra warm glove, the two in one glove, that is, a woolen glove inside a heavy leather glove, is the warmest proposition, and is preferable to a fur lined glove, which is not as warm as it looks. In the case of this double glove, the gauntlet type, with strap is the most practical. Cape or buck is generally used for the outer glove.

I Still Look 20

after 32 years as a star

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Some of you remember me as a famous stage beauty over 30 years ago. Perhaps in "The Girl I Left Behind Me," in "La Belle Helene," in "Wang," or "Florodora."

Many of you see me now, playing young girls' parts, still looking like a girl in her 'teens.

Thousands of women have asked me the secrets of this perennial youth. I have supplied them to many, and they, like I, have kept their girlish charms.

Now for all women

Now I am persuaded that I owe this information to all womankind. I have obtained by world-wide search, the best beauty helps in existence. I know they could bring to millions what they brought to me.

So I have arranged to supply these helps to all who want them—as a duty to my sex. I have had them prepared with the utmost skill, without regard to cost. And they are sold at modest prices, with small regard to profit.

Thus I hope to bring to girls and matrons everywhere the benefits I got. And no woman could ask for more.

My beautiful mother

My mother died a girlish beauty at the age of 57. From my earliest years she taught me her secrets. Then together we traveled the beauty-loving world in search of better methods.

We consulted able scientists, beauty specialists and famous beauties everywhere. The search cost us a fortune. But it brought to me and mine, and friends of mine, decades of added youth.

Now those helps are yours if you desire—the best that science knows. And I hope that my results will lead you to employ them.

White Youth Clay

I owe my debutante complexion largely to a superclay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many use today, but a clean, refined clay which dries white. It is based on 20 years of scientific study by the ablest of clay experts.

One who applies it feels the impurities fairly drawn from the skin. All that clogs the skin comes out—the causes of blackheads and blemishes. The blood is brought to the surface. Large pores, lines and wrinkles yield.

Wash it off when it dries, then behold a new complexion, soft and rosy, clear and firm. The results will amaze and delight you. Many women in those 30 minutes seem to drop ten years.

Clay is a beauty essential. No woman looks her best without it, none keeps her youthful bloom. Women who use clay today stand out in any crowd.

Don't use crude and muddy clays, for they will disappoint. Try the supreme creation—the last word in facial clays. It will be a revelation. Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay comes in tubes, at 50c and $1.

Facial Youth

This is a liquid cleansing cream which I learned about in France. It contains no animal, no vegetable oil, so it cannot assimilate with the skin. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs. All the grime, all that clogs the skin goes with it. I use it night and morning, and whenever else my face needs cleaning.

Compare it with any cleansing cream or any cleansing method. You will be surprised at the extra dirt my Facial Youth removes. And a clean skin is essential to beauty.

The greatest beauty experts in the world now advise this formula for cleansing. But they charge a very high price. Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth sells for 75c per bottle.

Youth Cream

This is my cold cream which I apply at night. Also in daytimes as a powder base. Also after every application of my Youth Clay or Facial Youth.

Youth Cream contains both lemon and strawberry. It is the only cream, I believe, which combines these fruit effects. It softens, whitens, feeds and firms the skin. After its use I awake in the morning blooming like a girl in her 'teens.

In all my many years of searching I have never found a cold cream to compare with this. Nor has any woman whom I know. Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream costs 60c per jar.

Hair Youth

My hair is my greatest glory. It is thick, silky, lustrous and grows fast every year. Before I bobbed it, it fell below my knees.

I have never had falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray. Nor has any friend who uses my formula. Nor had mother, who found this formula in France. She died at 57 with hair like mine today.

This is due to my Hair Youth. I apply it daily with an eye-dropper—just enough to dampen the scalp. The method does not mass the hair.

Hair Youth daily combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair's growth. It stimulates and fortifies the hair roots, from which come hair health and hair color.

Look at my luxuriant hair. Then see what I used to get it. Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth costs 50c and $1, with eye dropper.

Every store around you which sells toilet articles, supplies my preparations.

I invite you to try my Hair Youth at my cost. Write name below and mail this coupon today.

Adam-design dining suite of seven pieces may be had very reasonably for $185

Moderate in price, yet highly meritorious in design and craftsmanship; constructed of combination mahogany and birch. The table, extending to eight feet, five side chairs and one arm chair covered in blue haircloth—the chair design pictured on the left—7 pieces for $185.

Same table, and chairs of solid mahogany with continuous back posts, as pictured at extreme right, in front of table: seven pieces for $225.

Buffet, china closet and server to match are available at correspondingly low prices. Seventh floor.

Ruffled curtains of grenadine in white with blue dots—with tie-backs

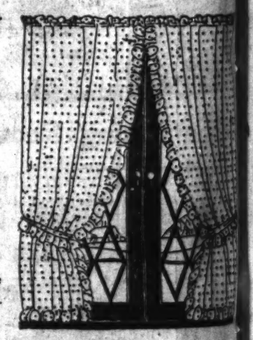
What a pleasant homecoming it is to find fresh, crisp curtains in the rooms. These 26 inches wide, 2⅛ yards long, are very special indeed.

at 2.45 pair

The curtains have tie-backs of self material.



Ruffled grenadine curtains featured at 3.35 pair

Or pure white sheer grenadine with tie-backs to match. Have very full ruffles. 36 inches wide and 2¼ yards long. Eighth floor.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

All recipes here have scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

DINNER GETTING WITH MARKETING.

THERE is a great economy, efficiency and health in dinners that are planned a day, or a week, or a month ahead, and in all ways well bespoken. If somebody did not begin to think about our dinners months and years ahead, we should have no meats, no sweets, no seasonings—none of the major or the minor items that go to make up a dinner. The sort of self-interest that does such wide planning ought in some measure to go into every individual dinner plan. It would pay, even in dollars and cents, and for more than one reason.

Many a housewife who plans and turns and twists to get clothes for herself and children, often having the matter under discussion for weeks, will not plan a dinner until 5 o'clock when it must be served at 6 or soon after. The result is a meal that may contain no more than a fraction of the nutritive qualities an adequate dinner should have, a dinner likely to be unpalatable and so cannot be so well digested or so completely utilized by the body, and one also that is expensive far beyond its nutritive worth, etc.

At 5 o'clock one afternoon recently I was in a food store, and heard two women discuss dinner getting in a remote way. The one asking for the time said, "I told the children to put the potatoes on." I wanted to say to her, "Great heavens, why?" Those potatoes would certainly be boiled blue or black or soggy, and be dead of flavor, where they should be sweet, unless that woman would move on instead of waiting and talking and talking. In some families the nice sweet flavors present in almost every vegetable when correctly cooked and immediately served (or at any rate taken from the stove) are never known, while in a vegetable like potatoes this family knows flavors for that vegetable with which no one ought to be acquainted. When these are known, it is more than likely that the vitamines are absent. Let us say it again: There are certainly ugly flavors which can be developed in potatoes that no eater ought ever to encounter.

The Wrong First Step.

I have known of not a few people who thought putting on potatoes the first step in dinner getting, even when they did not know what the next step would be—always varying according to the menu. And some one was telling me but lately about a woman who is accustomed to starting her potatoes too long in advance, and then stopping the cooking for a while when they are half done.

How to Keep Vegetables Hot.

By the way, it is much better to take a cooked vegetable from the stove, when it is done in advance of the other items of the meal, even if it has to be eaten cold. A hot brick or fireless cooker stone—not too hot—may be used to keep it hot, or another way is to set it on half a dozen or more thicknesses of newspapers. It will keep hot remarkably long in that way, especially if covered. So many vegetables may be fixed up in a sauce, put into a baking dish, baked fifteen or twenty minutes in the oven, after which the heated earthenware dish will keep it hot for anywhere up to half an hour, or, with a cover, up to an hour. Some device to preserve the precious qualities in vegetables should be known, else they become but roughage for the meal, not highly appetizing, not contributing their precious insurance of health-giving elements.

Planning to Buy or Supply in Advance.

Much has been written, and there has been much discussion about forethought in planning the meals, which are to keep us abundantly fit for living. Sometimes this has been called budgeting, sometimes just common foresight. Our grandmothers did it because they had to, since there were no markets to run to, no cooked food stores around the corner.

It is only restaurant and hotel people who follow the old methods. Otherwise they could not stay in business for any time at all. They make contracts for foods months in advance, and in this way often get raw materials that are far superior—and of course at wholesale prices—to what the ordinary housewife can buy. If the housewife would order her foods in advance or buy in advance, she would revolutionize the food trades.

Holiday Marketing.

Let us say she intends to do considerable entertaining during the holiday season. If she orders her poultry in advance, she will get choicer specimens, as everybody knows. If she buys fine apples now and wraps them in paper, she can surely keep them in some cool place for two months or so, since all out of doors is cool, and with sufficient wrappings and covers foods will not freeze. Sometimes because we have not ideal storage conditions we do not try what may be successful makeshifts. Malaga grapes early in October were selling at less than 20 cents a pound. At Christmas time they sometimes sell for up to 60 cents a pound. These being of the thick skinned variety of grapes, keep well either in the cork, sawdust or in shredded paper.

Packing Fruits and Vegetables.

If we would pay more attention to how growers pack fruits which so soon perish when exposed to the dry and warm air of our houses we would grow wiser every year. It is remarkable how cool alligator pears keep well wrapped in paper and in a bed and cover of excelsior. All melons and cucumbers ought to keep well in the same way. Squashes and pumpkins are kept for months by farmers in some dry, cool attic, although they fall down in a week in our kitchens. Citron melon will keep the winter through, if in a cool and dry place, and is always better freshly prepared for our cakes, pudding and mince pie meat.

Even in buying of canned goods, economically, there is a best way. The Pictorial Review for November has a thousand word article on the subject, which it would pay any woman to read.

Order of Preparation of Dinner.

Suppose it is a Thanksgiving dinner we are getting. Having assured ourselves that we shall not have Hobson's choice of turkey, and "the fixins," suppose we look to the rest of the plan. We may prepare a basic salad dressing, favors, and decorations and do what baking we can before the day, and the table equipment should certainly be looked to in advance. In preparing for a guest dinner, while is no more nor quite so important as the every day dinner nutritively, the next thing to do after the marketing and preparation of dishes which may be done in advance of the day, is to see that all the silver is clean, the china and glass newly washed, and the linen in condition.

One of the old housewife mottoes was "It is better to be ready and not go than to go and not be ready." There were others and some especially about learning from experience. Yet I have known highly intelligent women, who go on year after year with the high expensive haphazard buying, irritating and altogether unsatisfactory, women who go on burning the potatoes, go on having to wash dishes after the food is ready to serve. Not so many years ago a woman with a brilliant mind, who had been keeping house for fifteen years, put her steak to broil and then called me up and asked me how to cook the sweet corn she intended to serve. The steak would certainly be more than half cooked by the time she had finished talking and there was yet the corn to prepare. Her family had various digestive troubles.

A Guide Book.

A book of wonderful value to a woman who would learn the principles of buying and act up to them, who would learn a method of behavior—time saving, nerve saving, money saving, joy saving, husband and children or home saving—in all the business which is hers, willy nilly, and with no escape, is the "Marketing and Housework Manual," by S. Agnes Dunham, who had twenty years of teaching and practice before she wrote her book. At the start she tells us how to get every sort of assistance in marketing through the government bulletins—federal, state, and city—through the board of health cards, magazine articles, conferences with neighbors, individual investigations of markets. She says:

"Do not expect to learn to market by telephoning to your favorite clerk or reading books on the subject. You can learn only by constant use of every rule you know and by repeated visits to market and practice in selection."

And then she gives the rules, and there are many of them. She gives ten points under methods of marketing and thirteen rules for buying. Her marketing charts which cover many pages are full of information. For meats she gives the cuts, the location in the animal, the characteristics, the uses, the average weight. For poultry she has "kind and season," with points of choice, instead of cut and location. And these same points for fish. For fruits there is name and season, points of choice and use and care in the house. For vegetables there is name, parts used and season; points of choice; prices, amount to buy; care and preparation; cooking and serving; valuable for. There is a part on menu making and another on food selection and on the dining room and table service, in fact on all the things the title would suggest.

The HOME HARMONIOUS

WITHIN AVERAGE MEANS.

LONG, sloping roof lines, cut at odd angles, a little dormer window overlooking the entrance walk, a massive chimney, and a vine covered, high, trellised fence, designed to add to the privacy, give distinction to this six room stucco house. It is really a small house and within the means of the average intending home builder. Still leaving plenty of space for a garage, a vegetable patch, and a flower garden, it can be placed on a 40 by 100 foot lot.

The columns around the main entry are somewhat odd and, being stained a light brown, are a pleasing setoff to the warm, gray painted stucco. The window washes are all painted white and, in contrast, is a slate roof, with individual slates of graduated length and thickness, and of variegated color. The cap member of the chimney is painted black, adding a final touch to a carefully thought out color scheme.

Downstairs are the living room, dining room, kitchen, and large, covered side porch.

The entry porch has a red quarry tiled floor, and leads directly into a small stair hall. To the right hand side is a 12 by 13 feet 6 inches living room, none too large, in these days of overstuffed living room furniture, but of sufficient size to accommodate the average American family, especially when used in conjunction with the dining room and the side porch.

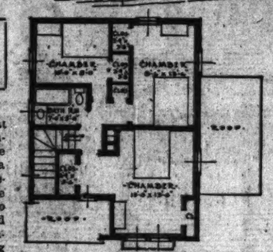
A large brick fireplace is built into one corner of the living room, so that it really helps to cheer both this room and the dining room. It is interesting to note that fireplaces have come back into favor in the average home, whether it be large or small. This is, no doubt, due to the fact that architects put more time and thought into their designs.

There is nothing which adds so much towards a homelike atmosphere as a real fire in the winter, instead of the makeshifts which are a failure as decorative features and usually worthless for heating purposes. In contrast, the newer types of fireplace appliances are so arranged that the heat can be regulated with precision, and the smoke made to go up the chimney, as it should, instead of into the room. Then, too, there are bottom dumps at the base of the fireplace, so that the ashes can be taken out by way of the basement without creating a nuisance in the living room itself.

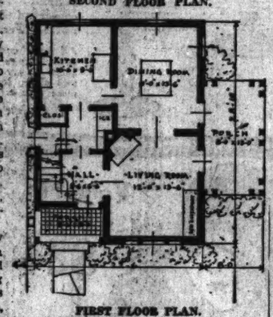
In the far corner of the room opposite the fireplace the architect, O. Waird of New York, has shown a bed-davenport, which fits nicely into the space provided.

Both the living room and the dining room with which it is connected lead directly to the large side porch already mentioned. It is 8 feet wide and 15 feet long, and is made up of columns with arches between. It is large enough so that it can be screened in with good effect, and used as a place to entertain visitors on hot summer days, or as a sewing room.

Just off the dining room is the kitchen. This is exceptionally well located, as it is connected directly to the hallway, so that there is ready access to the front door. Being at a corner of the building, with two windows, it may be quickly ventilated and cooled. Here, also is a closet which may be used for general storage purposes. On one side of the sink, which is placed under the window, is a pantry case, extending from floor to ceiling, where all the necessary kitchen utensils may be kept within easy reach. The ice box is placed in a separate compartment, just outside the door, where it is readily accessible from the side entry. Away from the heat of the kitchen, its location tends to conserve the ice supply, which is a matter of considerable and necessary expense in every home.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

Three bedrooms are located on the second floor. The arrangement has been made with a special view toward light and ventilation. This has resulted in making each of the bedrooms a corner room, the largest being 10 feet by 13 feet 6 inches, with two closets. The other rooms have a large clothes closet each, and there is a linen closet just off the bathroom.

Of interest is the fact that in order to prevent cracking plaster on the under side of the stairs, and in order to make them a safe fire exit under all circumstances, metal lath has been used on the under side, and also on the sides of the partition inclosing the stairs.

Mr. Waird has provided a well lighted laundry in the basement. It has inclosing partitions running all the way to the ceiling, so that dust from the adjoining furnace and coal room is entirely excluded. There is also a large storage space and shelving adjacent to the furnace room. This will be especially appreciated where the master of the house is of a mechanical turn of mind, as a work bench and tools can be easily accommodated in the corner, which is well lighted by two basement windows.

In this connection the need for better lighting facilities for the basement is now recognized as a necessary adjunct in the modern home. This demand for better lighting has brought about the introduction of steel basement windows, which are said to be no more expensive than the ordinary wood type commonly employed, and still provide much more light than the latter, because the steel frame is narrower than the wood sash must necessarily be.

In conclusion it is important to note that the high pitched attic is especially desirable in cities where hot summers are experienced, as the air space provided insulates the lower rooms and insures comfort on the hottest summer days. However, to achieve this it is always necessary to provide windows which can be opened to let out the heated air at night, so that the attic can fill in with cool air and act as a buffer when the hot summer sun comes around in midafternoon.

Every Gray Hair a Sign Post of Age

Gray hair, however, handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

TINT GRAY HAIR

JUST brush or comb a little "Brownatone" into your gray, faded, streaked or bleached hair and take 10 years off your age. Thousands of prominent women in the United States and Canada have proclaimed "Brownatone" their best friend. Don't experiment. Acts instantly, easily applied at home and guaranteed harmless to hair, scalp or skin. Any shade from golden brown to black—50c and $1.50 at drug and toilet counters everywhere. Trial bottle sent direct for 10c. The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 614 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky.

The healthy look that DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Gives is Natures Own

Ladies! This Beats Cosmetics

GOOD health cannot be camouflaged by powder and rouge. The eyes will tell. That sparkle and clearness that denote good health will not be there if you are constipated. Mrs. Clara Proctor of Potterville, Mich., had been told by doctors she had this and that disease, and one advised an operation, but she knew she had been constipated all her life so first tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She avoided the operation and now feels better than she ever did. Likewise Mrs. William Appleton of Eddington, Pa., who was badly constipated and now looks her best again after using Syrup Pepsin.

On Sale for 30 Years

Intelligent women are realizing that health and mere outward complexion are two different things, and more and more are taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Over 10 million bottles were bought in drug stores last year, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world! Go to your druggist and buy a bottle. The cost is less than a cent a dose. You will see how much more effective a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.

Safe Family Laxative

Use it regularly a day before and a day after the periods. The gentle emptying of the bowels will give you relief, and lessen headaches and congestion. Take a spoonful at bed-time and see how much better you feel in the morning. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics, and entirely safe not only for you but for the youngest child. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the home for you or some other member of the family may need it any moment to relieve constipation, to break up fevers and colds, to clear up biliousness, indigestion, a pimple, a fever sore and other disturbances that show constipation.

If You Want to Try It Free Before Buying—

Thanksgiving and Gas Service

The tremendous demand upon the Company for Gas Service on this national feast, and cooking day, is evidenced by the "send out" last Thanksgiving Day.

On that day from noon to one o'clock P. M. the Company sent 9,299,000 cubic feet of gas into the mains to replace that used by its customers during the same period.

This one hour demand was greater than the maximum 24 hour demand for gas in a city the size of Denver.

When you turn the levers on your range and find gas instantly ready at the burners, you will know the Company is at work to meet its huge Thanksgiving Day task with promptness and efficiency.

GOOD MORNING!

This is a picture that should appeal to most optimists. It has love and mystery and comedy and the pathos of the once bad big girl and the once bad big boy who decide to go straight and who stick to the decision, through thick and thin. Which IS pathos, we'll admit, when we all stop to think of private resolutions made in moments spent on the mountain tops and broken in seconds when we have found ourselves in the valleys.

RUTH STONEHOUSE plays the girl who mixes hash. [Paramore Photo.]

"Lights Out" is a picture with an idea behind it, too. For instance, one wonders, as the plot works itself out, why it mightn't be a good idea for the various governments to compel the people—THE PEOPLE—to have movies made of themselves. Such a law would solve so perfectly the mysteries of crime. F'rinstance—

Murder in Hindustan. Murderer escapes. He's been in the movies. His picture as a murderer has been in the papers. As he goes scuttling from country to country he is followed by the cinema. In London they say:

"Bah Jove, I've seen that chap!" Perhaps, then, in Piccadilly he is put in irons by a fan—policeman or otherwise. In China it is the same. In gay Paree—ia ia, they know him! He comes to U. S., and we just naturally turn out en masse on State and Madison streets and CAPTURE him.

Of course on the other hand, we'd all be acquainted with and bowing to each other's wives, husbands, etc.—but it IS an idea. What? How it occurs to you I shall leave to "Lights Out" to acquaint you.

This picture will call to your attention the fact that the movie people themselves are, more and more, thinking of going into the movies. Why hire a star to play a producer when the producer himself can be a star besides a producer, both inside and out of the picture, and, incidentally, cut down the high cost of starring, besides getting a little exercise and enjoyment in the bargain?

The "to do" of the film under discussion has to do with the robbery of a bank and the discovery of the guilty parties through the medium of a film called, I believe, "The Red Trail."

The action starts on a Pullman train and ends in a motion picture studio, and is really exceptionally well worked out all the way through.

Keeping Them Guessing as Long as He Likes.

"Lights Out" is one of those rare mystery photoplays that manages to keep you in doubt as long as the story writer has hoped you WILL be, and until the director decides to bring you out into the bright light of knowledge. I like that, don't you?

When you can say the minute a film starts to unreel:

"O, this and that are going to happen," and they DO happen—not so good! Like reading the last page of a novel first.

"Well, directors are learning. They HAVE to learn, for the public loves its motion pictures and is apt to be always one lap ahead of them if they don't tend to their knitting.

Give a dog meat and call it dog biscuit; put a violin in the wrong hand of the musician supposed to be playing it; mention via subtitle "Vesuvius actually erupting" or "Actual

Mary Receives Kind Offer of Introduction to Doug

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Over at the Southern Pacific depot the other day Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks were waiting for the arrival of a friend. They had come from the studio and Doug was in makeup—white flannel coat, white trousers, an oriental band around his head.

PRISCILLA DEAN hostess at Fashion Frolic. [Frenlick Photo.]

Four men were talking and joking with him, and Mary strolled off a little distance.

An elderly woman rushed up to her.

"O, do tell me where's Douglas Fairbanks?" she cried.

"Over there," said Mary.

The woman looked, saw, and was convinced.

"O, I must shake hands with him," she said. "And you—won't you come with me? I'll introduce you!"

Mary and Doug, by the way, are planning on a trip to New York, that they may be present when their libel suit is tried.

Sigrid Holmquist, the Swedish star, is also going to New York soon.

"I think I'll get married," she said. But she wouldn't mention any names. Not even that of Manuel Alonso, the tennis star.

Priscilla Dean's recent fashion frolic was one of the most perfect social functions in Hollywood this year. It was held in the Spanish drawing room of her Beverly Hills home. The Baroness d'Estrelles and eight mannequins paraded the newest winter sports garments. Other guests were Norma Talmadge, Theda Bara, Eileen Percy, Enid Bennett, Lois Weber, Bessie Love, Anna Q. Nilsson, Blanche Sweet, Mae Murray, Doris Anderson, Florence Vidor, and Winifred Kingston.

adorned her arm, and there was a diamond and onyx bracelet adorned her air and there was a diamond and onyx ring to match it on one of her dainty fingers. Her lacquered hair was done in an effective fan shaped roll.

Miss Talmadge came in a navy blue sport dress with a cloche of satin. Miss Nilsson wore taupe with mole bands and a mole toque. Florence Vidor was attired in a Milgrim model blue Poiret twill with cream colored lace and a summer ermine wrap.

Miss Sweet wore a black crêpe dress touched with blue de rol, and a black hat with a cocade of feathers.

Pearls and Ermine and Everything.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Borzage gave a dinner at the Montmartre to Mr. and Mrs. Al Russell and Hobart Henley on Monday night. Mrs. Russell, Vola Vale to the screen fans, was clad in pink georgette, decorated with green, rose, and yellow beads. She wore a diamond necklace. Mrs. Borzage wore white georgette and pearls and an ermine wrap.

One of the most stunning gowns seen in Los Angeles in these latter days was worn by Viola Dana at the Biltmore a few nights ago. It was of white crêpe, sleeveless, made perfectly plain with spirals of glittering rhinestones all over it. Howard Strickling was her escort.

Lloyd Hughes, leading man in "The Heritage of the Desert," left the Lasky lot long enough the other day to win the handball championship of the United studios. Hughes is a Y. M. C. A. player of repute. He played against John McCormick of First National, who had beaten every one else. Colleen Moore was present to cheer her new hubby, but even she was not a charm against Hughes.

The United studios, like that of Mary and Doug, go in strong for athletics. Champion Jack Dempsey is to referee the first of a series of four round bouts to be held there every Saturday noon.

O, listen! Leatrice Joy has gone back to her husband, Jack Gilbert, Fox star, whom you may have seen in "Cameo Kirby." This couple has caused much talk in Hollywood. They were married twice and separated three times, if you remember.

Jack once gave a $16 bottle of perfume to a friend who effected one of their reconciliations.

Leatrice is now wearing her nice black hair in a shingle bob. And, really, she looks charming. Maybe it was the

"Siegfried," Stock, and Sistine Today

By Edward Moore.

WITH "Siegfried" this afternoon and the Sistine chapel choir tonight, the Auditorium is due to resound with a great deal of unfamiliar music, some of which will be heard for the first time hereabouts. Both items are interesting as music and news. In "Siegfried" Frederick Stock will transfer his activities from the Chicago Symphony orchestra to become guest conductor with the Chicago Civic Opera company, the first time he has appeared in that capacity. No one enjoys a higher reputation in the symphonic field; partly for that reason, and partly because of a desire that hand should clasp cooperating hand between Chicago's two greatest musical organizations, he has been invited to enter the operatic field in the Wagnerian corner.

Some of the cast will be new in their rôles; for that matter the entire cast, with one single exception, will be new to Chicago audiences. That one is William Beck as Alberich, who sang the same part on Sunday, Dec. 3, 1916, with Egon Pollak conducting, the last time that "Siegfried" was given in the Auditorium. Elsewhere one reads of Forrest Lamont as Siegfried, of Myrna Sharlow as Brunnhilde, Kathryn Meisle as Erda, Harry Steier as Mime, Alexander Kipnis as the wandering Wotan, Virgilio Lazzari as Fafner, and Lucie Westen as the forest bird.

One thing may be considered fairly certain. "Siegfried" this afternoon will undoubtedly be shorter in running time than it was ever known to be before, and to those who sighed during the hours and hours and hours that it extended in its former, or uncut, version, this will be good news. For Mr. Stock is as expert an amputator as he is a conductor. He never omits anything of musical or dramatic importance in a score, but he has a keen eye and a relentless blue pencil for dead wood and waste motion. Next Saturday afternoon he will direct the Wagner music-drama for the second time.

Comes the Oldest Organized Choir.

The Sistine Chapel choir, of fifty-four men and boys, will make its first Chicago appearance tonight. Up to a year ago it had never appeared outside the Sistine chapel of Rome. Arrangements were made at that time for a tour of Australia, which was followed by a trip to the United States.

Mgr. Antonio Rella, perpetual vice-director of the choir, will be the conductor. The program is in great part made up of the compositions of Palestrina and of Mgr. Dom Lorenzo Perosi, who was director of the organization for a number of years until ill health, said to be mental, made his retirement imperative. These works are sung without accompaniment and run from the customary four parts to the complexities of eight and ten.

This is the oldest organized choir in existence. It has a traditional manner of singing which is unimitated elsewhere. None of its compositions is permitted to be removed from the Vatican library, and all that is used on this tour was copied by Mgr. Rella before the choir left Italy.

More About the Opera.

Other local activities, one at which touches upon another guest of the company, are to be expected during the week. This guest is Charles Hackett, tenor, who on Thursday night will sing Romeo to the Juliet of Edith Mason, with both under the baton of Giorgio Polacco.

Mr. Hackett will be remembered in this part at Ravinia a couple of summers ago. Since then he has been about quite a bit, in opera with several of the most important European organizations, in concert in this country and elsewhere.

On the night following there will be a "special" performance, meaning that it is outside of the subscription list, of Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," the first time that the Chicago organization has ever attempted to present it.

Those of us who used to watch operatic developments about the Auditorium in the old days will remember how at the beginning of practically every season Cleofonte Campa-

Steps in "Stepping Stones" Make Stone's Daughter Star

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The second and third comedians, assisted by the prima donna, had just finished singing "Because You Love the Singer," which is one of the minor melodies in "Stepping Stones," and the plot of the piece was beginning slowly to struggle back to a sitting posture, when Dorothy Stone romped in.

Dorothy is the 17 year old daughter of Fred Stone, comedian, and this was the occasion of her Broadway debut. She has been dancing with her flexible dad over a period of weeks. But she never before had stepped right out in New York and invited the fates to do as they would with her.

DOROTHY STONE Fred's little daughter follows in his footsteps.

Dorothy, being blonde and rather small and pretty (despite the fact that, like the Drews, she carries in reasonable miniature a stamp of the paternal beak in the center of her features), fitted nicely into the picture. She was playing "Rougette Hood," which is libretto French for "Little Red Riding Hood," and she had come to the cake shop of the Widow Hood, her mother, for the basket of goodies she was to carry to De Wolfe.

She acknowledged the applansive reception of her father's friends and spoke her first few lines much as any good amateur would. Then some one dragged in a music cue and she began her first song, "Little Red Riding Hood."

Right there the audience went cold. Not because Dorothy's voice is poor, but because it is not as good as the friends had hoped it would be. It has a few of the flat tones that distinguish her comedian father's singing.

But following the song Dorothy danced. And on the instant she became a recreated personality. A few simple steps, a kick or two—and the house began to cheer. A weight had been lifted from its mind. Dorothy Stone could dance! She did not have to be accepted as Fred Stone's daughter any longer! All gods are good!

The dance finished, Dorothy turned to her mother, Allene Crater, who is also in the cast. And there they stood while the cheering went on, the mother patting her daughter's hand and mumbling her assurance that everything was fine and that Dorothy had really done very well.

The rest was easy. From that moment the young lady's star shone with ever increasing brilliancy. Each of her dances was a little better than the one preceding it. Her voice lost some of its flatness as she gained confidence, and she smiled with radiant amiability. There was nothing of the fresh kid about her. She was honestly, wholesomely happy. And everybody in the theater was happy with her. I saw more people weeping joyfully over this sentimental triumph than I have seen in tears at any emotional melodrama this season.

Finally the Stones danced, with Dorothy on dad's side and Fred replacing, at it were, the late Dave Montgomery. Wherever Fred led Dorothy followed. She mimicked all her father's eccentric steps, all his grimaces. She gave the old scarecrow twist to her head and shuffled on and off for her encores. And the house rocked with joy.

It was a great night for Dorothy Stone. She'll never have another like it. And from comparisons made loudly I suspect Montgomery looked on and cheered a little on his own account.

Still Makes a Good Story.

There used to be a story of a scene at Billy Watts' bedside when that minstrel was dying in Chicago. George Primrose, West's old dancing partner, had undertaken to chaperon a team of youngsters—the Foleys, as I recall their names—and to teach them all the old Primrose and West steps. In Chicago George took the boys up to see West. After the greetings West, desperate fit, turned over and whispered:

"Which one dances on my side, George?"

The Foleys stood up and took their position, breaking into a step or two to show they could do it. For a second West watched them with shining eyes, then reached for their

"The Best People": a Lesson in Stagecraft

By Sheppard Butler.

"My dear young lady, I am yon are not without personality."
"Be—what else sir! is!"
"My name is Vincent—Lionel Vincent."
"Dear—I wouldn't call a cockroach Lionel!"
"No man's a stranger that'll buy me food."
"He wasn't hurt. True, he lacked on his brain, and that's pneumatic."

SO they say (sometimes truly) that plays are not written but rewritten. It must be so! Gems such as these, flung with a prodigal hand, adorn the fabric of "The Best People," the new piece at the Illinois. To them, and to others of equally delicate lustre, the populace already has yielded every token of sound approval. "The Best People," say the wiseacres, is a hit. And therein, if the matter interests you, is a neat and illuminating lesson in stagecraft.

For if you had seen Mr. David Gray, the play's original author, when he stepped out for a bit of a curtain speech Monday night, you would know in your heart that he did not write the one about the cockroach. He is a gentleman of ascetic appearance and—well, no one could have written that who looks like Mr. Gray. But the playbill mentions a collaborator; he lurked in the wings when Mr. Gray was making his speech, and his name is Avery Hopwood. Knowing Mr. Hopwood's past, and knowing that he has had his way with the manuscript, one is in no great perplexity as to where the airy embellishments came from.

The point of the thing is that the embellishments seem to fit. "The Best People," mind you, is by no means the sort of play you might judge it to be from the lines at the top of this column. It is, at heart, a rather thoughtful comedy about a perplexed father and some wayward children. Mr. Hopwood, charged with the task of making it a "good show," has overlaid it here and there with the broadest possible farce—treatment which sometimes saves a play but usually wrecks any serious intent on the part of its author. These operations on "The Best People," however, have been adroitly and happily performed. Its characters are still human and its story still believable. It is a salutary example of play-doctoring.

A Near—and Funnier—Denouement.

If you hurry, you may see more of it in the making, for the surgeons are still at work. On Wednesday, for example, it acquired a new ending.

Hitherto Mr. Charles Richman as the troubled father, confronting the prospect of his son's marriage to a chorus girl and his daughter's to the family chauffeur, has observed philosophically: "We must hope for the best."

That was all.

Now he says: "What this family needs is new blood." Whereupon the chauffeur turns to a fastidious old codger who has been pestered and shocked and horrified throughout the play by one of Mr. Hopwood's most exuberant gold-diggers, and suggests cheerfully:

"Sure, Uncle George, you hook up with Millie."

Quite different, you see, and much funnier. The whole current of things switched with a "cue" of eight words, and the curtain brought down on a laugh instead of a note of gravity. Thus are plays remade.

Something bland and maybe a little grandiloquent was included in this paper's report of the doings at the Illinois last week, to the effect that "The Best People" was having a "world premiere" and that it was being acted "without benefit of any trial performances." Which was all right, except for the minor circumstance that it wasn't true.

The remarks were based on the typewritten assertion of a Frohman representative that the piece was to be seen here "for the first time in this country." What your correspondent might have recalled, had he not supposed that a Frohman bulletin needed no scrutinizing, was that the play, then called "Goodness Knows," was performed for two weeks last April

SOME CLOSEUPS IN HOLLYWOOD BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE

WHENEVER conversation lags on the lot or in the studios at Hollywood the visitor can always get a magnificent rise by asking what they think of the censorship.

BANG! The stuff's off; the beans are spilled; the cows are in the corn!

The air for the next five minutes is full of lurid, appalling adjectives. Feeding time in the zoo! A thunderstorm in the Alps! The battle of the Marne! Ah! there is no simile to express the uproar that follows the mention of movie censorship. At once frantic questions tumble over each other in a way to make Niagara feel ashamed of itself.

"Why isn't the stage censored?"
"Why isn't the press censored?"
"Why isn't the Chautauqua censored?"
"Why isn't the pulpit censored?"
"Why isn't the phonograph censored?"
"Why isn't the grand opera censored?"
"Why isn't the shoe business censored?"
"Why isn't William Jennings Bryan censored?"
"Why isn't poetry censored?"
"Why aren't novelists censored?"

The answer is, then the movies shouldn't be either.

In every studio they furnish you with an appalling list of cutouts made by the movie censors in different states and cities and each exhibit is accompanied by the demand, "Do you see any sense cutting that out?"

The answer is NO. O, you could answer something else, but you know that if you did you would cause heartache and suffering to all those nice people around you and stamp yourself as the Enemy of Art.

And they've got a greater argument than any that have been listed.

It's a clincher. This is it: "The censorship is contrary to the right of free speech."

Any movie magnate, producer, director, camera man, or electrician will tell you that and then fold his arms and sit back and dare you to answer.

But there is an answer. I thought it up myself. And when I launched it a debate was started that is still echoing around Hollywood.

When they sprung that on me, with a smug, superior smile, "The censorship is contrary to the right of free speech," I just said, "Yes, but there isn't any speech in the movies."

When I said that to them there was a most appalling silence. Then a producer gasped for air and rose to a point of order: "I don't believe I get your point."

"Why," I said, "what you quoted refers to speech. But the movies have nothing to do with speech. It is the SILENT drama."

The agony grew thicker and thicker. "Don't you see," I continued with a note of triumph, for the thing was so simple, "that if the constitution of the United States or whatever it is should read 'The right of free action shall not be abridged,' then of course that would include the movies. But it doesn't. I'm sorry, but it doesn't! It says, 'The right of free speech shall not be abridged,' that's it, 'speech.' Not free action. That's the way it reads. So you see your greatest argument falls flat. The censorship you see is not in conflict with the constitution." Then the argument began. As I emerged from the dust of battle hours afterward an electrician who had listened in shook my hand warmly. "That's the greatest thing I ever heard," he said warmly, "for a drunken argument. There's a friend of mine and me, we sometimes get hold of a bottle of hootch and we start arguing, but we never find a subject that will last long enough. But that idea of yours is going to be immense. Let's see, the thing is, 'Does the constitutional right of free speech apply to the movies which do not speak?' Is that it?"

I said that was close enough.

"Good-by," said the electrician. "I am going to hunt up a bottle of hootch and get my friend. That's a wonderful thing for a drunken argument."

It does make a fine subject for discussion.

IT'S only outsiders that disturb the peace and quiet and the atmosphere of serene satisfaction that pervades Hollywood. They that dwell therein do so in harmony and in truth.

It's all over the place. Suppose you are invited to some magnate's mansion or some star's palace to dinner. The dinner will be delightful. After dinner the host says, "Tonight we are most favored. Mr.

The answer is, then the movies shouldn't be either.

Screener here, who has just completed his new picture 'Apple Sance,' has brought it over and we will now have the pleasure of seeing it."

Everybody registers delight, the lantern men scurry around, the silver screen is unrolled, the lights go out, and the new picture is revealed.

There are excited exclamations and bursts of rapture and applause throughout the showing of the picture. Finally comes "The End" and the lights go up. There is an eloquent silence. Then the great magnate or the great producer who is the host rises solemnly and walks slowly over to the great magnate or the great producer who made the picture. The host puts both hands on the other's shoulders and says, "That is the grandest picture I have ever seen in my life! You have done the impossible!"

I always liked seeing the first run of pictures in somebody's home in Hollywood. Sometimes the pictures bored me half to death, but I always liked to see the dramatic scene at the end where the great man who gave the party says to the great man who made the picture, "That is the grandest picture I have ever seen in my life! You have done the impossible!"

Of course they don't always say those exact words. Once I heard a producer say to another, "You have made the most wonderful picture I have ever seen in my life." And another time the host producer said, "That's the greatest picture I have ever seen in my whole life," but these are minor details.

You must bear in mind in Hollywood that the motion picture is an art, or, rather, it is, as Cecil De Mille puts it, a combination of two arts, painting and the drama. And I think they are trying to annex another art to the movies—music. For whenever a picture is made it is done to music. On the sets, inside of a studio, the music consists generally of a piano and a violin, to which is often added a flute and a violoncello.

The field music, the kind they use when they are working outside on the lot or on location, consists of a collapsible melodeon and a violin. It is a sad sight on a hot day to see a fat man in his shirt sleeves trudging doggedly around carrying the collapsible melodeon, followed by a young woman packing the violin. When the director picks out the spot for the picture the field music unlimbers and goes into action. As the director shouts "Action" the music begins.

The music is supposed to throw the actors and the mob into an artistic mood. If it is a love scene the music plays "O, Promise Me" or "O, That We Two Were Maying," and if it is a terrible rough and ready fight, with a hundred extras rolling over the floor, the music plays "O, Promise Me" or "O, That We Two Were Maying." If the scene is a roaring comedy where somebody falls into a kettle of boiling soup the music plays "O, Promise Me" or "O, That We Two Were Maying."

I never could find out just what good the music did, except on the sets in the studio it helped drown out the noise of the carpenters building a palace next door. The directors say that it keeps the play in the same tempo; and the stars declare that it puts them in a dreamy, tender mood. I asked an extra what effect the music had on him when he was acting in a big mob scene, and he said he never heard the damn thing.

Field Music on the March.

BUT they always do it. I sat almost the entire day once watching the rehearsal and filming of a scene in Cathay in Douglas Fairbanks' new picture, "The Thief of Bagdad." The set showed the harbor front of Cathay, with a junk swinging slowly into port. The junk was on wheels on a track built under the water, and it swung into port because a half dozen husky laborers toiling at a windlass wound up a rope hitched to the thing. But it was quite realistic.

All the inhabitants of Cathay came down to the water's edge to see the boat come in, and on the junk was a captain studying his chart and sailors raising and lowering the sails and working the sweeps. Everybody in the picture was Chinese from Los Angeles' Chinese colony. The interpreter had hard work in repeating the orders of the director and the thing was rehearsed for hours and then taken and retaken a dozen times.

Whenever the director said "Action!" and the interpreter said "Yuhahio!" or whatever is Chinese for "Action!" and the Chinese actors scrambled around as they had been told, the Ladies' Orchestra of six pieces sitting on the side of the ocean burst forth with "O, That We Two Were Maying."

Not being able to speak Chinese, I couldn't ask the Chinese actors just how much the sweet strains of "O, That We Two Were Maying" helped them in their Art. I really think it would have helped them much more if the orchestra had played the other one, "O, Promise Me." But considering that the actors were all Chinese, it might have been still better if two of the orchestra, say the piano and the first violin, had played "O, That We Two Were Maying," the second violin and the flute had played "O, Promise Me," and the cello and cornet had performed "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," all at the same time.

Anyhow, to my notion, this would have sounded much more Chinese.

hands, shook them feebly, and turned away.

To make the story good he should have died then and there. But I think it is still pretty good, even though he lingered several weeks.

As for "Stepping Stones," I suppose there have been better musical comedies. It is so easy to forget this particular form of entertainment. But I'm risking the assertion that there never has been a more generally satisfying musical comedy entertainment staged in my neighborhood—not, at least, since Hector's mother went in search of a basket bayette.

Father Fred is still the body and the inspiration of the show, full of original tricks and comic. He has learned nothing new for this particular season—nothing, at least, to take the place of his lariat throwing, tightrope walking, bareback riding, bullwhip cracking, rifle shooting series of stunts. He fastens his shoes to a horizontal bar and does an inverted giant swing or two, and he is as lively if not as agile as ever. But Fred's around fifty, and you can't blame him for not going in much for new stunts.

The company is huge and competent. Ray Hoyer, Evelyn Herbert, Oscar Ragland, and John Lambert doing the singing. George Hermann, an amazing contortionist, bringing his skeleton specialty over from the Hippodrome, and the Tiller Sunshine girls doing a series of clever dances. Jerome Kern wrote the score, which includes a favorite ballad, "Once in a Blue Moon," and another called "In Love With Love." Anne Caldwell and R. H. Burnside wrote the book and lyrics, and Burnside did the staging.

Just after the first act ended, the manager, C. B. Dillingham, sent the electrician around to the front of the Globe with incandescent letters spelling out Dorothy's name. So she has the honor of being featured on Broadway her first season out. If that does not spoil her she should enjoy a rare and wonderful future.

Ethel's Play Not So Good.

Only such personal popularity as Ethel Barrymore commands is likely to save a new Zoe Akins comedy called "A Royal Fandango," with which the actress began her season at the Plymouth theater Monday night.

It is a hollow and insincere attempt at spoofing the romantic play in which an eccentric princess of Plotswitch, given to occasional attacks of love madness, looks upon a strong young matador at Bairrits and calls him to her hotel.

There she discovers him to be strong because he is pure. He has devoted his life to the bulls and they, curiously, have reciprocated by instilling in him a certain bovine trustfulness that is at least naive. So innocent is he, and so flurried at the lightest touch of the princess' hand, that he swoons at her foot. This, she concludes, certainly is love.

Dismissing her matador later she hears of him as one dying of love in his Spanish mountains and determines to go to him. Packing the royal baggage she departs, her patient husband, who has nursed her through similar attacks, bidding her godspeed but promising to fly after.

In Spain she discovers the Lullfighter's friends crudely planning to make her a widow. She takes from them the bomb they would throw at the prince and it is hurled into an adjoining canon. There it explodes and blows up what is left of the play. Then she flies home, happily cured of her matadoritis.

Miss Ethel's clothes are attractive and her smile as luminous as usual, and her company includes a young Argentine, Joseph Alessandro, who plays the matador, and Cyril Ketchtley.

Cissie Loftus Comes Back.

There was an exciting time at the Palace theater Monday afternoon. Cissie Loftus came back. She had been away a long time, and when she left she was a sick girl, the prey of weaknesses in which drugs and liquor figured. These had put a quietus upon her professional career and undermined her health.

But there have been years of abstinence since then, and something, if not all, of her old command of as fine a mimetic genius as ever blossomed on the stage has returned to her. Monday's house was crowded with actors and sympathetic friends, but they only led the cheering. The regular patrons took it up and there was an ovation, during which a wagon load of flowers was passed and thrown over the footlights. Finally, Cissie, visibly affected, was able to start her impersonations, which include recent studies of Jean Eagles, Irene Franklin, Mrs. Fiske, and Alice Delysia.

"Spring Cleaning" Well Done.

If you were giving a dinner party for ten of your friends, and your husband asked that an extra place be laid for a guest of his, and then appeared with a frowsy little street walker, what, it is reasonable to wonder, would you do?

Frederick Lonsdale has written a play which turns out to be a social comedy constructed on a framework of rather tense sociological drama and called "Spring Cleaning," in which this is the crucial situation.

It is the husband's idea, as he explains, to introduce a professional to a company of amateurs. From which you may properly gather that he did not have much use for his wife's friends. He considered them, as a matter of fact, a set of degenerates, and we suspect he was not far wrong. Not in the author's mind, at least. They were a drinking, kissing, flirting, loose moraled lot. And he wished to eject them into the air to protect his growing daughters.

The wife, outraged beyond her strength, immediately threatens to leave her husband and fly to one of those professional home wreckers who specialize in restless wives in the drama, leaving her children briefly to their governess in the hope that later the court will restore them to her.

But at this point Mr. Lonsdale develops his comedy theme, reveals the practiced seducer as a philosopher of parts grown suddenly honorable. Given a chance to elope with the angry wife, he is willing to do whatever is for the best—but— And so the play ends, with understandings and reconciliations—and with the degenerates still taking the air.

It is splendidly acted, particularly by Arthur Byron, the husband; Violet Heming, the wife; A. E. Matthews, the Englishman of "Bulldog Drummond"; the social serpent and Estelle Winwood, the girl from the pavements.

Vital, Gripping, and Ugly.

It must sound incredible to you, but it is none the less a fact, that there are twenty or thirty plays ready for a hearing whose owners are so eager to put them through the Broadway test that they are offering and paying as high as $4,000 a week rental for the four walls of a playhouse. And still there are not enough to go around.

Which situation has forced a stanch little drama called "White Cargo" down into the Greenwich Village theater. This one, written by Leon Gordon, an English actor, is as real as "Rain," if less colorful. Vital and gripping and ugly, but never cheaply sensational.

It is the story of white men consigned to the rubber plantations on the west coast of Africa. They arrive there all enthusiasm for their four year stretch. They are going to revel in the shooting, and do a lot of reading, and study the friendly natives.

And they wind up, the big majority of them, by taking to liquor or the native women, and usually to both, to relieve the awful tension of their homesickness. And finally they either stay on, hopelessly, or are carried down to the river boats and shipped home, so much "white cargo."

Through three tense periods the auditor follows one chap who had tried and failed and has grown cynical and bitter, and another who tries and fends off failure by marrying a half caste and then realizes his mistake. The girl poisons him in the end, or tries to, and is forced to take a dose of her own medicine by way of reprisal.

A gripping thing, but, as said, none too pretty. It is quite wonderfully acted, too, by A. E. Anson, Conway Wingfield, Richard Stevenson and Annette Margules, the latter playing a colored woman whose father had been French, which makes her considerable temptress. In the revealment of these qualities Miss Margules may have left much to the imagination, but at the moment we cannot recall what it was.

"Best People" a Neat Lesson in Stagecraft

n Pittsburgh and Cleveland, with Mr. ichman, Miss Florence Johns, and George Graham in the important rôles hey are now still playing.

Well, no matter; though it makes one wonder about the showmen's instinct—o doubt harmless enough—to indulge at times in trivial and futile misrepresentation. Perhaps it is a relic of the days when every one you saw had "appeared before all the crowned heads of Europe."

Two Books Arrive.

Books without end have been written about the drama, most of them pondorous, some of them precious, but few, arrgely, with much of the joyousness or straightforward appreciation that seem to go with the everyday things of the theater.

It is refreshing, therefore, to have two books which emphasize the latter qualities reach one's desk on the same day. The joyousness is in Ashton Stevens' "Actorviews," newly off the press of Covici-McGee in Chicago. The straightforward appreciation is in Burns Mantle's "The Best Plays of 1922-'23," just published by Small, Maynard & Co., of Boston.

Stevens' volume is a record of happy rambles among the players, illuminating as much the writer as the folk written about. Having his own conception of what an interview should be, he sets down intimate chats with John Drew, the Barrymores, Ditrichstein, Elsie Ferguson, Laurette Taylor, Mrs. Fiske, and many more, not so much evolving sentient portraits therefrom as letting them evolve themselves. And the secrets they sometimes tell!

"I have written 500 interviews," he says on a fly leaf, "and have been surprised in 400 of them. I ought to be able to, but I can't—to save me I can't —tell you why certain people tell me certain things. . . . There are times when I should like to be less of a reporter and more of a psychologue."

Sprightly drawings by Gene Markey sprinkle the book. I wish I had room to reproduce some of them.

Mantle's selection of "best plays" is familiar to you, since he revealed his choice in a letter to THE TRIBUNE last summer. Here they are, printed in full, from "Rain" to "Mary the 3d," together with casts and synopses of the other plays produced in New York, reviews of the season in New York and Chicago, statistical and biographical summaries, a necrology, and other matters of interest. Its careful compilation makes the book a valuable work of reference; the sane judgment and lack of "highbrowism" with which the task was approached make it a sane and cheerful thing to read.

The New Plays

First Aid for First Nighters on Attractions Scheduled for the Coming Weeks in the Theaters.

OPENING TONIGHT.

"Children of the Moon" (Playhouse)—A drama by Martin Flavin, Chicagoan, having to do with conflicting wills and the shadow power of suggestion, which in this instance drives a girl into lunacy. Miss Harriette Crosman heads a cast which includes Beatrice Terry, Elise Bartlett, and Grant Stewart.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"In Love with Love" (La Salle)—Another of those humorously romantic trifles by Vincent Lawrence, who wrote "Two Fellows and a Girl." Miss Lynn Fontanne, famous for her "Dulcy," has the principal rôle; others in the company are Ralph Morgan, Robert Strange, Marjery Card, Edward Donnelly, and Donald Foster.

OPENING NEXT WEEK.

"A King for a Day" (Cort, Nov. 25)—A new comedy by Caesar Dunn, with Gregory Kelly impersonating the character of chief importance.

"Abie's Irish Rose" (Studebaker, Nov. 25)—Anne Nichols' astonishingly popular comedy, booked into town in defiance of the powers that be, and a little timorous about it.

"Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" (Powers', Nov. 26)—Mrs. Fiske, newly under Belasco auspices, in a sprightly English comedy by St. John Ervine.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"Little Nelly Kelly" (Cohan's Grand, Dec. 2)—More of Mr. Cohan's tuneful exercises, presided over by the delightful Miss Elizabeth Hines.

"The Merchant of Venice" (Illinois, Dec. 2)—David Warfield as Shylock, with Miss Mary Servoss as Portia, in a notable production by David Belasco.

"Chauve Souris" (Garrick, Dec. 16)—Nikita Balieff and his entertainers from Russia, obscure once, but famous now the world over.

"Kiki" (Powers', Dec. 24)—Miss Lenore Ulric, acting vividly in Andre Picard's comedy of a temperamental Parisienne.

"The Ziegfeld Follies" (Colonial, Dec. 24)—The 1922 edition, which ran so long in New York that it is reaching us just a year behind its schedule.

Notes of the Theaters

Something new impends at the Central. It may, as indicated hitherto, be Chic Sale with the comedy called "Common Sense," which he has been trying out in Cleveland, or it may be "The Wasp," another mystery melodrama by Thomas F. Fallon, who wrote "The Last Warning." Efforts are being made to bring one or another of the plays to Van Buren street next week.

The long-awaited transcontinental march of the Duncan Sisters with their musical version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is to have Chicago as its first main objective. This show, yclept "Topsy and Eva," and enormously successful in California, will come to town on Dec. 30, probably finding refuge at the Selwyn. It is now decreed that "The Fool," shall depart on Dec. 29.

A curious expedient was adopted by the management of "Children of the Moon" in bringing the play to Chicago. Preferring a Sunday night here to a Saturday night in New York, the company closed there after its performance on Friday, and entrained forthwith for the west. The Playhouse therefore will have its first performance of the drama tonight instead of tomorrow.

Eugene Walter, preparing to invade the field of production, has written a new play, "Thieves in Clover," which will be his initial venture.

A new revue, "Rainbo Dreams," will be revealed tomorrow night at the Rainbo Room on the north side.

After a nerve-racking period of uncertainty, Jules Eckert Goodman's "Chains" has settled down for a long run in New York, and, for the first time, the name of Miss Helen Gahagan, its chief player there, as in Chicago, has gone up in the electric lights.

Miss Eleanor Painter has begun and quickly ended rehearsals in something new, called "Primrose." The play was in preparation for four days and then was abandoned. So it goes in the theater.

"The Business Widow," a comedy adapted from a foreign source by Gladys Unger, is the play to which Leo Ditrichstein will devote himself, now that he has shelved his revival of "The Judge of Zalamea." Miss Lola Fisher and Miss Marjorie Wood will help him act it.

"The Deep Tangled Wildwood," recently a tenant of the Blackstone, closed in New York last night after an existence there of two weeks.

A Good Play with a Bad Title—

"Jealous Husbands"

You'll enjoy every minute of this picture. It has little to do with "jealous husbands"—and everything to do with mother love in modern society. It is rich in boy humor inspired by two clever youngsters—there are moments of melodrama and occasional excitement—and through it all a mother's heart yearns for her stolen boy.

It's a remarkable picture— that's why we booked it.

Here's a remarkable production we booked in spite of its title—not because of it—

"Jealous Husbands"

The title is a misnomer. No green-eyed monsters glare you out of countenance. Instead, you witness a homey story of human appeal—a story of intense mother love in modern society—a wholesome, happy and sometimes harrowing story involving mischievous boys at play and in occasional danger.

There's humor, pathos and suspense and the production is well done. That's why we booked it.

...ed to have the scenery set up and begin his preparations for a performance. But something always happened to defer matters, and it was inevitably postponed until the next year. Gennarini died with this as one of his unfinished plans.

The work classifies customarily in the French repertoire, but it will be sung in Italian here. Rosa Raisa and Giulio Crimi are billed in the cast, also Cesare Formichi, Florence Macbeth, Edouard Cotreuil, and a large number of others. Meyerbeer tried to bring the whole world into this operatic spectacle, and he called for a long cast to do it. Ever since last summer Adolph Bolm has been at work on the ballet which he and Anna Ladmila will lead. The performance will be conducted by Ettore Panizza.

Of Chaliapin and Galli-Curci.

It is not such good news to learn that with the "Boris Godunoff" performance tomorrow night Feodor Chaliapin will finish the first part of his Chicago engagement and go away from here. There is mitigation in the fact that he will be back before the season is over for a few more appearances. Considerable desire has been expressed to hear him in other roles when he returns, Mephistopheles in Gounod's "Faust" and Don Basilio in "The Barber of Seville," to name a pair. Those who have heard him do these in other opera houses insist he is as mighty in them as he is in the Boito "Mefistofele" and the Mussorgsky "Boris."

In fact, he is announced to do the Gounod opera at the Metropolitan. One has a natural and pardonable desire to see the Civic Opera company keep as nearly up to date as, say, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which is seldom or never behind the other orchestras of the country in giving its patrons a chance to hear performances acclaimed elsewhere.

In the meantime there will be visits by stars of the opera company who just now are concertizing. Mary Garden, Tito Schipa, and Amelita Galli-Curci, the last named at present engaged in the celebrated telegraphic long distance case of "Lakmé" vs. "Dinorah," or her own inclinations against those of the company.

"Dinorah" is on the list of her engagements here, but an important reason for its not being her first appearance has just been divulged. It is that a necessary member of the cast in the first act is the goat, Bella. The old Bella, who used to go through her part with great dignity and aplomb, is dead, and a new one is in process of training. The process, however, is difficult, and the present incumbent gives way to fits of what can only be described as artistic temperament. Not until this role has been thoroughly and smoothly rehearsed will it be safe to announce the performance. At least, so they say.

With the Melody Makers.

One of the most famous of the old school pianists, Moris Rosenthal, has come back from Europe and will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week. It has been seventeen years since he was last heard here, and his American history is even older, since he appeared as soloist with the orchestra eight years before that. He will play the Chopin Concerto in E minor. For the orchestral part of the program Mr. Stock has scheduled two symphonies, Beethoven's fourth, and Scriabin's fourth, the latter otherwise known as "The Divine Poem."

Several of the recitals of this week have points of interest that may in a way be extra-musical but are none the less potent. Agnes Lapham is going to do with the piano this afternoon what Mr. Stock has for several seasons done with the symphony orchestra; that is, devise and present a program for the special use, benefit, and enjoyment of children. She has selected a list of music with a Mozart sonata and a Beethoven rondo as the

Elsa Fern MacBurney and Leola Turner, both sopranos, will appear on Thursday night in what is termed a costume recital. The inference from the program is that they will singly and jointly don the garb and sing the songs of various lands and eras. French, Bohemian, gypsy, Japanese, and colonial works are listed.

The noon concert by the Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra at the house of the same name today will be entirely of Russian compositions. Conductor Nathaniel Finston announces works by Glinka, Ippolitoff-Ivanoff, Rimsky-Korsakoff, and three by Tschaikowsky. Victor Young, the violin soloist, will play the Karlowicz Concerto.

Others of the day's events concern a recital by Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, at Orchestra hall of songs of the ancients, lieder, spirituals, songs of the sea, and a group not otherwise classified; also one by Anna Case, soprano, at the Studebaker, of other ancients, other German works, French, and songs in English.

Some remarks in this column a week ago regarding the engagement of the Wagnerian Opera company have been corrected by an official of the organization in New York, who says that, so far from running behind on the engagement, the company's profits in Chicago were "undoubtedly" more than $15,000.

Beg your pardon. No one can rejoice more sincerely than this department to see an opera company move through a season on its own financial steam, especially one of as high an artistic average as this. The aforesaid remarks arose from a seemingly authentic calculation from other sources that a capacity business for the entire fortnight would be necessary to see the company safely through its series here. That it was not always a capacity business, that at times it was far from a capacity business, is not to be denied; it is, therefore, good to hear that the calculation was wrong.

A new patriotic song, "Flag of America," is just off the press and ready for distribution. The entire work, words and music, is by Dr. Alfred Beirly of Chicago, who explains that the words of "The Star Spangled Banner" are difficult to hold in the memory and the melody of the same anthem makes too much of a demand on the average voice. In both contentions he is correct, also in his claim that the lyric and melody of his work are of simpler character. They are eminently singable.

scenes from the golden west," and hand out some back drops—and you'd be surprised at the mail that comes into this office.

Is the public ON? I'll say it is—and—needing a short last line may one be permitted to remark that, in every way

It is getting ONNER every day!

Voice of the Fan

Accepted.

Dear Miss Tinée: If you are going to continue publishing poems, I would like to offer for publication my poem, dedicated to Wallace Reid, which I believe is as good as the one you published last Sunday. DOROTHY.

WALLIE'S HANDS.

Artist's hands
Whose tapered fingers
Touched keys caressingly,
Drew liquid music from a violin,
And with a pen drew forth
The music from thy heart.

Kindly hands
Whose friendly touch
Cheered lagging comrades;
That freely gave when it could ill be spared;
Forever ready with applause
For earnest fellow workers.

Phantom hands
Whose ghostly fingers
Fling to us the torch
To e'er be lit with greatest memory—
O, hands we lov'd, and hope to clasp
Some time beyond the stars!"

Paging the Plot.

Dear Miss Tinée: After viewing "The Merry Go Round" I am convinced that it pays to advertise. I wonder why the producers spent so much money on a story with so little plot. I don't have to pay genuine dough to see a movie of a man taking his bawth, which seemed to take up several hundred feet of fillum in this picture. Mr. Kerry's bawth had absolutely nothing to do with the plot as far as I could see. Perhaps it did, and I missed the point.

The way the heroine's father cursed the hero, which happened to be quite often, aroused me with expectation until the last fade out. His cussing seemed superfluous, but, as it was emphasized so much, you can't blame me for expecting something which didn't happen.

The story to me seemed to be much ado about nothing. The sets were beautiful and not at all hard on the eyes, and the acting was pretty good, too. But the story, Mae—ouch!

ELEANOR.

What a Joke!

Dear Miss Tinée: What a joke it is to have the producers say that the stars' salaries must be reduced and the prices of admission must be advanced by the exhibitors. The fault of the situation lies wholly with the producers. They have outbid each other in salaries to the stars and directors, paying them in most cases unreasonable prices, and they let the directors have full sway in spending vast sums on lavish scenes where footage in the picture is only a minor incident.

If by chance they accidentally make a super giant special, they grab it off of the regular program and run it in their own leased theater at a $2 top price. They get all the big money out of it—instead of letting their customers—the exhibitors—get in on it, and make the dear public the goat again. They don't want the exhibitor to get an even break, but want to keep him boosting the admission prices, and he falls for it and advances his prices. It sure is gravy for the producers. Up goes the prices of pictures again to the exhibitor.

But the exhibitors are waking up, and forming combinations now of their own, and, how the producers do hate these combinations. Its the only salvation, and if the public will lay off of the theater that advances admission prices, you will soon see the producers give the exhibitor a square deal and the exhibitor has to give the public a square deal, for instead of the producers closing their studios for ten weeks they will have to close them permanently. EXHIBITOR.

Monday — "Boris Godunoff," by Mussorgsky, with Feodor Chaliapin, Cyrena Van Gordon, Lamont, Tamara Stekiewicz, Margery Maxwell, and many others; conductor, Giorgio Polacco.

Tuesday—"Faust" by Gounod, with Fernand Anseau, Edith Mason, Georges Baklanoff, Maria Claessens, Irene Pavloska, and Desiré Defrere; conductor, Polacco.

Wednesday—"The Jewess," by Halevy, with Rosa Raisa, Florence Macbeth, Charles Marshall, Lazzari, Defrere, and Angelo Minghetti; conductor, Ettore Panizza.

Thursday—"Romeo and Juliet," by Gounod, with Charles Hackett, Mason Alfredo Gandolfi, Defrere, Pavloska, Beck, and Edouard Cotreuil; Adolph Bolm and ballet; conductor, Polacco.

Friday—"L'Africaine," by Meyerbeer, first time, with Raisa, Macbeth, Kathryn Browne, Giulio Crimi, Cesare Formichi, Kipnis, Cotreuil, Beck, and others; Bolm, Anna Ludmila, and ballet; conductor, Panizza.

Saturday at 2—"Siegfried," same cast as today.

Saturday at 8—"Mefistofele," by Boito, with Lazzari, Mason, Minghetti, Claessens, Sharlow, and others; conductor, Polacco.

Music Notes

In examining "Impressions of Europe," by Philo A. Otis, one is reminded all over again that its author is one of the distinguished veterans of nearly the whole of Chicago's musical life. The Apollo Musical club and the First Presbyterian church counted his efforts among their earliest contributions to music; from the beginning he was an active and self-sacrificing official of the Orchestral association—he is still its secretary; a long list of music bears his name as composer.

The present book does not deal with European impressions of today, but of a half century ago. It is the reconstruction of a journal kept with much accurate and picturesque detail in the years 1873 and 1874. Mr. Otis tells of the lack of what one now considers the ordinary conveniences of travel; of a ship of 2,600 tons; of the single hotel in Europe that had a "lift"; of another that was noted for having a central heating system; but he also has some high spots in his recollections. Among them are Patti and Faure in Mozart's "Don Giovanni," with Sir Michael Costa conducting; Johann Strauss conducting his own waltzes at Vienna; and the first performance of Verdi's "Manzoni Requiem" in Paris, under the baton of the composer.

The concert of new music by the League of Composers in New York the other night seems to have moved the critics of that city to open derision. Ernest Bloch introduced a quintet for piano and strings, with some experimental quarter tones in it, which apparently created the impression among several of those who wrote about it that the strings were sometimes playing off pitch. Another offering was a set of three short pieces for unaccompanied clarinet by Igor Stravinsky. One reviewer called them solemn fiddlesticks, and another stated that he gathered from their musical context that they depicted the girlhood, ruin, and eventual insanity and death of that interesting instrument.

Meanwhile the Society for the Publication of American Music, which goes in for chamber compositions, sends word of the receipt of forty works, all under assumed names, and of a new period for the receipt of others, to close on Oct. 15, 1924. The submitted works run all the way from seven sonatas for piano and violin to one composition for voice, quartet of women's voices, flute, harp, three violins, and viola. The advisory committee, which examines and recommends, consists of Georges Barrere, Harold Bauer, Adolfi Betti, George W. Chadwick, Chalmers Clifton, Lawrence Gilman, Rubin Goldmark, Hugo Kortschak, Frederick Stock, Deems Taylor, and Emerson Whithorne. John Alden Carpenter of Chicago is president, but the society's headquarters address is 185 Madison avenue, New York.

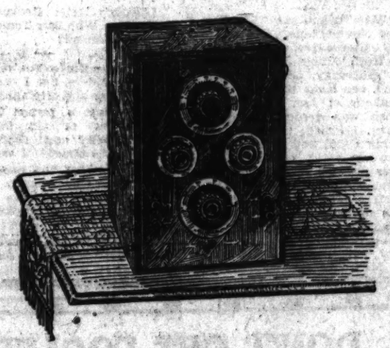
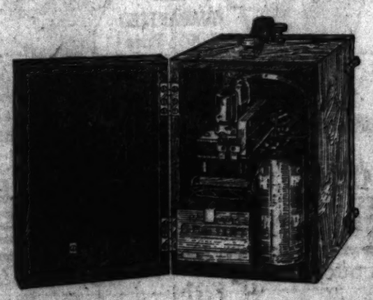
C&W

New Town and Country Receiver
By Dr. Fulton Cutting and Mr. Bowden Washington





At last, a successful all-purpose receiver. Out of the years of experience of Dr. Cutting and Mr. Washington has come this "Town and Country" model—a portable that you can carry with you when and where you wish—yet possessing every feature of C&W excellence as a radio set for your home.

In your home, without the carrying handle, "Town and Country" is a handsome 2-tube, double circuit cabinet set, highly selective, range up to 1200 miles, capable of operating a loud speaker for local or near-by stations.

and then, at a turn of the switch—

it becomes a 2-tube, single circuit portable set—ready to operate on any sort of temporary antennae—a wire around the top of your car—stretched along a tent top—or across the room in the home of a friend.

It's the complete all-purpose set—no compromise. Self contained—uses dry batteries and they're in the cabinet. LARGE dry batteries that last. It's complete with Brandes Head-set—ready for antennae and ground wires when you get it—ready to give you "what's in the air." Price, $97.50. See it at one of our dealers listed below—or write for literature.

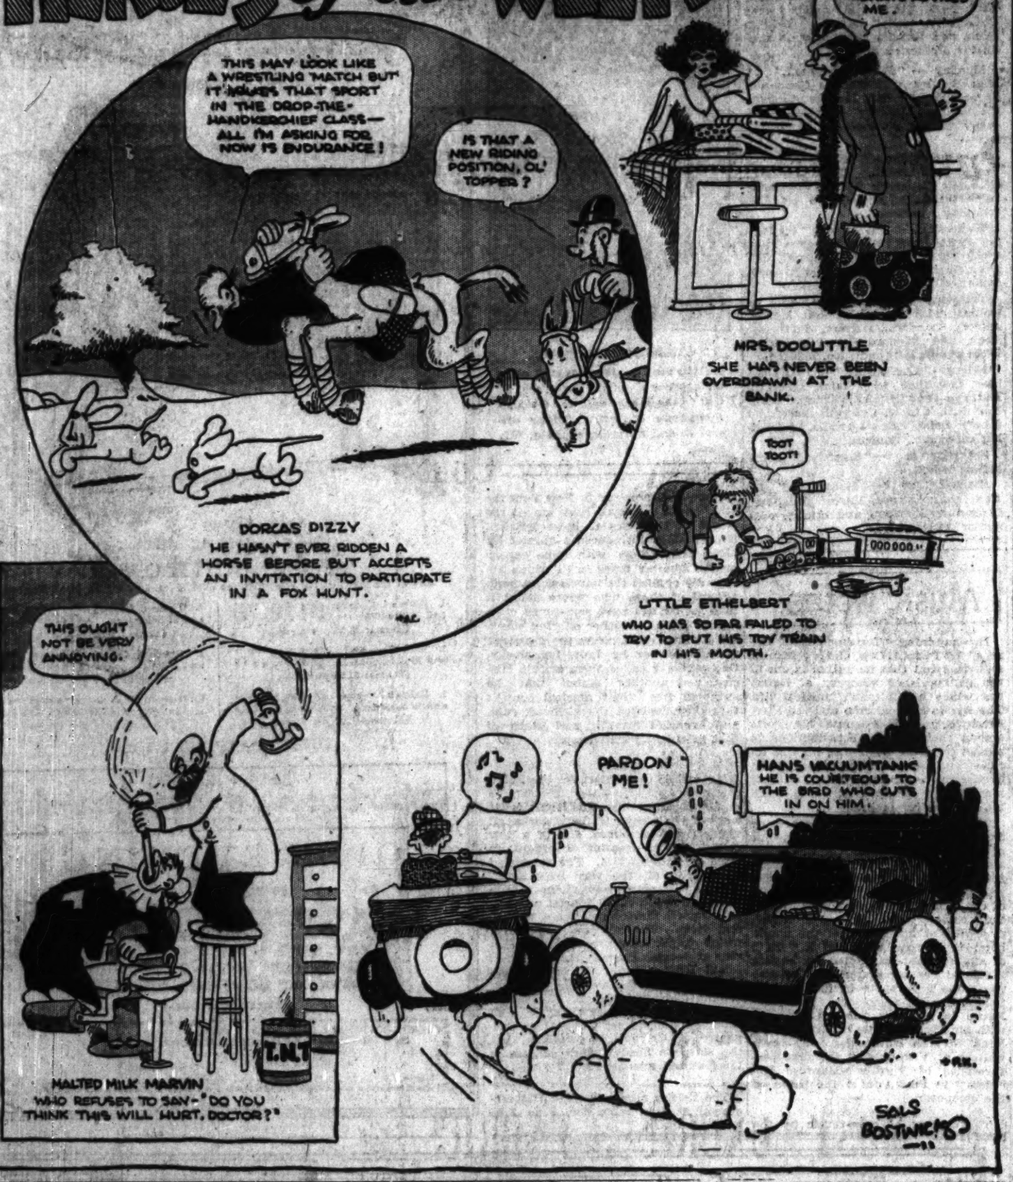
HEROES of the WEEK



Mary Is Offered an Introduction to Friend Doug shingle bob that won back her hubby. What do you think?

A galaxy of movie celebrities will entertain parties of friends at the Montmartre cafe this week to witness the newsboys' boxing contests for the benefit of the newsies' Thanksgiving dinner fund.

Among those giving ringside parties where dancing, music, and boxing will blend are James Horne, Cleo Ridgeley, Louise Lorraine, Vola Vale, Finis Fox, Mabel Julienne Scott, Ralph and Vera Lewis, George O'Hara, Mack Sennett, and others.

Ed Wynn is here in "The Perfect Fool," and to see the stars that twinkle nightly in the audiences you would never believe a slump had hit Hollywood.

The first night found the following greeting the comedian: Lew Cody, John Bowers, Wanda Hawley, Robert Agnew, Douglas MacLean, Miss Dupont, Jack Holt, Walter Hiers, Katherine McGuire, Viola Dana, Courtney Foote, Vera Lewis, and Owen Moore.

Mrs. Sessue Hayawaka—Tsuru Aoki—is in Hollywood arranging to dispose of their property. She says Sessue is under contract for the next two years to make pictures in London. He recently completed the second of two pictures in Paris. He will make two pictures for Stoll Films, Ltd., and each picture will take a year to produce. He will return to the United States as soon as he can and will be starred in a stage production. The Hayawaka home in Hollywood is one of the showplaces of southern California.

KICK KORNER FOR MOVIE FANS

Its Object—Objection.

Dear Mae Tinée: The movie going public has seen many foolish things, but I have yet to see anything more absurd than that picture of Charlie Chaplin published in THE TRIBUNE. I take off my hat (a mighty nice one, too) to him if he can play a violin left handed or right handed or whatever you think it is. He's expert at slinging custard pies, but he's superhuman if he can fiddle like that. Why, I'm surprised at you, Mae. You ought to know better. Anyway, you do now. It's enough to make Nero turn over in his grave. You may call this "Much Ado Over Nothing." I don't.

TILLIE.

Dear Miss Tinée: Regarding "Woman Proof." Beg to differ—never was so bored. Know you are a great admirer of Mr. Meighan; I am, too, but am so tired of seeing him in the line of shows in which he is cast. If you see one show, you have seen them all—you know just what Thos. will do—how he will walk—how he will pack a suitcase—how he will make love—how many different suits he will wear—always the son of a wealthy man.

And Miss Lee—you know how she will roll her eyes—how she looks when she telephones her friends—and—by the way—I think both she and Thomas are getting posey. There isn't any young man or woman, of average intelligence, who if dolled up couldn't pose around in the shows that are being offered.

George Ade is all right in his way, but let him produce a honest to goodness story, not the same line of drivel all the time. No wonder the movie producers are closing up shop—they had better all close up if they cannot offer more clever acting than we are being favored with these days. The leading men are nothing but sissies, and the girls nothing but manikins wearing the latest thing in gowns. It is a pleasure to go to a movie show and see a real actor—a finished one—like Holbrook Blinn, for instance, or John Barrymore. The others don't try to improve, they are content to go along with a fat salary and just walk through a picture all dolled up—nobody home.

MISS BORED.

[Editor's Note—Perfect right to be bored. Sorry you were. Better luck next time. G'bye.]

Dear Mae Tinée: I saw "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." An immense picture! Characters all well acted. Patsy Ruth Miller looks beautiful, dances gracefully, acts well, yet, as you said, she lacks the divine spark. The makeup of Lon Chaney as the hunchback was overdone and quite unnecessary. He made the hunchback a disgusting sight, and in that way he lost the sympathy of the audience. Whoever directed that picture should have known better than to have allowed Mr. Chaney to make his facial features so disgusting. When he was on the screen I turned my head away.

ELLA.

Dear Mae Tinée: Today I saw the picture called "A Man Sees Tomorrow." Meighan as a salesman and kindred rôles is all very well, but as English home secretary in a tall hat or as viceroy of India, slouching in a chair of state, he is a scream.

OLD TIMER.

[Editor's Note: Reckon you mean "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow" don't you, Old Timer?]

Dear Mae Tinée: You've never heard from me before, but I certainly enjoy your humor and originality.

Why must a person like Corinne Griffith play in such trash as "Six days"? Why must there always be such stories filmed? I wonder.

It seems that the people of today want to be embarrassed. Is that so? Elinor Glyn must have quite a distorted brain to write such stuff. Them's my sentiments.

I hope some one answers this, and also hope this causes a discussion.

Varied Activities of Women.

Beginning fifteen years ago as a stenographer, Mrs. Emma S. Rodell has gradually climbed the business ladder until today she is assistant secretary of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad.

In the rice fields of Japan the women work side by side with the men, standing all day up to their knees in mud, with dresses tucked up and lower limbs encased in tight fitting blue trousers.

When her immense farm, located near Johannesburg, South Africa, was devasted by floods Mrs. Ida Francis successfully led her 600 head of cattle a distance of 400 miles over a lion infested desert.

Dr. Mabel Elliott of Benton Harbor, Mich., has returned to this country after service with the Near East relief, bringing with her three Greek decorations for her work among the refugees in that country.

Mrs. Anna D. Jones of Kansas City is probably the only woman customs broker in the country.

The silver jubilee and birthday of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands was celebrated recently in every city, town, and hamlet in the land of dikes and windmills.

In Egypt the ordinary marriage takes place at an early age. Many of the brides are little more than 10 years of age, and few have passed 15 on their wedding days.

Since the war practically every woman in Russia has learned to work. Those who once wore jewels and furs are now grateful for a few rags to protect themselves from the cold.

Forty widows of veterans of the war of 1812 are still drawing pensions from the United States government.

It is interesting to note that women are recognized more frequently in the banking business throughout the west than in the east.

Miss Nina Belle Hurst is the first woman umpire to be admitted to the staff of the Southern California Baseball Managers' association.

Sale on the 7th Floor

We held a dress sale at $5 in the Basement—the space was too small; we "moved" the next one to the Fourth Floor and with the reputation of our former sale having spread throughout the city we were "jammed" in the first hour. Now, with values equally as great and all Chicago talking about Leiter's $5 sales, we expect to establish another record tomorrow. We are prepared.

Dresses You Will Want — Stylish, Pretty Models

A most wonderful variety to choose from; dresses embroidered and beaded in different ways, trimmed with various kinds of ornaments. Models with long or short sleeves; dresses with flounced skirts, pleated skirts, effective panels, cute pockets and leather belts. These, of course, describe only a comparatively few.

Entire North Section of 7th Floor Is Devoted to This Sale
Every Dress on the Floor—$5

Nearly double the floor space of our former sale at $5—enabling us to display more dresses at one time, to erect more "stock stations"—where depleted racks will be refilled with dresses. We anticipate thousands to take advantage of this offering—no time and labor have been spared to give the best possible service.

Make Careful Selection—All Sales Final—No Refunds or Exchanges

ART AND ARTISTS

Hazards Carpet Poor Portrait Painter's Path

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE perils of portrait painting are many. The path of the portrait painter is as liberally beset with hazards as was ever that of the far famed Pauline. The portrait painter must please himself, his subject, a host of the said subject's relatives and friends, and a critical public. Nor are those all. If the portrait is exhibited, the judgment of the critic must be taken into account. By sticking to landscape or figurative work an artist can escape two-fifths of these risks, perhaps a greater percentage, but he can escape the subject and the subject's relatives, anyway.

Notwithstanding which, portraits are painted every year. Good, bad, or indifferent, so many people each year wish to find themselves set lastingly upon canvas. Yet on how small a thing sometimes hangs a prospective portrait. The question of background prevented one man from ordering a portrait from a certain Chicago artist. The artist, when he felt the sitter's personality or atmosphere required it, set his figure against a light background.

"Ah," said the prospective client, "but my portrait is to be hung in an institute of learning, and most of the other portraits there have dark backgrounds. You seem to paint only light colored ones."

The artist gently insinuated that it was not impossible for him to produce any required depth of darkness demanded, but the man remained unimpressed, indifferent, obviously intent upon seeing another painter's work which would show a leaning toward black.

Yet, as Ralph Clarkson, one of Chicago's leading portrait painters, pointed out, a dark background is infinitely easier to paint adequately than is a light one. But on such little things, such common misconceptions of the non-painting public, do artists' commissions often depend.

In the case of Mr. Clarkson, he has recently finished a splendid portrait of Edward E. Ayer, which is to hang in all probability in the Newberry library. In this portrait Mr. Clarkson has given a light background and it exactly suits the gentle, sensitive personality of Mr. Ayer. What one best remembers after seeing the portrait is the impression of a pair of bright, warm, blue eyes, a mild, interesting face, a vague business suit of dark blue, and, framing the whole, a background of friendly, lucid, reflective color.

The portrait which makes the strongest impression upon one in the exhibition of American paintings and sculpture at the Art institute, is the stunning group of Irwin Cobb and his daughter, Elizabeth, painted by Wayman Adams. Last year a portrait of Booth Tarkington, by Wayman Adams, was one of the most strongly felt canvases in the institute show. This year the Irwin Cobb portrait supplants it.

Note, when you chance upon it, the realistic thrust forward of the cigar held between the fingers of the hand that rests upon a book. The play of color in the portrait is amazing. Notice particularly the use of red. From the purple of the humorist's rubicund countenance to the thin line of scarlet of his daughter's lips, that color is played upon, emphasizing by its use the values of the darker and lighter colors—the white of the girl's dress and the black of Mr. Cobb's coat. It is a remarkably effective canvas.

Cevilia Beaux, who won the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and its $1,500 two years ago with her lovely composition, "The Dancing Lesson," has a charming, though unrealistic, portrait in "Mrs. Drinker and Son." The color in this is pleasing, but there is too much of the sweet and the sentimental in the painting to make it ring true. A lack of steel beneath the velvet is obvious. A rather sugary romanticism makes one feel as though the artist were painting down to her public.

Being on the subject of portraits, and going for a moment to the sculpture division of the exhibit, possibly the most effective portrait group in the entire show is the beautiful panel giving a row of child heads, carved the one against the other, the five "Children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Ogle of Terre Haute," by Myra Reynolds Richards. It is an arrangement not often seen, but one strangely satisfying. Each profile differs from the next, yet a family resemblance binds them all into a definite unity. This piece of portraiture deserves great praise.

"Venus and Anadyomene," by Bryson Burroughs, in the American Paintings and Sculpture exhibition at the Art institute. This is a delicate fantasy of a picture, exquisite in detail, though almost humorous in its extravagance of refinement. It is unique and as fascinating as a broken rhyme.

Returning to the painted portraits, these are numerous. Not being strong on statistics, one dreads to enter comparisons as to the number of portraits shown this year and in previous years, but it is safe to say there have never been more portraits in one exhibition than in this at the institute, and it is open to doubt if there have been as many in former American paintings and sculpture exhibitions. A person inclined to poke and pry can, if he chooses, find in this show the fifty-seven varieties of portrait painting extant. Scarcely a twist known to the painter of portraits has been overlooked. From childhood to old age, from innocence to sophistry, the types of a generation are hung for your inspection. Portrait painting as an expression of art, with all the variety differing artists have bestowed upon it, is exemplified in an unusual and excellently comprehensive manner.

In the print rooms of the Art institute has been arranged a collection of lithographs and colored prints of ships of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Pictures of many of the ships which made history in those days are to be seen. It is an interesting exhibit, and the more so as it is a bit out of the ordinary.

At the Palette and Chisel club is a clever little exhibit of small paintings by John H. Carlsen, Ralph E. Powers, and Harry L. Engle. The pictures were painted for the pleasure of painting rather than to win prizes or big prices. The idea in presenting them is to bring about a feeling on the part of the public that possibly a small painting would make a pleasant Christmas gift—as undoubtedly is the case, only the public never happens to think about much more at Christmas than books, handkerchiefs, and the usual thing. If exhibits such as this can bring about a change of heart in the public, it will be a step in a promising direction.

The fourth annual Norwegian-American art exhibit opened last Tuesday at the Chicago Norwegian club, and will continue to Thursday next. Among the artists represented are Dorothy Vlaju Anderson, Lars Haukaness, Jonas Lie, and Sigurd Schou. The jury of awards was composed of Gerald Frank, Samuel Kennedy, and Joseph L. Hempstead.

The exhibition of paintings by Joseph Birren, which has been on view at his studio, 49 East Elm street, will be continued another week. It has proved a popular exhibit and the studio a splendid gallery in which to show it.

At the Auditorium hotel on Tuesday the Allied Arts association will give a dinner to Octave Thanet (Miss Alice French). The dinner is to be at 6:30 o'clock, and will be preceded by a reception at 6 o'clock in honor of Miss French.

An interesting evening is in prospect, Octave Thanet will give an address and Lorado Taft will speak on midland sculpture; Harry Hansen on midland literature; Wallace Bruce Amsbarry will recite some of his poems to appear in his next volume; Earl Reed will exhibit about sixty of his dune etchings, and on the walls of the banquet room will be eight large canvases by Frank V. Dudley, each dealing with the romance of the dunes.

A painting entitled "A Chinese Actor," the work of the Russian artist, Alexandre Iacovleff, has been purchased by the Art institute. In the summer of last year Mr. Iacovleff exhibited about twenty of his paintings at the institute.

The Friends of American Art have just purchased a painting by Abbott Thayer, "Portrait of a Boy." It is a painting modern in treatment, of broad and open brush work, and with quiet color tones, principally of gray and blue. This is the first work by Thayer to be acquired by the Art institute.

In the exhibition of American paintings and sculpture the following paintings have been sold: "A bit of France in Old New Orleans," by Marshall D. Smith; "Mountains of the Plains," by Frank V. Dudley; "November First in New England," by Edward B. Butler, and "Shadows of the Cliff," by Frank V. Smith of Boston.

The Fullerton hall lectures announced for this week are: Monday, at 2:30 o'clock, "Interior Decoration and House Furnishings," by Florence Spiehler; Tuesday, at 4 o'clock, "Russian Symbolistic Painters," by Mrs. Marie Lovroy Rohling; Friday at 4 o'clock, "Donatello," by Lorado Taft.

"I Know My Want Ad Will Succeed"

"I know my Want Ad will be successful if I put it in The Tribune. I have used The Tribune ever since I came to Chicago and have always had very, very good results. Last Saturday (October 13) I advertised a room. It was rented Saturday night."

Mrs. P. S. Smith, 5909 Calumet Ave., made this statement after using the Want Ad reproduced here.

CALUMET, 5909, SD—TO RENT—2 lge. lt. rms., suit. 2; ac. Wash. Pk. 6346 S. 61st court. Hose. Wentworth 0330.

Tribune Want Ads do get an amazing response. But even more amazing is the low cost of that response. Mrs. Smith rented that room at a cost of only $1.65.

NO NEED TO BE DYSPEPTIC

If Stomach Sours, Gets Gassy and Heavy, Sweeten and Lighten with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

One never grows too old to forget the delights of eating. And yet old people will sometimes play on these memories and bring on dyspeptic attacks even though the diet be simple. Every fatally should be supplied with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. From childhood to old age they daily overcome or prevent the distresses due to indigestion. They sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect as in health, they absorb the gases, they lift off the feeling of heaviness, they stop sour risings or heart burn, they actually assist in the digestion of food, and from all points of view are one of the most invaluable aids to health to be found. So, no matter what you eat, if your stomach rebels, always remember that a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will keep your stomach sweet and thus aid to prevent much of the distress that comes late in life.

English Expert Types Opinion of Byrd's Music

HAVING heard a concert of William Byrd's music, vocal and instrumental, as a part of the tercentenary observances, the critic of the London Times observes that he knows nothing of the audience's verdict except such as might be gathered from hearty applause. His own impression was this: "That Byrd, or any one of that eminence, takes a great deal of knowing—and Dr. Fellowes had hinted as much that morning in a lecture—and that the fine line which distinguishes the great from the less great is particularly difficult to draw in music which is no longer in the air. Our forefathers were good enough to make for us the necessary distinctions between Gluck, Piccinni, Paisiello, Pleyel, the Webers and Mozart; and though Morley and others have left us their testimony about Byrd, this revival puts the question to us afresh. We hear in his music a sweep of melody, an ingenuity of part writing, a mastery of contrasted texture, and a fitness for its purpose which are signs of greatness." And the six part fantasia for strings is "an interesting relic of the period when string style had yet to be found out."

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Great artists of the New Hall of Fame are on Brunswick Double-Faced, Gold Label Records

You wish to hear the incomparable art of Josef Hofmann; the genius of Huberman; the inspiring interpretations of Chamlee, Easton, Dux, Strauss, Bohnen, Onegin, Lauri-Volpi—these and other great artists of the present day to whom the world of musical art is paying homage!

All record for Brunswick—exclusively.

The reason

By means of advanced methods of recording and of reproduction, Brunswick has brought phonographic music into the realms of higher musical expression.

The Brunswick Method of Recording attains a record superlatively clear—as unerringly faithful in portraying music as the brush of a master in portraying life on canvas.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction—embodying the internationally accepted Ultona and the Oval Tone Amplifier of moulded wood—brings out tonal beauties in amazing contrast to phonographic music as you now know it.

The instrument of today

With the unqualified endorsement of great artists of this generation, as best fitted to perpetuate their triumphs to posterity, Brunswick reflects the musical tendency of the day.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

"First" Churches Near Ninetieth Anniversaries

By The Rev. W. B. Norton.

TWO Chicago churches will begin next Sunday the celebration of their ninetieth anniversaries—the First Presbyterian church, now located at 41st street and Grand boulevard, and the First Baptist church, 50th street, between Drexel boulevard and Ellis avenue.

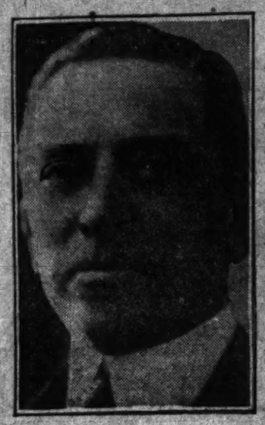
The First Presbyterian church will give a spectacular historical exhibition of the old days on Monday afternoon, Nov. 26, when the overland Concord stage coach, now owned by the American Railway Express company, with Laidlaw, a former stage driver, on the box, will make a trip from downtown to the church, arriving at 3 p. m. On Tuesday evening, Nov. 27, an historical banquet will be served at the City club, with the mayor and Mrs. Dever as guests and Will H. Hays as chief speaker. The church has set as a goal ninety new members by Dec. 2 and $90,000 to be added to the endowment fund.

The First Baptist church will signalize its ninetieth anniversary by the laying of the corner stone of a new $100,000 community house at 4 p. m. next Sunday. On Monday evening, Nov. 26, there will be a men's rally, with the Rev. Austin K. De Blois, pastor of the First Baptist church, Boston, and formerly pastor of the First Baptist church, Chicago, as the speaker. Dr. De Blois also will preach next Sunday. Tuesday evening will be historical night. Former members of the church are requested to communicate with the pastor, the Rev. Perry J. Stackhouse, and attend the reunions.

A mission for men will begin this evening at St. Jarlath's Catholic church, Jackson boulevard and Paulina street, conducted by the Rev. William Raymond Lawler, O. P., superior of the Dominican missions, and the Rev. James C. Timony, O. P. The mission for women will close today at 2 p. m. The men's mission will be of special interest to the men of the Holy Name society of Chicago.

The Rev. R. A. Waite of the International Sunday School council will address a father and son meeting at 7:45 tonight in the Epworth Methodist Episcopal church, Kenmore and Berwyn avenues. Dr. H. V. Holt, the pastor, will speak at 11 a. m. on "Faith of Our Sons."

Col. A. V. Smith, state's attorney of Lake county, will speak on "Law Enforcement" at the meeting of the Methodist ministers in the Chicago temple, third floor, tomorrow morning.



THE REV. HENRY HEPBURN, D. D. [Mentfort photo.]

Dr. Hepburn is pastor of the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, Sheridan road and Broadway, near Montrose avenue, which will dedicate today its completed auditorium, making a church plant with a valuation of over $600,000. Dr. Hepburn became pastor in 1909, when the church organization was four years old, with 170 on the roll of members and with less than 100 in the Sunday school. The church now has 1,685 members and over 1,700 in the Sunday school, the second largest annual average of attendance of any Sunday school in Chicago of any denomination. The new auditorium seats 1,600. Dr. Hepburn came to Buena from the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Aurora, Ill.

The new auditorium faces north, and its two massive square towers can be seen for a long distance. It stands on a triangular plot of ground, which gives it special prominence. The interior is finished in cathedral oak.

The dedicatory sermon will be preached at 10 o'clock this morning by Dr. Hepburn. At 7:45 o'clock Prof. C. B. McAfee of McCormick seminary will speak. Tomorrow evening will be homecoming and community night; Tuesday evening, Presbyterian, the Rev. Roy E. Vale, pastor of the First church, Oak Park, speaker; Wednesday evening, evangelism, the Rev. Joseph A. Vace, Detroit; Thursday, world outlook, the Rev. William Hiram Foulkes, Philadelphia; Friday, 7:45 p. m., music, Clarence Eddy at the organ, William H. Barnes assisting, the chorus choir to be led by Thomas A. Pape, with Irene Belden Zaring at the organ.

The Rev. Howard I. Stewart of the Leigh Street Baptist church, Richmond, Va., will preach next Wednesday evening in the Rogers Park Baptist church, Greenleaf and Hilldale avenues. He is said to preach to the largest congregation in Richmond.

An informal reception will be held at the Methodist Episcopal Old People's home, 1415 Foster avenue, next Thursday, from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 10 o'clock in the evening.

Charles M. Moderwell, president of the Chicago board of education; Harry Pratt Judson, former president of the University of Chicago, and Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, will be the speakers this evening at 8 o'clock at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall in an Education day program. Clifford W. Barnes, president of the club, will speak at 7 o'clock on the subject, "Jesus' Relation to the Home." Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon will be the evening soloist.

Dr. George Stewart, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church, New York, who spent four summers in Europe in the study of European conditions, will lecture on "The Four Storm Centers in Europe," tomorrow evening at Sinai temple, 4600 Grand boulevard.

A week of evangelism, conducted by the Rev. Albert H. Gage, will begin this evening at the North Shore Baptist church, Berwyn avenue and Lakewood.

The northeastern deanery of the Episcopal church will meet tomorrow at St. Martin's church, Midway Park and Waller avenue, Austin, the Rev. Harry M. Babin, rector, and the Rev. John Herbert Edwards, dean. Bishop Overs of Liberia will give the morning address and Dr. Elmer T. Merrill, University of Chicago, will speak after luncheon on "Pliny's Persecutions of Christians."

Plans for the erection of a $1,000,000 high school at 81st street and Indiana avenue, to be known as Mercy High school, were announced last Friday by Archbishop G. W. Mundelein. Construction will begin at once. Joe W. McCarthy is the architect and the R. C. Wieboldt company the builders. There will be an auditorium seating 1,000 and a convent with living quarters for forty-five Sisters of Mercy, who will form the teaching staff. There will be twenty-eight classrooms and all modern conveniences for athletics, entertainments, music, art, and domestic science.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Antonio Rella, vice director of the Sistine choir of Rome, Italy, who will give a concert this evening at the Auditorium theater, is well known to many Chicago graduates of the American college in Rome and others who have visited Rome. They will give Monsignor Rella a personal greeting.

"Is One Religion as Good as Another?" will be the subject of an address on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock by the Rev. E. McDonnell, C. M., at the Cenacle Converts' club at the Cenacle, 513 Fullerton parkway. Dinner will be served at 6 to those arranging in advance.

Mayor William E. Dever has officially issued a proclamation naming Dec. 2-9 as religious education week in which he urges "the support and coöperation of all individuals and organizations interested in raising the moral tone and standards of our civic life and the upbuilding of the spiritual ideals of our city." A committee representing the Chicago Sunday School association, J. L. Kraft, George W. Dixon, and the Rev. S. A. McCollum, waited on the mayor and pledged the coöperation of the Sunday schools of all denominations.

Maj. Reed Landis and the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, Hyde Park Baptist church, will speak today at 4 o'clock at the Evanston Sunday Afternoon club in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, on the subject, "Fathers and Sons." The glee club of Northwestern university will sing.

STOMACH UPSET

Heartburn — Indigestion
Gases — Sourness
Dyspepsia — Flatulence

If you feel bloated, sick or uncomfortable after eating, here is harmless relief. "Pape's Diapepsin" settles the stomach and corrects digestion the moment it reaches the stomach.

This guaranteed stomach corrective costs but a few cents at any drug store. Keep it handy!

To the SOUTH SEAS

with Raymond-Whitcomb on the great oil-burning "Resolute"

If you are free, don't make the mistake of foregoing this South Sea adventure. You will see what few have been lucky enough to see—a fleet of war canoes putting out to greet YOU; Fijian warriors stamping in their primitive dances for YOU; Bagnan "Fire-Walkers" performing their miracles for YOU; graceful Samoan "siva-siva" dancers assembled for YOU; soft-voiced Tahitian "himine" singers coming from far-off inland villages to sing for YOU. These handsome natives are accounted the most attractive in the world. They have heard you are coming and they are making ready to welcome you and the "Resolute" next spring.

These experiences are admittedly unusual; to them you will be able to add picturesque visits to Egypt, India, Ceylon, Burma, Java, the Philippines, China and Japan. Space for such moderate sums as $1650, $1250, $2000 per person is still available, which is little enough to pay for a sailing from New York, January 16, 1924.

The Raymond-Whitcomb Cruises to the Mediterranean sails February 9, on the 20,200-ton S. S. "Reliance," sister-ship to the "Resolute." The itinerary includes the "standard" Mediterranean ports—and also Corsica, Cattaro and Venice, visited by no other cruise.

Something New in Suppers at the Attic Club

By Mme. X

SOCIETY, or the world that amuses itself, owes a debt of gratitude to any one who devises a new method of entertaining or a new setting for such entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster earned such a medal when they invited 100 or so of their friends to supper last Sunday evening at the Attic club, on the top floor of 126 West Adams street. Incidentally it gave those who were present an idea of the artistic entourage the modern business man is inclined to assemble for his busy hours in the loop district. This recognition of the esthetic as a desirable factor in finance is an encouraging sign from the American business man. Its psychological properties and possibilities have not as yet been studied or analyzed, but such an institution as the Attic club is the first step for such a science.

The rooms of this organization made a charming setting for what was one of the gayest and most delightful of the large parties given so far this season. The company assembled in a capacious and attractive reception room, the walls of which were covered with an effective landscape paper which gave at first the impression of being set in an open field surrounded with wooded landscape and low hills. From this room the company passed into a long, vaulted corridor. Here hors d'oeuvres were served. Beyond this long ante-room was the large dining room where tables were spread for the sit down supper to which the guests were bid.

If the members of the Attic club fare as well as the Brewsters' company each day's luncheon must be a preoccupation to them during the morning's labors. In time, perhaps, that hasty bite so destructive of man's interior may become as obsolete as the dodo. Then our captains of industry and kings of finance may live for a long enjoyment of the fruits of their toil, a rather rare privilege among this class nowadays. Enterprises like this club may increase the longevity of captains of industry and lessen the list of rich widows.

Two Versions of Mephisto.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster earned such a medal when they invited 100 or so of their friends to supper last Sunday evening at the Attic club, on the top floor of 120 West Adams street. Incidentally it gave those who were present an idea of the artistic entourage the modern business man is inclined to assemble for his busy hours in the loop district. This recognition of the esthetic as a desirable factor in finance is an encouraging sign from the American business man. Its psychological properties and possibilities have not as yet been studied or analyzed, but such an institution as the Attic club is the first step for such a science.

Two Versions of Mephisto.

Do you realize what superb opera we have been enjoying these last ten days? One of its most interesting events was presenting, within a few days of each other, the two operas telling the story of "Faust," Gounod's being given last Monday evening and Boito's two nights later. This gave us an especially good opportunity to compare and analyze these compositions. Even making allowances for the fact that the title rôle in the Italian rendering of the well known story was presented by Feodor Challapin, the greatest artist on the operatic stage today, the work of Boito seems to the present writer to "put it all over" the older composition by Gounod.

One interesting thing was the fact that both Mephistos were portrayed by Russians. Bakianoff's last Monday evening was one of the most interesting and original interpretations of this famous part that has been presented here of late years. It was subtle, dramatic, and forceful. Challapin's portrayal of the same character in "Mefistofele" makes it cosmic creation, a gigantic god Pan who is a part of the elements, whose steeds are the winds, whose chariots are the clouds, whose realm is lit by lightning and ministered to by wild spirits. Some of the scenes like that on the Brocken and the prologue among the mists on the mountain tops are excellent examples of stagecraft. We owe much to Russian artists in our opera. Adolph Bolm's ballet is an important addition to our performances.

Batik Ball Nov. 30.

The cover design on the black and gold invitations to the second Batik ball suggests a wild night, for Nov. 30 at the Congress hotel gold room, that shrine of many brilliant affairs. It is announced as a "frolic of Chicago artists under the auspices of the Association of Arts and Industries." Furthermore, the invitation says, "This is the night that Chicago takes her place as the artistic and Bohemian center of the universe in a riot of color, music, dancing, revelry, and stunts! Batik, the ancient splendor of the east—ultra-modern wonder of the western world! Batik, the mysterious, magical, opulent and elusive art of all time, will be revealed and interpreted in all of its beauties, its modern splendors, and its ageless fascinations, by the greatest aggregation of artists at play ever staged on this or any other planet!"

Some writing, that! We wish we dared to or could sling language about in this abundant and passionate fashion, but tremble when we think what the gentle Sunday editor would do to us or our copy if we tried.

To continue: Batik is, we are further informed, the starest symbol of youth (not, fortunately, the symbol of eternal youth. We should hate to have many no longer young folk whom we know and love flaunt it). It is also the symbol of beauty, color, joy, life. It calls upon you to forget dull care and all other joyless, drab things, and join with the artists in a prolonged evening of joyous self-expression. There will be a pageant, special dancers, and many other striking and effective stunts. If it be half as successful an affair as was the previous ball of this ilk in 1921, it will certainly be worth going to. We ourselves propose to take out from under the bed the family exchequer and withdraw from the well worn stocking enough pelf to purchase a seat among the onlookers, a thing we have never done before. Youth, joy, color, life shall be ours for a few hours at least. Begone, dull care!

The officers of the Association of Arts and Industries are William Nelson Pelouse, president; B. F. Affleck, Oliver Dennett Grover, and Eames MacVeagh, vice presidents; Harold Bradley, secretary; Norma K. Stahle, executive secretary, and Ralph Van Vechten, treasurer. The organization itself is dedicated to promoting the marriage of art and industry by founding a school of industrial art.

We may in time arrive at that high standard, which the Japanese reached long ago, of having every utensil in daily use a thing of beauty. Each hinge, each simple kitchen pot or pan in the land of the Nipponese is a work of art, or used to be before the demoralizing occident prostituted their ideals and desires. But the trend today in the industrial world is towards a departure from the bleak ugliness which has up to now marked our dash forward from handicraft to a machine made world. So this ball of the thirtieth of the month will aid in speeding the day when we shall demand beauty in even the humblest article in use.

An imposing list of patronesses occupies the lower half of the invitation to attend and be joyous at the Batik ball.

In the Public Eye.

That famous Duchess of Devonshire, whose kiss to the butcher in exchange for a vote gave an esthetic and gallant touch to one of the English political campaigns in the eighteenth century, was the precursor of the modern women in politics. It must be admitted, or emphasized, that her aims and not her methods are followed by her sisters of the present time. So much a part of political campaigns are the women of this age that the situation threatens the independence and privacy of the luckless wives and daughters of the different candidates for office. No matter how domestic and removed in interest these wives and daughters may be, they have to be used in the great game and have to be in evidence when called upon.

The two party chiefs and aspirants for the greatest office in the country who were here with their wives last week, Senator Hiram Johnson and William G. McAdoo, were much in the public eye, and their spouses could not escape that pitiless glare which shines upon those in high places or who seek such.

On Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock the officers of the Illinois Democratic Woman's club and of the Illinois Democratic Women's forum, headed by Mrs. Samuel Slade and Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, gave a reception for Mrs. McAdoo at the Congress hotel, where this daughter of one President and wife of one of the possibilities in the next presidential election, received a numerous throng of women, most of whom presumably belonged to the Democratic party. Mrs. McAdoo has had a long experience with such meetings with the public and been well schooled in the proper way to receive the salutations of a vast number of unknown people. She acquitted herself well and was to an onlooker an attractive personality. Mrs. Ina L. Smith and Mrs. Clarence Goodwin headed the women's committee in charge of the reception.

It is to be remarked in this connection that long habit with such semi-public functions does not always result in affable manners on the part of the subjects of such affairs. During the visit here recently of a famous British statesman whom the community rather turned itself inside out to welcome, there was an unfortunate experience on the part of a committee of women headed by one of the most popular and tactful of our social leaders, a delegation especially appointed by an important association here. The members of the little band of Chicago women courteously offered themselves and their services as guides and dispensers of hospitality to the visiting woman. They were met, not merely with curt refusals, but were made to feel that they and their motives were suspect.

As the chairman of the committee expressed it, speaking of the younger woman in the visiting party, "She made me feel she looked upon me as if I were a policewoman from whom she wanted to escape."

Instead of declining courteously to fall in with the proposed plans of the reception committee and giving a simple excuse of a previous engagement which would have been accepted gladly, as no one on the committee wanted to give the required time to the visitors, an answer that was more than evasive and quite remote from the facts was given with what seemed like studied discourtesy. This was poor policy as well as bad manners (bad manners, however, are always poor policy), as the party had come ostensibly to cement relations between the two great English speaking nations, and this particular form of cement seemed an inadequate article, more calculated to sever than to unite. Though why it is necessary to stress the matter of the finest kind of alliance between us and our English cousins it is hard to understand. It is such a self-evident proposition that we must, when it comes to the question of world politics, stand either side by side or back to back, according to what is happening on the rest of the globe, that it seems a pity to imperil this understanding by injecting unpleasant incidents of a social or semi-social kind.

Which poet was it who sang: "Wives of great men oft remind us, if we'd make our lives sublime, we'd, departing, leave behind us all such wives on the sands of time"?

This incident is recalled here to stress the fact that American women in political life are learning the lesson of unbroken amiability. We are becoming "good mixers" and also finding much exhilaration and interest in the great game. If a woman's husband is candidate for any office she is expected to help) and the higher the office the more is her cooperation required. It was not so a quarter of

MISS ELIZABETH BOYNTON
[Raymer Studio Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Boynton of Highland Park gave a tea at their residence on Nov. 8 to present to society their daughter, Elizabeth. After the tea they gave a dinner for the assisting debutantes, followed by a dance at the Highland Park club.

MISS POLLY PACKARD.
[Drake Studio Photo.]

Miss Polly Packard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Packard of 436 Barry avenue, will be married to Frederick Winsor Copeland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Knox Copeland of Winnetka, on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 15, at 5 o'clock, in St. Chrysostom's church. Following the ceremony there will be a reception for relatives and intimate friends at the Packard residence. Miss Packard was a debutante of last winter.

MISS MARION ERSKINE.
[Ray Huff Photo.]

Miss Marion Erskine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert De Wolf Erskine of 33 East Division street, was introduced formally to society at a tea given by her parents at their residence on Nov. 10. Miss Erskine spent last winter abroad with her grandmother, Mrs. Albert Erskine of Buffalo, N. Y.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

a century ago. Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt never took an active part in her husband's many campaigns. She lived, even in the White House, a retired and utterly domestic life. But that was in the days when women were still battering on the doors of the polling booth and were looked upon as the weaker sex needing the protection of strong men, their place—and their only place—being the home, and their chief business that of continuing the race.

Harvest Time for Charities.

But politics and elections are far from being the only or chief end of prominent Chicago women. Many of them have so many irons in the fire that the flames are menaced. This is the harvest time for the many charities so largely supported by the activities of the leading women of the community, and the list of bazaars and benefits of various kinds grows with each day's mail.

On Tuesday evening the theatergoing public is invited to help the Oak Park Child and Infant Welfare society by buying tickets for and attending the performance of that delightful comedy, "Merton of the Movies," which is having such a successful run at the Blackstone theater. This society is part of a city-wide organization which, by its scientific and watchful care of the children of the community, both before and after birth, is on the road to making us a much finer, healthier, and more beautiful race. Of all the many efforts to better the stock this is probably the best and most helpful. The Oak Park branch of it is a large and flourishing body of earnest and interested women. Mrs. E. W. McCready is president, Mrs. William Davies and Mrs. David A. Hare vice presidents, Mrs. Frank E. Elliott treasurer, Mrs. C. M. Sailor recording secretary, and Mrs. D. E. Johnson corresponding secretary.

Those active in making this theatrical benefit a success, besides the women already mentioned, are Mrs. Hugh Adams, who is the head of the ticket committee; Mrs. E. Homer Fahrney, who is getting the advertisements for the program (a most important part of the theatrical benefit today); and Mrs. Albert Dicker, who is chairman of the Junior Oak Park society and in charge of the band of youth and beauty who will sell flowers and candy in the entr'actes.

The Oak Park women run two stations, one in Oak Park at Maple and Madison streets and one at 1331 Ashland boulevard, known as the St. Elizabeth station. There are two conferences a week at these stations, and between 500 and 700 children are brought yearly to the Oak Park station alone, which means about forty-seven a day. Excellent doctors and nurses are there to examine them and to give advice as to what they need in the way of care and food and other conditions.

The Oak Park association numbers some 1,400 members, with a junior membership of 170. This latter branch of the activities looks after the prenatal work which the society finds is so important for the child as well as the mother.

The Infant Welfare society of Chicago had its birth among the first of the activities of our State Council of Defense in the early days of the council's existence. Among its early founders were Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Ira Couch Wood, and Mrs. Treat Campbell.

Activities of Amateurs.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings the Service club will present its this year's musical song and dance comedy, "Tell Tales," at the Aryan Grotto. This latest entertainment on the part of this energetic band of young people has already met a hearty welcome if the advance sale of tickets be any indication.

The youth, especially the young girls, of the social world are certainly an up and coming lot. Yesterday another band of lovely maidens, the Junior leaguers, began a twelve weeks' engagement at the Playhouse when they gave the first of four Saturday morning presentations of "Cinderella." This is the first of three plays which they are going to give especially for children. The organizers of it are particularly anxious to have stressed the fact that those who have no children can, by buying tickets and presenting them to youngsters of the various social settlements, orphan asylums, and other harbors for children, give unalloyed delight in overflowing measure to a part of our population which has few joys and small opportunities to taste of pleasure.

Howard Herbert has stage managed and directed the production of this play and is in charge of its successors. Every Saturday morning for twelve weeks this devoted amateur company will be on hand at the Playhouse to entertain the young. Nor need the rest of us be chary of going. We may well be glad of an opportunity to laugh and shiver with that chattering, chuckling, gurgling assemblage of children. Like the Service club, the Junior leaguers divide the proceeds from the sale of

The marriage of Miss Virginia Cornwall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Cornwall of Ottawa, Ill., formerly of Chicago, to John Boardman Edwards Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Edwards of La Salle, Ill., took place at the Christ Episcopal church, Ottawa, with the Rev. Hugh MacWhorter officiating.

MRS. DONALD A. MALLOY.
[Wolfe Photo.]

Announcement has been made of the marriage on Oct. 6 of Miss Ruby Magers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Magers of River Forest, to Donald A. Malloy of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Malloy are residing at 3305 Woodland avenue, Kansas City.

their tickets among many and various charities. Mrs. Knowlton Ames of 1330 North State street has charge of the sale of tickets, which can also be bought at the theater ticket office.

The workers for the Eli Bates benefit on Dec. 17, when Balcliff, with his "Chauve Souris," will be the attraction, are selling tickets like hot cakes. It will be one of the gay evenings of the season. Eli Bates, if not the first social settlement in the city, is certainly one of the pioneers in this line of endeavors to throw light into dark places. It is situated on West Elm street, near the gas works, and in the midst of a foreign settlement much in need of sympathy and help.

Travesty of Tricks.

The Casino will have its first club evening next Sunday when, after a buffet supper, Arthur Deiroy of New York will give what he terms "A Psychic Mélange," which is a sort of travesty and expose of the tricks and devices of the average worker of psychic miracles. It is said to be both entertaining and enlightening. The one man he puts outside of this class of entertainers and in that of genuine miracle workers is the Roumanian, Di Rubini, who last winter astonished his audiences in this part of the land by his talents as a mind reader. He gave a program at the Casino which intrigued and interested its members.

Magic from the days of our earliest ignorance has always been a fascinating study, and when it is developed into black magic or black art it creates a delicious horror and confusion in the average mind. Its most delightful manifestation deals with the individual as in palmistry or other forms of reading either character or destiny. Some people have a real talent for this kind of what Hamilton McCormick calls "characterology." Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis is one of the most gifted palmists it has ever been my fortune to meet. She has a marvelous power of divination, and often lays bare hidden things or characteristics which no one but the subject knew.

On one occasion at the Allied bazaar, where she had a long stream of people waiting at the door of her booth to have their palms read, one of her visitors was a man from the east who was at that time (unknown to any of his Chicago friends) having a stormy time. Mrs. Lewis had never seen or heard of him. Even his name was unknown to her. With scarcely any circumlocution, she went right to the heart of the matter, and told him not only what was troubling him but also gave him counsel as to what he should do under the circumstances. He emerged startled, and rather angrily reproached the person who had brought him for having previously primed her. The latter denied either information or even knowledge of the situation.

An Evening at "The Follies."

The organizers of the Red, White, and Blue club theatrical benefit, which will consist of an evening at "The Follies" the night after Christmas, are working hard for the success of their enterprise. Already many of the boxes have been taken. Among these early takers are Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. John Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Dunham, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman. Among the energetic sellers of tickets Mrs. Carlton Holdredge, up to date, "takes the cake," she having alone and unaided sold seventy-six tickets.

The Illinois League of Women Voters is holding its annual state convention here this coming week at the Congress hotel on Nov. 19, 20, and 21. Miss Mabel Linn is chairman of arrangements. A banquet at the Congress on Wednesday evening will terminate the convention.

In charge of this will be Mrs. Clair E. More. Miss M. J. Roset will be hospitality chairman, assisted by the Misdames Watson Blair, James Morrison, Cyrus McCormick, Edwin T. Ryerson, J. M. Patterson, Charles H. Hamill, John V. Farwell, and Miss Mary Roset Smith. The League of Women Voters is growing in size and power, and bids fair to be a formidable consideration on the part of politicians. It is a non-partisan body devoted to making good and efficient citizens of the newly enfranchised women. It undertakes to teach women the machinery of elections and politics and to arouse their interest in all matters local and national with a view to intelligent participation in public affairs. It is an excellent idea and should prove helpful in the long run, though it often annoys and puzzles leaders of political parties who find it difficult to secure helpful and interested coöperation from the women in the league. The latter do not realize acutely that in its present form ours is a two party government and that nominations and elections are carried on by the two big political divisions. The Republican and Democratic parties, with the Socialists making up to now a rather negligible third.

Many women have the idea that they can be an outside and independent element which will affiliate only with the party putting up the best candidate and the platform. This limits their usefulness and leaves the real business of politics and people to the already established parties. It's a pleasant and lazy form of citizenship and gives its followers opportunity to criticise all the parties and the candidates.

Dr. Pierce on Psychology.

On Tuesday afternoon Frederick Pierce will discuss "Analytical Psychology" at the Fortnightly at a general meeting to be held in the rooms of the Fortnightly. Before we get through we shall all be expert psychologists, a subject of which our benighted and lamented grandmothers never knew even so much as the name. It is an inexact science which opens large fields for those with imagination and time. It resembles astronomy in its boundless extent and, followed to its uttermost limits, may carry us imperfect mortals into realms as yet unguessed at by us, but the way is long and complicated, and not to be undertaken lightly.

A joyous company of Chicagoans is gathered in the east for the big intercollegiate football game. Among those who departed hence last week for this were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Judah, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Miss Marion Warner, and Miss Frances Robbins.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson are expecting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frost, and the three Frost children to spend Christmas with them. The Hamilton McCormicks are likewise expecting a visit in a short time from their young bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Allister McCormick.

Spending just a few days in Chicago at the Drake is a famous New York beauty, Mrs. Oliver Harriman. She was Miss Grace Carley of Kentucky, a great belle both before and after her marriage into the well known New York family. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman is giving a dinner in her honor on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson is among the last of the social leaders to return to Chicago. She arrives next Friday and brings with her as house guest Thomas Suretta, the musical authority and lecturer. She is entertaining for him at luncheon next Sunday.

What with opera and balls and dinners, Chicago's gay world is getting into its usual steady and rapid gait, and before we know it winter will be over and—brrrr, don't let's talk about it any more.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent either of the bride or bride groom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Thursday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be printed.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Hardenbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Cheever Hardenbrook of Winnetka, to George Jago Murch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Murch of Glencoe, took place at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Christ church, Winnetka. Miss Hardenbrook was attended by Mrs. Edward O. Pringle of San Francisco, as matron of honor, and Miss Kay Bishop of Hartford, Conn., and Miss Mildred Latham of Evanston. Sydney Murch acted as best man for his son, and ushering were Alexander Tritschler, Frank Belfort Keogh, Frederick Tritschler, Eugene Clark, L. Booth Sherman, and F. Leon Williams.

Announcement comes from Los Angeles of the marriage of Miss Mildred Lucy Estabrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Estabrook, formerly of Oak Park, to Peter John Van Oosting, son of Mrs. Anna Van Oosting. The wedding took place on Nov. 10 at the Messiah Congregational church, Los Angeles.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Oct. 31 of Miss Esther Marie Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Larson of River Forest, to Raymond Welshon of Austin. Mr. and Mrs. Welshon are residing at 615 Central avenue.

MRS. PAUL FOWLER.
[Dows Studio Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. M. Solomon of 523 Lakeside place announce the marriage of their daughter, Celia, to Paul David Flower, son of Mrs. Mary Flower, which took place on Oct. 14 at the Sheridan Plaza hotel. Mrs. Harry Jacobs, a sister of the groom, attended the bride as matron of honor, and Julius Solomon of Marinette, Wis., was best man.

Miss Margaret Pope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pope of 5555 Hyde Park boulevard, was married to Robert Boone Hover of Kansas City, Mo., at her parents' residence on Nov. 10. Mr. and Mrs. Hover motored to Excelsior Springs and will reside at 12 East 61st street terrace, Kansas City, after Dec. 15.

The marriage of Miss Florence Gullans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gullans of Forest Glen, to George Grammer Smith took place at the residence of the bride's parents at 6431 North Lawler avenue on Nov. 1, with the Rev. Willis A. Ellis, assisted by the Rev. A. G. Scambler, officiating. Miss Marguerite Jean Smith of Cleveland, O., was maid of honor, and Raymond M. Smith, also of Cleveland, a cousin of the groom, served as best man. Mrs. Lester Barth and Mrs. Vernon Zimmerman of Chicago were the bride's other attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, both of whom are musicians in the American Conservatory of Music, are residing at 5919 North Paulina street.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Delfosse of Wilmette of the marriage of their daughter, Carmen, to Lawrence J. White Jr., which took place yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the church of St. Francis Xavier, Wilmette.

The marriage is announced of Miss Racheal Naomi Hansen, daughter of P. M. Hansen of Bloomington, to George Read Hodgkinson, which took place on Nov. 2 in the First Christian church in Bloomington. Because of the recent death of the bride's mother, only immediate relatives were present at the ceremony and a dinner given by Dr. Charles P. Hansen, the bride's brother.

do you know this woman?

"I know a woman, (and there are many like her) who is never really at ease, and who never appears entirely happy. Her wardrobe is superb!—always the latest and smartest gowns. But she is a trifle overweight, and awkward. She lacks poise and grace. Now she knows the reason! Her shoes are to blame. She's been wearing ordinary shoes that cramp her feet and add—pounds to her appearance, by making her awkward and uncomfortable!"

40 Women's Clubs Back Bazaar for Stevenson House

By Kate Webber.

MORE than forty women's clubs in the city are interested in the bazaar to be held on Wednesday and Thursday from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 at night at the Congress hotel, for the benefit of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging house.

Those closely connected with the activities of this place of lodging, and of hope to destitute and distressed persons, try to carry on the spirit with which the home was founded by the philanthropist whose name it bears. She saw most clearly, and acted upon her inspiration, when a the close of the world's fair she noted the urgent need of a home for women and girls. Dr. Stevenson was aided by the Chicago Woman's club, which today continues its support of this essential work, together with the delegates from other organizations who compose the board of directors.

Numerous cases of human interest are to be found in the records of the superintendent, a glance at which tells not only of countless times unfortunate women have been aided, but often of fathers whose homes have been deserted by the mother, and who are tided over the first time of readjustment in caring for their children.

One of the chief aims of this home is to provide a place where the mother can work, if she is able, knowing her children are properly cared for during the day in the well equipped nursery, and at night give them a mother's care.

The principle of the organization is not to let those coming for help feel they are objects of charity, but to put the prices so low they can easily be met, and to those having no money work is given.

No woman or child is ever refused help so long as a place can be found for them—questions of the past are not dwelt on, as the future is what counts.

From a beginning when nine women were cared for, the work has grown and still now the daily average of lodgings is 135. The daily attendance in the nursery is over seventy.

Last year 69,340 meals were served in the home and 45,714 were served in the nursery.

The lodgings given to women were 22,110 and 18,255 days' care was given to children.

As the home coöperates with all other recognized charities and has the indorsement of the Association of Commerce, the variety of cases handled includes the unfortunate girl, the deserted mother, the unwanted friendless elderly person as well as the one temporarily in need of shelter from loss of work or illness.

Mrs. H. D. Sheldon, president, assisted by Mrs. E. J. Brasseur, general chairman, will have charge of the committees in charge of the bazaar this week. Among the clubs which will have booths are the North End club, the Austin Woman's club, the Arché club, the Englewood Woman's club, the Kilo club, the Mathesis club, the Ravenswood Woman's club, the Rogers Park Woman's club, the Washington Park club, and the Wicker Park Woman's club.

40 Women's Clubs Back Bazaar for Stevenson House

By Kate Webber.

MORE than forty women's clubs in the city are interested in the bazaar to be held on Wednesday and Thursday from 11 o'clock in the morning until 10 at night at the Congress hotel, for the benefit of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging house.

Those closely connected with the activities of this place of lodging, and of hope to destitute and distressed persons, try to carry on the spirit with which the home was founded by the philanthropist whose name it bears. She saw most clearly, and acted upon her inspiration, when at the close of the world's fair she noted the urgent need of a home for women and girls. Dr. Stevenson was aided by the Chicago Woman's club, which today continues its support of this essential work, together with the delegates from other organizations who compose the board of directors.

Numerous cases of human interest are to be found in the records of the superintendent, a glance at which tells not only of countless times unfortunate women have been aided, but often of fathers whose homes have been deserted by the mother, and who are aided over the first time of readjustment in caring for their children.

One of the chief aims of this home is to provide a place where the mother can work, if she is able, knowing her children are properly cared for during the day in the well equipped nursery, and at night give them a mother's care.

The principle of the organization is not to let those coming for help feel they are objects of charity, but to put the prices so low they can easily be met, and to those having no money work is given.

No woman or child is ever refused help so long as a place can be found for them—questions of the past are not dwelt on, as the future is what counts.

From a beginning when nine women were cared for, the work has grown till now the daily average of lodgings is 125. The daily attendance in the nursery is over seventy.

Last year 69,846 meals were served in the home and 45,714 were served in the nursery.

The lodgings given to women were 22,110 and 18,255 days' care was given to children.

As the home cooperates with all other recognized charities and has the indorsement of the Association of Commerce, the variety of cases handled includes the unfortunate girl, the deserted mother, the unwanted friendless elderly person as well as the one temporarily in need of shelter from loss of work or illness.

Mrs. H. D. Sheldon, president, assisted by Mrs. E. J. Brasseur, general chairman, will have charge of the committees in charge of the bazaar this week. Club Ethics

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"YOU should have been at the meeting last Tuesday," my fellow club member told me. "Mrs. Daniels was splendid. Her opponents got her in a corner beforehand, and began to pull her arguments to pieces. Some of the dear ladies became so excited they forgot to be polite, but Mrs. Daniels never lost her poise for an instant.

"She had a comeback for each one and she threw in a smile for good measure. It was: 'Yes, Mrs. Day, I would have said the same thing myself ten years ago, but I wouldn't today.' 'Statistics don't support your statement, Mrs. Barnes.' 'You have a right to your opinion as well as I have to mine, Mrs. James.' 'Of course, I'll bring the matter up for vote, Mrs. Hand. I'm a good loser and I hope that you are, too.' O, it was rich.

Really, I didn't think her cause would have any kind of show when it came up in meeting, the aggressives had been working so hard, but the perfect control and fairness of Mrs. Daniels and her supporters—they followed her lead to a woman—won the day. It was the finest display of tolerance for the other fellow's opinion I have ever seen.

"'I want you to think as you please, I want you to vote as you please. I'm just going to give you all the information that I have on the case so that you can vote on its merits,' she told them.

"The leaders of the other side showed the same spirit of intolerance they've shown every since the affair came up, but I'm sure they realized at last that their methods were unpopular. When Mrs. Hand was talking to Mrs. Daniels and me afterward, I counted five times that she said, 'I do respect the opinions of others.' If she holds that thought over herself long enough, maybe she will in time."

KERMANS

Fill a definite need of Chicago women

It makes no difference where a woman lives—nor the size of her purse. She has an instinctive longing and regard not merely for the "finer" things, but also for the "smart" things that cause her to be known as "cleverly gowned."

Rosewood Twill
$45

And so KERMANS stores were started to fill the demand of those women who appreciate and want the finer things, but do not care to empty their purses to get them.

Naturally the combination of "smart" apparel at low prices brought many women to our stores.

Today, with our big volume of sales, we can conduct our business on a smaller margin of profit, and lower prices, than has ever before been possible by any store selling apparel of the highest character.

As an indication of the unusual values which can always be found at KERMANS, we picture one of our hundreds of frocks—many priced as low as $45.

Go all over Chicago. Study the styles, materials, workmanship and prices. Then come to KERMANS. Your own eyes will prove that our prices are lower.

Critic Tells Why Bagpipes Make Hard Music Easy

FROM Scotland comes this bit of information about music for its national instrument, the pipes.

It is reported in the London Daily Chronicle:

"More things are wrought by bagpipes than many of us wot of.

"For instance, you'd probably find yourself in a bit of a difficulty if you were asked to take this home and try it over on your piano:

"Hundratatateriri, hiandatatateriri, hiundratatateriri, hiundratatateriri.

"Yet it is quite easy on the bagpipes—that is, if you know how to handle them at all. You see, before musical notation was introduced for Highland pipe tunes, the pipers used verbal equivalents for the notes. For instance, the piobaireachd 'War or Peace,' which has now been set to music, was taken down from the piper, John MacCrummen of Skye, as verbally taught to the apprentices, as follows:

Hodroho, hodroho, hanain, hiechin,
Hodroho, hodroho, hodroho, hachin,
Hodroho, hodroho, hanain, hiechin.

"And the tune was concluded by the little lilt set forth earlier in this paragraph.

"Written down, this may seem to many of us a mere unintelligible jumble, but bagpipe authorities assert that when sounded by the pipers, with due regard for the rhythmical value of notes, it is a different matter."

New Safe Way To Remove Teeth Stains

Marvelous Discovery Bleaches Dark Teeth White, Instantly!

A new, harmless treatment has been discovered which dissolves teeth stains instantly giving even the dullest teeth a charming whiteness and lustre. This new treatment is called the Bleachodent Combination. It consists of a marvelous liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid instantly curdles and removes all stains, while the paste removes them and if used daily prevents the formation of future stains. You just brush your teeth with a few drops of the liquid and then the paste, and before your very eyes your teeth acquire a clear, flashing whiteness that even an hour's scouring by old-fashioned methods could not give them.

It is vitally important that only a safe mild preparation like Bleachodent Combination be used on children's teeth, which are easily subject to stains and decay. Bleachodent Combination is absolutely safe in every way, for it simply curdles and removes all stains and substances from the surface of the teeth. It cannot affect the enamel in any way. Gritty and abrasive dentifrices should never be used. If you want sparkling white, pearly teeth get Bleachodent Combination today. Costs only a few cents at all good drug stores. Sold at Public Drug Co., Geo. M. Porter, Buck & Rayner, Farmers Pharmacy, Economical Drug Co., Walgreen Co., Nestor Drug Co., Owl Drug Co., and leading druggists wherever this paper is read.

STRONG'S AMOSOL STOPS PYORRHEA

Do not take chances of losing your valuable teeth when you can now so easily and quickly check ravages of dangerous pyorrhea. To save your teeth look at the gums. At the first signs of unhealthy gums, consult your dentist and start morning and night the AMOSOL treatment for pyorrhea. Used regularly, it will prevent pyorrhea and stop its progress—

$2.00 Size, $1.79

FREE The Massage Brush with one purchase of Amosol during this sale.

Have a Satin Smooth Hair-Free Skin

SCIENCE has finally solved the problem of removing hair quickly, safely, and surely, from the skin or complexion. This with NEET, a dainty cream, as harmless and mild as your favorite cold cream! You merely spread it on and then rinse off with clear water. That's all; the hair will be gone, cleaned away, and the skin left refreshingly cool, smooth and velvet! Old methods, the unwholesome razor and severe chemical preparations, have given way to this remarkable preparation which is already the accepted method of well-groomed women in every metropolitan center from New York to San Francisco.

Used by physicians. Sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded.

Women's Fur Trimmed Coats Worth to $50 at Only 32.50

Fifth Floor—Dearborn Street

Wherever one looks this season fur trimmed coats are seen no matter what the occasion. There is something so fashionable about them and they seem to breathe the real spirit of winter time.

The touches of fur, whether at the neck or cuffs, add just the necessary finish to make the coats stylish. Then, too, the fabrics used lend themselves so easily to the combination with fur, and the effect is practically perfect.

In addition to their splendid appearance is added their great comfort, as they are all cut on generous lines that are youthful and graceful. Note the fabrics, too, in this splendid group.

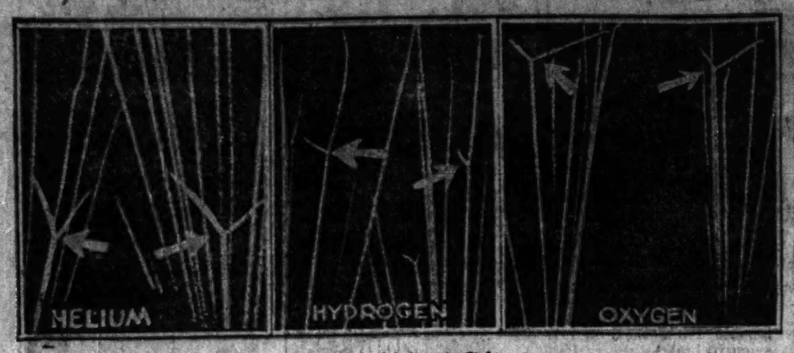
SAFETY

CHEMISTRY



Atoms of helium in flight.

MATTER MADE OF ATOMS.

YOU can rasp any metal you choose. Some, like steel, have atoms that are bound tightly together, and do not part company easily. Others, like gold, are almost as soft as lead, and can be cut with a knife. But whether the metal is hard or soft, you would find, if you looked closely enough, that its atoms were all a long way apart.

"How can I look finely enough?" you inquire. "My eyes see only a shining surface."

Pound the metal out into a thin sheet. Make a pipe of the sheet and try to send gases through it. What happens? The gases leak out through the metal walls, the finest atoms first, the coarsest last. The atoms of the gas go through the spaces between the atoms of the metal.

The central portion of an atom is made of hydrogen gas. A proton might well be termed one hidrogen. The electrons are negative electricity. Most of the power in the atom lies in the proton.

Atoms are always in motion. They fly in short straight lines, striking and bounding from their neighbor atoms. These flights have been photographed.

When a piece of radium is set up it constantly emits rays which are made of helium atoms. They fly with almost the speed of light. As they go they tear their way through the swarms of atoms of air that block their way, leaving a trail of electric wreckage behind them.

Electrified air will condense water. Now, if the pressure in the air is suddenly released, as under a rising piston head, every trail of a flying atom becomes a tiny trail of fog.

When radium rays shine through different gases, different effects are noticed. The flying atoms of helium have the same mass as the relatively stationary atoms in ordinary helium gas. When a flying helium atom strikes a slow moving one, the two rebound in equal and opposite paths.

But with oxygen and hydrogen it is different. Here the flying atoms knock the gas atoms right and left, in long trails, while they themselves are only slightly affected.

MAN

Man of C ...le. The Furfooz man restored and modernized.

Men of Furfooz and Grenelle.

OLDEST TYPE OF ALPINE.

ONE of the major divisions of the Alpine race is the Furfooz-Grenelle type of man. He is native in Belgium, France, and the Vosges mountin region of Europe. He is fairly common in America.

The Alpine race is noted for its round skulls. It is a brunette race, of a short, stocky build, with dull dark hair and deep brown eyes, and well shaped, globular craniums. As a people Alpines are conservative and given to keeping to ways that have been tried and proven.

In the cavern of Furfoos, in Belgium, in the year 1867, a number of skelestons were found whose race had never before been seen in archeological diggings. In 1870 another grave of this same type was found at Grenelle, near Paris. Both were of men who lived in the old stone age. For a long time no one knew where to place them. Then at last some one had the sagacity to compare them with the skulls of the people living in those spots at the time, and the resemblance was perfect. It is therefore possible to give a name with an archeological meaning to the descendants of the most ancient race still on the ground.

Furfooz-Grenelle men differ in several regards from other members of the Alpine race. These differences are considerable to the eye, and anatomists lay great stress on them. The usual homosapiens Alpinus-alpinus has a skull that is almost a perfect ball. But the Furfooz-Genelle skull is decidedly flat in the crown and, to compensate, it juts out behind. From a side view it seems almost as long as a Nordic head, but from above it is unmistakably broad headed.

The Furfooz-Grenelle face is short and wide, with a little snub nose and an unusually wide mouth. The upper front incisor teeth are so short that they give the jaws the expression of being concave downward, a feature found nowhere else in humanity.

The majority of professional second generation Germans in this country are Alpine. But the grand majority of second generation German citizens are Nordic. Why should the Alpines cling to their hyphens, while the Nordics give up theirs?

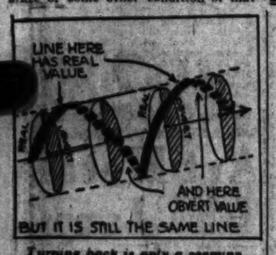
The United States is a Nordic country. It is peopled chiefly by folks from the British Isles. The Nordic German is a blood brother to the Anglo Saxon, and as soon as he learns to speak like we do he finds no social or blood barrier between himself and us. But with the Alpine it is different.

Alpines do not fit with Nordics. They feel different, and in self-protection they keep to their own kin and ways. No matter if they learn to talk like we do, there is still blood against them. In addition, they are by inheritance slow to adopt new thoughts. The result is that most hyphenated Germans have round heads. Among the most tenacious conservers of the old ways are the Furfooz-Grenelles. We would imagine that this should be so, inasmuch as they have clung in the same neighborhoods in Europe since the ice age.

MATHEMATICS

WE NEVER TURN BACK.

MATHEMATICS shows that there is only one direction of movement, one direction of time, and only one sense of the continuation of matter. Projects once embarked upon must be carried out, whether willed or not. There is no such a thing as turning back, or undoing what has been done. The most that any condition of matter can do it to reverse the state of some other condition of matter.



Turning back is only a seeming.

These facts are almost self evident, and we all know that they are true from our daily experiences in life. This is how a mathematician proves them.

He builds a cylinder in space, of three dimensions, with the fourth dimension representing the continuation of time. He winds a line in a spiral about this cylinder.

Now, if the cylinder is transparent, and all mathematical cylinders are, so that a person can see one side as well as another, we notice that there are some positions where the line seems to turn on itself and go backward. This is an effect of projection. It is an appearance that has only seeming, but not fact. It is the way that outside eyes view the cylinder; not as it is. The line in fact winds straight on its way, without a turn or a kink, and all the retrogression that there is belongs to the realm of illusions.

A New York Purchase of Dresses at Less Than ½: Basement

Not often can an offer such as this be made to Chicagoans, but we found a large New York manufacturer who had a stock of dresses much greater than he figured and to dispose of them quickly in one lot, and for spot cash, and we bought them for less than the actual cost of the materials. When you consider that the workmanship on them is excellent, the trimmings those found on higher priced dresses, you can readily see why we purchased such an immense assortment to offer at far less than half actual value.

The fabrics include all wool serges, silk mesalines, tricoknit, all wool poiret twill, silk velvet, velveteens, wool crepes, all wool panamas, laces and velours, some combinations of two fabrics—all attractive models that were made in the most approved styles for this season's selling.

Included are plaid and checked sports dresses, plain straight line one-piece dresses, ruffled model dresses, etc. For trimmings you'll find silk braiding, laces, colored embroidery in fancy designs, etc. Dresses cut on perfect lines that will fit properly, in navy blue, black, brown and favorite colors. Sizes 16 to 18 for misses, sizes 36 to 44 for women and some extra sizes are also here. The values range to $12.50, all in one great group for Monday at 4.87.

By Selby Maxwell.

SHE LIVES IN FANCY.

It is possible for a person to be too high hearted for her own good? Can women set their ideals high, but not in accord with facts, and thus only feel the pangs of disappointment?

Variaviva sets her ideals high. She sets them too high for her own good. They are beautiful, but they also cause her to fade. She will see many years yet, in spite of this, what might happen if she aimed lower? Nothing. Beautiful things are the only animals that look clearly into the future. Our vision is often cloudy enough, but the most amusing thing about us is that we see not at all.

The best person is the one who foresees the farthest. The most beautiful woman is the one whose vision is most penetrating. She beholds things not as they are now but as they may be some day and as she hopes they will be. There can be no fading and no ugliness as long as her eyes are fixed steadfastly upon what she hopes will come to pass. Beauty passes only when the spirit dies.

Variaviva spends her life in idealizing the things around her. It gives her an inspiring face, a face that artists love to paint. What she thinks and what the world does are two separate realities.

It is unfortunately true that we all live in a realm of misunderstanding and lack of comprehension, where most of our best thoughts are lost because there is no discerning person to appreciate them. Lack of appreciation is uncomfortable, but it is always from without. It can cause disappointment, but it cannot take away faith.

Variaviva is Cromagnon. The blood of a thousand generations of the best people in the world flows in her. She has idealism written in her face.

Where? Her nose. Noses are the best indicators of character. They are made of three parts—the body, the tip, and the nostrils. Each one of these parts has a meaning.

A nose with a big body denotes a person who puts material things before all else. It shows a seeker after the things of life and the flesh.

A nose with big wings to the nostrils denotes a mind that seeks to do things, to be strenuous, to exert itself, and to move things. But a nose with a ball on it, and particularly if it is tip tilted, shows a personality that is mental in its habits instead of motive or vital. It shows that there is an understanding of mind, of emotions, and of day dreams.

Variaviva has a tip tilted nose. Her character is as plain to read as printing. And who can say but that all her disappointments only serve to make her more beautiful, because they serve to fix her mind still more firmly on how things ought to be rather than how they are?

ASTRONOMY

The North America nebula.
[Photo by Dr. Max Wolf.]

THE GREAT AGE IS THE PRESENT.

THE present is the period of greatest discovery. In astronomy more knowledge has been gained in the last fifty years than in all the previous experience of the human race. One astronomer today can reasonably expect to accomplish more than all the learned men in any previous century of the world's history.

What are some of the big discoveries? Here is a list of them:

The big telescopes of the world, the Lick glass, the Yerkes glass, the five foot reflecting telescope at Mount Wilson observatory, and the new 100 inch telescope there.

The nature of Saturn's ring, discovered by Keeler.

The extra satellites of Jupiter, a line of discovery begun by Barnard.

The spectroheliograph, to enable astronomers to photograph the sun, invented by Hale.

The application of dry plate photography to the heavens, lead by Barnard.

The theory of isostacy, or internal balance of the earth, lead by Hayford.

The application of the interferometer, invented by Michelson, to the measurement of the diameter of the stars.

The discovery of dwarf and giant suns, and the discovery of the cycle of evolution of the stars, led by Russell.

The classification of all the stars by their chemical natures, a work where Harvard college leads.

The invention of the radiometer and the discovery of the heat of the stars, an invention perfected at Mount Wilson observatory.

The probable discovery of life on Mars, by Percival Lowell.

The discovery that spiral nebulae are distant universes, by Keeler and of their movements, by Slipher.

The discovery that light is matter by Michelson, leading to the theory of Einstein. Then comes the discovery that matter is made of electricity and that energy is granular and probably is matter.

Upsetting Newtons' law of gravitation, a work partially done by Einstein.

The discovery that the sun is a variable star, led by Abbott. The discovery that the sun causes climate, led by Huntington.

If any one is seeking a place where he can quickly earn fame for himself, astronomy can give him that place. Nor need any one plead that adverse circumstances hold him back, for three of the greatest astronomers that America has produced, Hale, Burnham, and Barnard began their work under unfavorable conditions. Incidentally, the greatest scientists have all been self-taught.

The universe is so vast and man is so tiny that all the new things that we learn only convince us the more of how small we really are, and how much there still remains to be found out. Each glimpse into the unfathomed mysteries of the stars raises many more questions than it solves. Each one of these questions is a road for some discoverer to travel on.

WEATHER

STORMS ARE WHIRLPOOLS.

YOU often see the sky ribbed with long windrows of cloud, lying across the wind. Sometimes you observe that clear and cloudy weather is also arranged in this fashion about the primary center of low barometer but on a scale of hundreds of miles across, instead of tens.

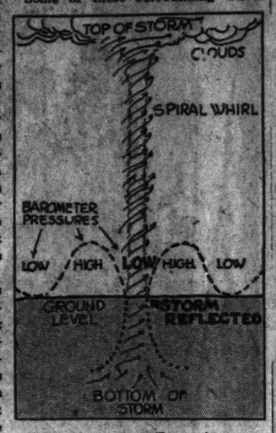
Mariners also sometimes see their barometers describe a series of rises and falls as a hurricane passes, corresponding to similar waves, but in a small scale. And lastly, photographs of tornadoes often reveal that the air at their bases is thrown violently up and out, as though by a blast. What could be the explanation for all these facts?

If the earth were all air, storms would be deep whirlpools in its substance. They would all be of the long funnel shape taken by tornadoes, except that the big ones would be hundreds of miles deep. But the earth is not all air. Only a relatively thin outer shell of it is gaseous. The rest is made of rock, wet here and there with a film of sea. The whirlpools can turn, but they are cramped.

Sometimes a tornado can be seen writhing in the air, but not touching the ground. This is the ideal condition of a storm. Most storms, however, are so big that there is not room enough in the air to hold them, and they drag on the ground.

They are reflected at ground level. The winds which normally should be blowing inward here are reflected to blow violently out, to build up a ring of high barometric pressure about the center of the whirl. Then follows a ring of low pressure, and another ring of high and still another ring of low, until the pressure of the surrounding air is reached.

Some of these surrounding waves



How a storm reflects rings.

may be high enough at their tops to reach to the clouds and when they do they make rings of clear and cloudy weather.

Kansas City Wants Three Music Halls

In Kansas City they are "crystallizing" public opinion in the direction of a music hall. They have decided there must me a large hall and at least one and preferably two smaller halls. The building must also house a music school worthy of its location. There must be an organ in each of the halls, and there must be comfort for the listeners. Extraordinary study must be given to the acoustic properties. The general opinion is that a seating capacity of 3,500 is enough for the larger hall. There is also much talk of a symphony orchestra.

In 5 minutes
This feast is prepared, at home. No work or muss of cooking. College Inn chefs have done that, for you.

This World-Famed Dinner
—let me serve it in your home tonight College Inn Chicken a la King better than ordinary meal . . . costs less!

BY THE COLLEGE INN CHEF

I offer you this superb dinner, Madam, as a tempting change from ordinary dinners of "meat and potatoes."

And as an economy, besides. For the cost is but a few cents. Less than the cost of commonplace dishes.

It is a favorite dinner at this famous restaurant. Travelers, connoisseurs from all over the world call for it when they visit Chicago.

Tonight you can enjoy it, at home!

Hotel-cooked

It is Chicken a la King—exactly as served at the College Inn.

Only the choice meats of specially selected fowls are used.

A rich cream sauce is used. Fresh, cultivated mushrooms; pimentos from Spain; rare spices; these and other good things are added under my supervision.

It is supremely delicious.

Yet—an economy

Special processes bring you this feast as an every-day economy.

At hotel or restaurant you would pay $2.50 for three portions.

Even if you could prepare it at home, the cost would be 3 times what it is in this way.

Serve 3 to 6

Just as it comes from the tin there is plenty for two. Serve on toast, and you have enough for three.

Add half a can of peas, and a touch of cream gravy, and there are generous portions for five or six.

No work, no cooking

There is no muss or bother of cooking to prepare this superb dinner at home. We have done that for you.

You simply open the tin, heat and serve. It will take 5 minutes. No longer.

Try it tonight

See how this dinner will delight each member of your family. Make the experiment tonight—to vary the routine of steak, roast, or chops.

Get it at your grocer's or delicatessen.

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE, ETC., ETC.

I see them on the corner
With heads together—so,
All talking fast and furious
In accents tense and low.
"Ah, they," I proudly murmur,
"Are citizens sincere Discussing vital issues . . ."
And this is what I hear:

I tell you he's a mudder.
He ain't, I tell you.
Well, he ain't as good as Zev, anyway, if he did beat him.
He win, didn't he?
That don't prove nothin'.
It don't, hey?
Naw, it don't.
Zat so! A lot you know about it.

"I guess I am mistaken,"
I sadly say to me.
"But yonder is another group,
Excited as can be.
Perhaps it's Ford or Europe,
The Income Tax, or Biz . . ."
But what I heard was thusly,
I. e., as follows, viz.:

It takes the west to show the east how to play football.
I'll say. Lookit Notre Dame and the Army.
Yes, sir. Made the old Army Mule look like a jackass.
I'll say. And Princeton. Wow! They sure tamed that Tiger.
I'll say they did. I'd like to see 'em wade into Harvard once.
Or Yale! O, boy!
Mamma! Yee-ow! Bebby! Let the west at 'em, I say.
You an' me both, etc., etc.

How I Learned Sarah Bernhardt's Secret of Eternal Girlhood

By SADIE MacDONALD.
51 Years Young.

They call me the Miracle Woman, yet the credit is really due to Sara's Bernhardt. What I really own is her precious secret, which she had intended to carry with her to the grave—the secret to which the wonder woman of the ages owed her perpetual youth.

Several years ago I went to see the Divine Sarah in Camille. As I watched her from the audience I paid eager tribute with the rest to her supreme artistry and her unfailing youth. I myself was an actress—and, well—almost forty. Try as I would, I could not deceive my mirror.

That night, quite by accident, the wonderful secret was revealed to me. At the end of the first act, a strange change took place on the actress's face. The left cheek remained that of a young girl, while the right one took on the unmistakable signs of old age. It was exactly as though Old Age, whom the indomitable Sarah had kept at bay for years, had suddenly broken through her brave defense and cast the blight of time on one fair cheek. I saw it clearly, just before the curtain fell, when Bernhardt—half crone, half maiden—stood unmasked before me.

When she returned for the second act she had miraculously become the girl once more. The marks of age had vanished from her cheek, but I knew! I knew!

The very next day my experiments began. I labored over the problem for months before I solved it to my satisfaction, and then one day the glorious discovery was made. While my invention was then very crude, it actually brought the desired results.

With trembling fingers I adjusted the appliance, hiding it cleverly beneath my hair, then looked in my mirror. A miracle had taken place. I rubbed my eyes in disbelief. If a fairy godmother had tapped me lightly with her wand and said the years turn back the transformation could not have been more startling. It was true, true, wonderfully true. The reflection that smiled back at me from the mirror was my girl face of twenty-two.

Face-Lifting Now Possible Without Pain or Cost of Surgery.

Without one penny of cost, without the slightest obligation, I want the privilege of demonstrating to any woman how at a fraction of the cost and without one bit of the pain the Sarah Mac Donald Face Lifting Method will make you look ten to fifteen years younger. OUR 1st ANNIVERSARY SALE

Beginning Monday at 8:30 A. M.—One Solid Week of the Greatest Underselling Ever Witnessed

This epoch-making event is veritably a gift-giving occasion to our thousands of patrons who have, during the past year, demonstrated their eagerness to patronize the sort of store that had been long sought by the women of this city. Our many promises of service . . . unexcelled value . . . undisputed quality and, last but not least . . . styles that meet the demand of the most discriminating, made one year ago, have been religiously adhered to. Our appreciation of the public's faith in our merchandising ability is here reflected in this awe-inspiring economy and fashion event.

America's Greatest Values in 1800

Exquisite Gowns and Dresses

Women of fastidious tastes . . . women who are accustomed to expending large sums for fine dresses and gowns . . . women who have never before attended sales . . . women who are prominent socially . . . women of refinement . . . and women who know style, quality and value, will revel in this offering.

Choice of Positive Values Up to $115 . . . . . $39

Such Gowns! Such Dresses! Such Frocks! They present a veritable fairyland of Fashion and, with the holidays just in the offing, women will regard this event as the most timely and, by far, the most amazing ever brought to their notice. Imagine, if you can, over 1,800 Dresses of the very finest fabrics, offered in one sale at one low price. The sight of this collection alone is worth the trip to this store. And, when you see it you will wonder how it was ever possible to secure such rare creations to sell at so low a price. If space permitted, we could write page after page about these exquisite modes and yet not do them justice.

HIGHLAND PARK.

Magnificent estate on the lake; would cost a half million to reproduce; can be bought at about one-half; it is one of the showpieces of the North Shore.

McGUIRE & ORR, EXCLUSIVE AGENTS. 69 W. Washington-st. Highland Park Office, 391 Central-av.

IMMEDIATE POSSESSION.

New English thatched roof, plaster and half timbered home, half acre of beautiful grounds, 4x22 ft. hand hewn beamed ceiling living room, stone fireplace, tile entrance, kitchen equipped with numerous cases, breakfast table and seat and electric range, tiled dishwasher and sink, built-in buffet, extra toilet on 1st floor; all fully decorated; heated garage attached; all improvements; ready to drive and walk in; for sale or rent; no extras; 3 blocks south and east of Ravinia station near lake and Ravinia Park; price and terms reasonable. Call Max E. Boyer, owner, Highland Park 1408.

UNUSUAL SETTING.

An artistic setting amidst the most beautiful section on the North Shore. The scarcity of wooded property close to the lake, plus the excellent transportation, assures the purchaser of enhanced values. In Ravinia there is a spot so wonderful that will satisfy the most discriminating taste. Surroundings, the natural timber and the best environment combine to make these homesites the most desirable spot on the North Shore. Such will not last long and if you are looking for a homesite of quality let me show you this location at once. Address J. O. 295, Tribune.

ELECTRIC LINE,

WHICH WILL TRIPLE VALUES NEAR ITS NEW STATION STOPS IN THE NEXT YEAR.

Months ago a syndicate purchased a tract of land, never dreamine of the new transportation line. Since the purchase acreage prices have doubled and tripled. We were given the exclusive sales right to this property at a price put on the plat before the present conditions were made manifold. The syndicate will not allow us to raise these prices.

Just imagine the opportunity of buying the above property for as low as

$200 CASH,

BALANCE IN 8 YEARS.

This property, without a doubt, will see a price of $1,000 by spring, when activity on the new road is started.

It is convenient to a station which carries more and faster trains than any other North Shore town. It is two blocks from a piece of property that has just been sold out, where resales are being made at from $45 to $60 per ft. This fact, together with the tremendous increase in values due to the new electric line, makes this property the best buy at the price offered on the North Shore today. Frankly, we do not expect it to last longer than a few days, as only 90 lots are to be sold.

Bird-Sykes

26 YEARS ON MICHIGAN-AV.
2215 Michigan-av.
Paige and Jewett

WHEN BIRD-SYKES SAY: "REBUILT"

they do not mean merely "shined up," "lightened up," and "tuned up." "REBUILT" in the Bird-Sykes' shop means inspecting such units as engine, transmission, rear axle, and other vital parts, and completely rebuilding the same, using new parts where necessary.

Coach work, which includes removing body and fender dents, re-covering wood tops, repairing and fitting of curtains, also upholstery, etc., is accomplished by experts in our shops.

Every "Bird-Sykes Rebuilt" car is given high grade paint job. Every "Rebuilt" car is thoroughly tested to meet our rigid standards, and is guaranteed by Bird-Sykes. If anything turns up unsatisfactory within a reasonable time, Bird-Sykes Co. will make good without cost to purchaser.

We are not financed by so-called automobile bankers. Purchaser deals with Bird-Sykes Co. throughout, and consequently is not charged exorbitant "finance rates." You can buy cars on liberal terms from us, paying usual bank interest, 7%, on deferred payments and cost of insurance.

PEERLESS

FACTORY BRANCH.

PEERLESS '23 SUBURBAN SEDAN, 7 PASS. Unforeseen circumstances have created an exceptional buy for some one. This Suburban Sedan has had every possible driven mileage to properly break in the motor. The speedometer registers but 3,890 miles. Of course, it is beautiful in color, and your upholstery are like new. The tires show but little wear. The spare tire is new. Equipped as you would wish in every way. Clymer spotlight, automatic windshield cleaner. This fine car carries our New Car guaranty. Cost $4,100. Only $3,075

PEERLESS 1923 SUBURBAN COUPE, 4-5 PASS. Those who have admired this beautiful car now have the opportunity to secure one at a saving of about $1,000 on the list price. This is a 4-5 passenger two-door coupe with individual Pullman type front seats. The finish is a Deep Maroon, the upholstery is like new and the tires are in perfect shape. It is equipped with trunk, sun visor, automatic windshield cleaner, bumper and lock-tight motometer. Mechanically right. We doubt if there is a more attractive coupe in Chicago. Of course, every mechanical detail has been put in the best condition.

The above are but two examples of our many exceptional buys. We are able to offer you very good values in miscellaneous makes as well as Peerless.

WITH EVERY ONE OF THESE GREATEST AUTOMOBILE BARGAINS EVER OFFERED

Rickenbacker sales have been phenomenal. We are overstocked with "trade ins" and must clear our floors. The price has been slashed on every used car. They're cheaper now than in the spring. Buy now and save money.

OUR POLICY,

established 15 years ago, is to give full value to every customer. It is our belief that in this sale we are giving values that cannot be equaled by us or any one else during the next six months.

Every car carries our guaranteed pedigree and 100 gallons of gas, free.

Chandler Sedan, 1922. Willoughby Body—This is a special 7 pass. sedan body, built to order by one of America's best body builders. This car is very attractive, due to its roomy, beautiful lines. The all aluminum body has a built-in panel around the waist line, permitting it to be finished in two shades of maroon. The interior is fully upholstered in fine gray broadcloth, including two footstools. This entire equipment, when new last year, cost $3,750. Price $1,450

Auburn Coupe, 1922—This car has always received such good care that we really believe it to be in new car condition—in fact, we don't think a new one will run better. The Continental 6 cyl. motor runs silent at all speeds; car is refinished in dark colors, equipped with 5 cord tires, wire wheels, shock absorbers, spotlight, motometer with lock, and steering post lock. Do not fail to get a demonstration. Price low, at $1,295

Chandler 1922 Coupe—genuine 4 passenger coupe. An ideal closed car for the person who objects to needless room and weight. This car was traded in by the original purchaser on a sedan, with no detail of the finish inside or out. We have just refinished it in dark blue with fine gold striping. We doubt if there is a more attractive coupe in Chicago. Of course, every mechanical detail has been put in the best condition.

Coloroto Magazine

Henry C. Rowland's new serial "TO THE STRONG —THE FAIR" begins in this issue

Heather McGraw, the Heroine, and Enid, Her Maid, in the new Blue Ribbon Serial beginning in this number

What some women travel 3300 miles to see you find just around the corner

On the Riviera, in Paris, wherever fashionable society meets, Butterick's style expert is noting what is worn.

The lure of Paris, where fashions are born! Season after season that city of great dressmakers is thronged with women who have arrived to see what new fashions are being launched. Then on from Paris to some watering place where society wears the fashions it has favored!

That new costume coat, those blouses lovely and Russian, just introduced in Paris by great couturieres, the frocks that are making a fairy-land of Monte Carlo's great casino, the fashions that have won success,—immediately there is a Butterick pattern for every one of them!

With each one of them you find, too, the secret of its perfection. Open your Butterick pattern—there in the Deltor are the style secrets of the world's fashion centers!

With lightning speed the foreign staffs of Butterick send news of just how each vagary of the new mode is accomplished. The new silhouette that so closely wraps the hips, the minaret flare of the new Russian tunic blouse—the Deltor shows you every skillful stitch. The new fashions are simplicity itself with the Deltor.

Quickly, deftly, you lay out your pattern following the Deltor's individual cutting layout. Because it is made by experts to meet your exact needs it saves you from ¼ to 1⅜ yards on everything you make.

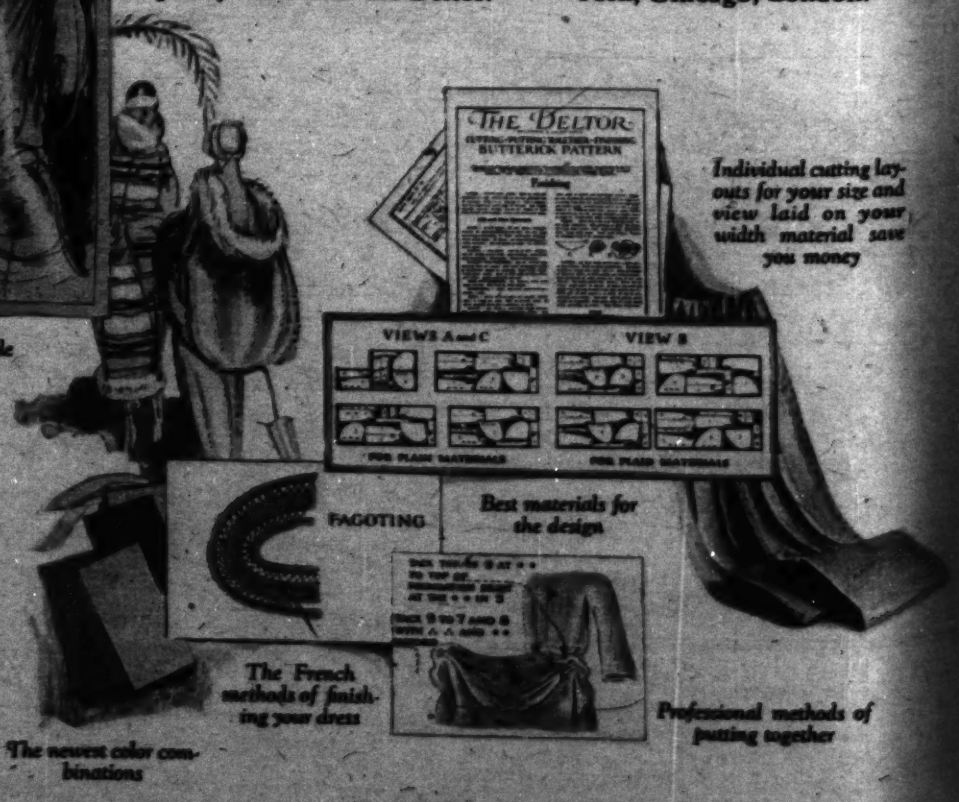
The new close hip effect that your friends despair of, you achieve with the utmost success because you have the Deltor. You know exactly what to do and how a professional would do it—the Deltor shows you.

And the finish of your dress is the envy of your friends. You use fur, velvet, metal lace, the new large plaids just as the French do,—the Deltor shows you.

From beginning to end the Deltor gives you the complete guidance the new styles demand if they are to look right when done. No other pattern gives you this service. Butterick, Paris, New York, Chicago, London.

Eventually no woman will use a pattern at any price that does not give this service

The general cutting chart and general directions most patterns give you are not enough today. For women now know how much time and money the individual cutting layout saves them. They know the helpfulness of the combinations, and have seen the difference in the look of a dress when it is made with the complete putting together and finishing directions the Deltor gives them. They will not tolerate the average pattern with its perfunctory general directions. They demand their money's worth when they buy a pattern — they ask for the Deltor.



BUTTERICK PATTERNS WITH THE DELTOR

BUTTERICK FASHIONS FEATURED EACH MONTH IN THE DELINEATOR

LIFE-LINE ROBS ROARING SEAS of many victims. Two of the crew perished when a trawler, the Imperial Prince, was wrecked off Aberdeen, Scotland. For twelve hours the other sailors clung to the mast, fighting for life in the angry waters. Rescuers ashore were unable to reach them, but a life line shot by a rocket finally brought in the stranded men.

AMPHIBIOUS WAR TANK is Uncle Sam's latest fighting car. This armored land-and-water tractor thunders over streams and rivers as easily as it crushes its way over trees and stumps, through broken fields and shell-torn lands.

Weighted Silk is full sister to shoddy. It looks good—but oh, how frail it is! Between the pure unweighted silk of Kayser and the poor and weighted silk of other underwear is all the difference between wearing and wearing out. All Kayser products are absolutely pure-dyed. No weighting; therefore, long wear.

Kayser Marvelfit Bloomers give double the wear of ordinary bloomers because Kayser Marvelfit stretches to every movement of the wearer and lasts as long as the bloomers themselves.

"I was mentally censuring myself for a forty-eight-year-old fool," writes Dean J. Rice, of 657 West First South Street, Salt Lake City. "The firm's advertisement had been explicit in stating that no applicant over thirty years of age would be considered."

And yet, to his surprise, he was chosen for the position, from seventeen applicants—and on account of his personal appearance.

"A victim of stomach and intestinal derangement with all the associate troubles—sallow skin, yellow tinged eyes, etc., I sneered at the idea of yeast doing what medicine had failed to do, but fell for the 'fad', as I called it, and in less than three months became the miracle of the neighborhood. Not only did I 'come back' to where I had been, but I went further—I became rejuvenated."

"By profession I am an engineer," writes W. B. Boggs, of 1012—13th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

"I lead the typical nerve-producing American existence, rushing from one activity to another, with no opportunity to select the proper vitalizing foods. When I returned from trips I was run down and became a sufferer from boils and had to undergo great agony. Now when I return I at once begin a regular course of treatment with Fleischmann's Yeast Cakes. I quickly regain my strength, and boils are a thing of the past. I wouldn't be without Fleischmann's Yeast for anything. I consider its use, as a vitalizer, is one of the great discoveries of the day."

"All my life," runs a letter from Mrs. Hugo V. Bolin of Ponca City, Oklahoma, "I have been constantly annoyed with indigestion and a cankered, sore mouth—caused by acidity of the stomach. The only relief was to burn my mouth with caustic, which was very painful, and a temporary relief only. From the first week I commenced the use of Fleischmann's Yeast I noticed a great difference in my digestion.

"Fleischmann's Yeast has effected a permanent cure of my stomach and mouth troubles, and I consider Yeast as much a necessity as a toothbrush or my bath."

"Since childhood," writes F. A. Christopherson, of Fresno, California, "I have had to resort to taking salts every two weeks to relieve constipation.

"It was very seldom that I had a natural, healthy appetite. A night never passed that I would sleep soundly." Then he started eating Fleischmann's Yeast. "My appetite began to increase, and my constipation gave way gradually to a healthy, regular, daily discharge of waste. As a consequence, my mind is clearer, I am free from headaches, and breakfast tastes equally as good as any other meal of the day."

Clear, colorful skin—digestion like a healthy baby's—easy, regular elimination of waste—they can be yours!

Every one of these remarkable letters is typical of thousands of similar tributes to the power of Fleischmann's Yeast.

People who have suffered agonies with digestive disorders—who have fought for years against constipation—whose appearance was ruined by unsightly eruptions of pimples and boils have found in Yeast an almost magical relief.

It is easy to see why.

While of course many such cases demand immediate medical or surgical aid, most of them are due simply to wrong habits of living and eating. The intestinal tract gets sluggish and weak—unable to remove the waste matter properly—and so the whole body is flooded with poisons. The blood may become impoverished and so affect the skin. The digestive organs may break down.

Regular eating of 2 or 3 cakes a day of Fleischmann's Yeast means attacking the trouble at its source. The millions of tiny living cells in each yeast cake make digestion easy, and give the intestinal muscles regular, healthy exercise. Rich in vitamins and proteins, the Yeast also increases the white corpuscles in the blood and tones up the entire system. Vigorous, glowing health is the result.

Remember that Fleischmann's Yeast for Health comes only in the tinfoil wrapper and cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Eat it before or between meals, plain or in fruit juices, or spread on crackers or on bread, whichever you prefer. One of the Beauty Secrets of Well-bred Women

How Famous Actresses Hold their Youth

Actresses and other women noted for their well-groomed appearance now add the finishing touch to a perfect toilette with a delicate fragrance. Subtle, alluring, it seems to envelope them with an atmosphere of distinction at once well-bred and refined. For this no fragrance is more agreeable—more effective—more delightful—than the marvelously delicate perfume of Mavis Toilet Water—master creation of that master beauty scientist, Monsieur Vivaudou.

Its constant, daily use marks the woman of breeding and refinement—the woman who knows, and who does, "the correct thing" always.

She keeps a bottle of MAVIS Toilet Water constantly upon her dressing table. A little is put in her bath water. Often she uses it instead of heavier perfume. A few drops on hands, or face, is most refreshing. Its alluring fragrance adds witchery to beauty—the correct finishing touch for correct appearance always.

Would you share this distinction? Then ask at the toilet counters, in best department and drug stores, for MAVIS Toilet Water—the marvelous. You'll find all the sales people know it well and recommend it highly. And it costs no more than common toilet waters. Two sizes—$1 and $2.

FIRST INSTALLMENT.

The Cry in the Night.

IT was nine o'clock of a muggy night in August when Alexander MacCall drove up the gentle ascent of driveway entering the McGraw property, a new and handsome one on the north shore of Long Island's sound.

Perhaps the best introduction of MacCall would be to say that about all of the people whom he liked and accepted as equals called him "Sandy," while no person of whatever caste whom he did not like ever called him Sandy but once. The degree of friendship or acquaintanceship had not much to do with his attitude toward this familiarity. It depended entirely upon his quick estimate of the one to employ it. The line of demarcation between the complimentary and uncomplimentary use of a nickname is so subtle that there are only two ways of playing safe. One is where the mutual conviction of friendliness is so pronounced as not to be mistaken, and the other is the frank proposal of it.

The man upon whom Sandy was going to call was a comparatively recent acquaintance named David McGraw. For a good many years Mr. McGraw had been a builder and general contractor very active in developing the shore estates of that region, near the eastern end of the sound, and he had recently incorporated a realty company of which he was the president. He was said to have made a great deal of money in war contracts, but nobody seemed to hold this against him.

Sandy had been sent down to the locality early in the season to superintend the construction of two costly country houses with the plans and specifications of which he had most to do. He was an architect of sound ability, with a Beaux-Arts training that had been interrupted by the war and completed later. The firm with which he was at present associated was an old established one, and his prospects of advancement were rather more than promising. The work on which he was at present engaged would soon be completed, when Sandy would return to the New York office. But before his departure there were two important decisions quite apart from business interests that he desired to have rendered. One of these was Mr. McGraw's approval of Sandy as a prospective son-in-law and husband of his only daughter, Heather, and the second was Heather's own acceptance of this proposal. It was characteristic of Sandy and his methods that, contrary to the usual American procedure, he preferred to obtain the indorsement of the father first.

He now drew up under the wide porte-cochère, considerately allowing space for the next car that might arrive, and, on ringing, the door was opened by a butler whose personality was striking for such a domestic functionary. Sandy had often wondered a little about this man who bore the Spanish name of Luis Garmandia and claimed to be a Filipino. His tall, slender figure, pale olive complexion, and high Hidalgo features suggested rather a grandee of old Spain, and this idea was enhanced by a certain courtliness and dignity of manner that was neither stiff and superior nor yet precisely of the menial sort. Sandy had reflected it was perfectly possible to be a Filipino and at the same time possess a full quota of Hidalgo corpuscles. Both the conquistadores and their successors had been generous in the dissemination of these.

Luis in his lofty manner said Mr. McGraw was expecting Sandy and desired him to go right into his study. Sandy had telephoned to ask if he might call, knowing that Heather had gone to spend the week's end with friends and neighbors not far away who were giving a house party. This was a family named Talbot, one of the daughters a schoolmate of Heather and the uncle of this girl a rich bachelor of early middle age, her devoted cavalier. It was partly owing to the attentions of this gentleman that Sandy felt he could afford to lose no time.

McGraw welcomed Sandy cordially. He was a thickset man of medium height with a square, determined face and keen gray eyes that might not have been without the redeeming suggestion of humor if it were not for the worried, almost furtive look that for some weeks past had haunted them. It stamped what should have been a hearty, jolly face with an expression that might be labeled by the physiognomist "financial anxiety." Yet so far as anybody knew McGraw had no cause for this. His new company gave every evidence of being a going concern.

McGraw had always shown himself most friendly to Sandy, seeming to like his type of modest young man who was yet of a certain mature sense, self-reliance, and sound common sense. The "Macs" are apt to hang together.

Sandy came now frankly and directly to the object of his call. McGraw listened to him unmoved except perhaps for a slight augmentation of the hunted look about his eyes.

"Then you and Heather have decided that you want to marry?" he asked in a voice that had a slight inherited Scotch-Irish inflection.

"I don't know about Heather, sir. I haven't asked her yet."

McGraw looked really surprised at this.

"The deuce you say! Where do you get that old country idea that the father is of some importance?"

"I think I'd feel that way about it, sir, if she were my daughter."

"Have you good reason to think she will consent to marry you?" McGraw asked a little eagerly.

"Nothing definite, Mr. McGraw. I'd rather wait a little longer before asking her, but my work here is nearly finished and I want to find out where I stand before I leave."

McGraw lighted a fresh cigar, then leaned back, clasped his hands behind his head, and stared thoughtfully at Sandy.

"Sometimes I feel as if I did not know my daughter very well. I couldn't say what ambitions she may have; social ones I mean. I worked my way up through the ranks and have been able to give her a good deal from the time that she was little. But she may be wanting more than that now that she is grown. Fashionable schools and the gay stylish folk she runs with might put her off marrying a young man like yourself who has still his way to make. No doubt your connections are as good as any, but she is talking just now a good deal about this Mr. Eugene Talbot. He seems to want to marry her and he could give her the whole works."

"Do you think that would be a happy marriage for her?" Sandy asked.

"I don't know. It's all a gamble anyhow, and there is a good deal of bunk about marriages being unhappy unless the two are much in love. The money and position are apt to outlast the love, especially when the wife is fretting for those things. These matrimonial shipwrecks are over advertised like crime. The happy ones are not reported, any more than the doings of the great mass of us honest folk."

HE seemed to be launched on to what Sandy had heard him discuss several times before and which it struck him was a sort of favorite topic with McGraw, or obsession. This was an invective of the sensational press in its exploitation and exaggeration of the prevalence of criminals, all sorts and their various operations as reported. McGraw seemed to make a personal grievance of it, attacking the reportorial system with the animosity shown by certain people against spiritistic research, or even the bitter attack of a somewhat insecure but professed infidel on any sort of orthodox religion.

It seemed now to Sandy, listening with some impatience, that McGraw might be not only indulging what was a sort of fad with him but at the same time attempting to shelve the real object of the interview, to stall Sandy's request for a definite answer. The man appeared to be wound up, destined to run on indefinitely unless sharply interrupted. And then, as Sandy was turning in his mind the best way of making such an interruption, the service was rendered for him in a startling way.

There came from some part of the house, or else outside it, a piercing but syncopated scream. It was a horrid sound, starting as if in mortal pain or terror or both, to be abruptly stilled when at its anguished crescendo.

Both men sprang up, startled, astonished, even appalled. There had been about that scream a quality that fortunately is seldom heard by most of us, but when heard can never be forgotten; the sort of scream that goes only with fatal circumstance or horrid fear. And possibly the silence that immediately followed was even more frightful in its suggestion of a violent and brutal interruption that would leave no means of repetition.

Sandy, to whom it seemed that the shriek had come from without, rushed to the screened door of the French window and threw it open. McGraw, differently minded as to direction, plunged out into the library and on to the rear of the house. The Filipino butler Luis looked up startled from his dishwashing as the master burst through the swinging door.

"Did you hear that scream?" Mr. McGraw demanded.

The butler turned off the hot water that was drumming into the copper sink. "What, sir?" he asked.

McGraw repeated his question impatiently. Luis shook his head. "No, sir. The water makes too much noise."

McGraw surged on through into the kitchen. The cook, a Frenchwoman, Bordelaise, had her ears stuffed with cotton, which seemed to be a part of the national costume of her class. There was also a young girl, an aide de cuisine, a niece of the cook's, pretty in a dark, swarthy way but not conspicuously bright. These two looked at the master questioningly.

"Did you hear a scream, Victorine?" asked McGraw.

Victorine slanted her head inquiringly. McGraw observed the cotton and turned with growing impatience to the girl. "You hear anything?" he demanded, "somebody holler?"

"O no, monsieur," stammered the girl with a frightened curtsey, wiping her hands on her apron. She, too, had evidently been dish wrangling in the kitchen sink. With a snort of disgust McGraw plunged on through the kitchen and out the back door followed by Victorine's astonished "Tiens! Tiens!"

Going round the corner of the house, he ran into Sandy, who had been scouting about. "Find anything?" McGraw rasped.

"Not a soul."

"Well, it beats the band that anybody should let out a screech like that for nothing. Sounded like a death yell—as if a woman had got stabbed or something."

"Yes, and the way it was cut off. Seemed to me to come from the rose garden."

"You hear somebody holler?"

"I thought it was somewhere in the rear. That top lofty butler of mine never heard it, nor those two hen heads in the kitchen."

"Who else is in the house?" Sandy asked.

"There's Katie, the housemaid, and Heather's maid, Enid. Haven't had her long. It's Katie's evening off."

"Then we'd better locate Enid."

They went back into the study. McGraw rang and immediately Luis came in. He had once or twice occurred to Sandy that all this servant required were the props to make him a perfect Latin movies type. Whether hero or villain, one could scarcely say which.

"Go find Miss Heather's maid, Enid, and ask her if she screamed or heard a scream," McGraw ordered petulantly. His nerves had received a shock.

"Yes, sir——" Luis spoke perfect English, scarcely accented. He had come to McGraw with a high recommendation from a retired army officer of independent means living abroad. He now slipped out.

"It's got to be Enid," McGraw muttered. "I'd say at a guess she'd been walking around taking the air and something scared her."

"It sounded worse than a scare," Sandy said, "as if she'd been grabbed."

"Well, I don't know who could have grabbed her. My chauffeur, James, took Katie to the movies, and besides he's a steady lad and no grabber."

McGraw sprang suddenly to his feet. The study in which they were sitting, practically a home office, gave on to the dining room, beyond which was a big hall or living room, and beyond that the library and billiard room. McGraw bolted off in that direction, and a moment later Sandy heard him calling in a singular tone. He hurried through the house to find McGraw in the library staring at an open panel that concealed a good, modern house safe.

McGraw's face was white and tense. "Cleaned out," he whispered. "While we were jawing in there."

A chill struck through Sandy. That explained it. The thief ran on to Enid and—and——

He started for the door, then checked himself. "You phone for the police. I'll go look for the girl."

"I'll go with you," McGraw said. "Better not lose any time."

McGraw seemed to hesitate, then with a muttered word to the effect that the police could wait, went out with Sandy. As they reached the door Luis came down the stairs.

"I cannot find the maid, sir."

"Come help look for her outside," McGraw ordered. "That scream came from outdoors." He had closed the panel and as he spoke he gave Sandy a nudge as if in admonition to say nothing about the robbery.

It was not a dark night. They searched the lawns and gardens without result, separating to do so more speedily. Not a trace was to be found of the missing maid nor anything that might furnish a clew as to what had happened her.

In the course of this search, which the openness of the grounds made quickly thorough, Sandy caught sight of McGraw from time to time but saw nothing of Luis. Then, meeting McGraw at the far end of the house, the latter said:

"I'd say there were two or three of them, and that they silenced the girl and took her along to gain time."

"Looks that way."

"Very likely. Clapped something over her mouth, then scared her into silence."

"Let's hope it was nothing worse. Did they get much?"

"Most of Heathers' jewels—not such a haul."

McGraw's voice was thick. "I'm more worried about the girl."

"We'd better send in an alarm with as little loss of time."

"Of course." They went back into the study and McGraw reached for the telephone on his desk. Then, holding the instrument and without taking down the receiver, he said to Sandy: "Run down to the float and see if the two launches are there."

"All right, sir."

Sandy started out through the dining room. As he did so McGraw took down the receiver and said: "Give me the police station."

His back was turned to Sandy, who as he left the room happened to glance at a mirror that was over a console in a niche by the door. A rear quartering view of McGraw was reflected, the image bright and distinct. In that brief glimpse Sandy observed that McGraw was speaking not into the telephone but against the back of a thick hand that was pressed firmly over the mouthpiece.

SANDY continued on his way down the path that led to the boathouse and landing. Half way down the gentle slope he met Luis coming up.

"Are the boats all there?" Sandy asked.

"Y—yes, sir——" Luis was slightly breathless.

"Run up to the house and get me an electric torch," Sandy said.

"R-right away, sir." Luis hurried past him. Sandy stood looking after him. The man had not been running up the path. But he was breathing as hard as a sprinter at the end of a hundred yard dash—or as if he had just carried a trunk up two flights of stairs. Luis did not seem the sort of person to course madly about the grounds in search of a girl he had been given no reason to suppose was in any serious danger. Any girl might scream if startled in the dark by a cat or rat or a toad under the feet. Mr. McGraw had said nothing to the butler of a theft, or of the character of Enid's scream. Yet here was Luis out of breath, and there was McGraw making pretense to Sandy of calling the police.

Sandy stood and thought. Luis came hurrying back with a searchlight. As Sandy took it he asked, "Where did you look for Enid?"

"Down by the landing, sir. She likes to row and I thought she might have fallen overboard, but the boats have not been touched."

"Did you hear any boat?" Sandy asked.

"Yes, sir—but not close up. Somebody passing by. A good many boats pass by."

Sandy started down the path. It was of pretty white gravel, not very steep. Flashing his light in front of him, he examined the surface. Luis followed at his elbow. Then suddenly Sandy cut off the light and paused.

"Go tell Mr. McGraw that the boats are all there."

They were by this time within about fifty yards of the boathouse, this an ornamental as well as practical feature that served the double purpose of housing the launches when hauled out for the winter and as a bathhouse in the summer months, when the boats were at their moorings.

"Very good, sir," Luis answered, but not in his habitual softly modulated voice. It was loud, almost strident, as though Sandy had been not just in front of him but at some little distance on the float, for instance, or at the boathouse.

He turned then and went back through the darkness to the house. Sandy stood perfectly still, his back to Luis. The man had gone perhaps thirty yards when Sandy moved slowly forward. He took three steps, then shoved the button of the torch and, turning, flashed it after Luis. For the fraction of a second Sandy caught the white sheen of the butler's face, turned back in his direction, before it was whisked round again.

As if making a general survey with the aid of the torch, Sandy directed it on all sides, then briefly down at his feet. The white gravel was scored as if from the foot of a heavy person who had made a misstep. Luis might have made it in running rapidly down to the float, if he had been for any reason impelled to run rapidly down to the float. Anybody else might have made it in the course of the day.

Sandy moved on slowly as if expecting a summons, a recall. It came in about the time required by Luis to go into the house and to Mr. McGraw's office.

"Hi—Sandy!" Mr. McGraw called from the terrace.

"Yes, sir——"

"Run me over to town, will you?"

This would appear both a reasonable and a proper request—but for the fact that Sandy had seen McGraw's thick hand against the mouthpiece of the telephone. Having fortuitously observed this act enabled Sandy to divine just what was going to happen. He was not surprised when McGraw said: "I'd rather not talk about this over the phone. Too much listening in on these suburban lines."

"Nervy thing for a thief to walk in and help himself at nine o'clock while we were sitting there talking," Sandy observed.

"Well, it was the easiest time when you stop to think. House not yet locked up for the night, the pair of us located in a far corner of it, the servants crashing the dishes in the pantry and kitchen so as to deaden any suspicious sound, and nobody would notice a slight noise anyhow with all hands stirring about. He did his job easily, then when slipping away ran foul of Enid, who was walking around to take the air. Enid is startled and lets out a yell, and he or they grab her and clap a hand over her mouth and rush her off under threat to keep quiet."

"That scream had a bad sound," Sandy said.

—a sinister suggestion in the limpness of this burden.

"Yes, but so any girl's would have, if grabbed suddenly in the dark. I really doubt if she's been hurt. The job wasn't big enough to warrant murder. They probably had a quietly running car some little distance away."

"Or a rowboat possibly," Sandy suggested.

"No, I don't think so. Luis thought of that and ran down to the float. There's always a sheen on the water and he could have seen a boat. Well, let's go."

They walked out to the garage. Sandy's car was of the same popular make as one that Mr. McGraw was in the habit of driving himself. As they were about to get into it Sandy said. "What if you were to drive in and make your report while I stick around here on the off chance of Enid's turning up or anything happening?"

To his surprise, McGraw agreed immediately, almost eagerly, to this suggestion. It was as if he were relieved at having it offered and that he desired to make his report without Sandy's checking up of it, or possibly not to make it at all.

"That might be better," McGraw acquiesced. "With burglars about there ought to be a man here. You can wait in the study. I won't be gone long."

"Didn't the police want to come when you phoned?" Sandy asked.

"Well, it seemed better to watch the roads. There's nothing to find here. I'll run along."

He started off. Sandy, looking after him, observed that he paused for a moment at the front door, and in the light under the porte-cochère Sandy saw Luis come out and stand for a moment as if listening to some order. This was brief, and Sandy thought he could guess its import.

Sandy went slowly back to the house and into the study by one of the French window doors. He was not surprised that Luis came into the dining room and began to potter about as if setting in order a room that Sandy had observed to be already in perfect order. Then when Sandy had settled himself with a magazine and a cigaret Luis removed what might have seemed to be a surveillance, slipping out silently.

Sandy acted quickly then. His chair was so placed as not to be visible to a person looking through the door of the study from farther back in the house. He rose and with a silent step let himself out, taking care that the screen door made no noise at all. He hurried across the lawn and, making a wide detour, approached the boathouse from its far side. The little building was flat roofed, with an upper story entirely open, equipped with a hammock couch and wicker chairs and table for taking tea al fresco. It was built up on concrete piling with a set of permanent ways for hauling in the boats by means of a winch and tackle. But the tide was well out, so that one could walk under it by stooping a little.

This Sandy now did, pawing his way cautiously in the murk and careful of his footing on the weedy, slimy stones. He stood then listening intently, and he had been there but a few moments when he heard the slightest creaking overhead, as if some person just above had altered his (or her) position.

That would be Enid. Sandy had observed this girl briefly, but with interest, when calling on Heather. Any man would have observed Enid with interest because of her uncommon fresh tinted prettiness and for the distinct impression she gave of being or having been at some time decidedly above the position of lady's maid. She looked rather as one might picture the daughter of an English country squire, a girl with plenty of spirit but disciplined by the august males of the manor, rosy but demure, and trained to anticipate and fulfill the demands of a domineering father and brothers. There was precisely such a suggestion about the way in which she performed her domestic service. She was alert, smiling, respectful, and there was a smartness to her movements that had nothing of that bid for admiring attention often to be found in such soubrettes.

AS Sandy now focused his mind on Enid, whom hitherto he had merely noticed with a detached admiring approval, he began to wonder if possibly her involvement in the affair was entirely that of fortuitous victim. It would seem as if such a skilled cracksman as the one to open the safe ought to have been able to locate a girl walking about the grounds, and to avoid her. She might, of course, have been the dupe of criminals, slipped out to keep a tryst with a beau whom she thought to be an honest young man, leaving the door or window unlocked for the entrance of a confederate. Something then arousing her suspicion, she might have tried to go back into the house and been seized.

The whole business looked fishy to Sandy. McGraw's fake telephoning for the police, his evident relief at Sandy's offering to remain. There was no sense in that when one stopped to think, no good in guarding the stable door when the horse has been stolen. Burglars, having robbed a safe, would not linger about the premises any longer than was necessary to get away undiscovered.

The butler's breathlessness as he came up the steps could be reasonably explained if he told the truth in saying that he had thought of Enid's having possibly fallen overboard, off the float, or out of the boat when stepping into it. But there had been something stealthy in his way of pausing and looking back as if to keep an eye on Sandy's movements. Also it was too late for him to have been washing dishes and drumming the water in the pantry sink. McGraw had dined alone and there would not be much to wash, though Luis might, of course, have eaten his own dinner before cleaning up.

Sandy was nevertheless convinced that Luis was criminally involved in the affair and that Enid had played some part in it, whether an active one or that of passive accessory. Her scream might have been checked on recognition of her captor.

Thinking, then, of the worried aspect of McGraw, that he had observed for some weeks past, a fresh doubt entered Sandy's mind. Persons in financial difficulty had been known to rig robberies of their own jewels and other valuables. The secret service of burglar insurance was continually showing up such cases.

Assailed by these doubts, Sandy decided to go about his investigations with deliberation. It struck him that if McGraw were up to any such bad business he might have welcomed Sandy's own presence there as a witness of whom the testimony would tend to prove a bona fide robbery. Sandy thought of Heather's absence for the week's end and it occurred to him also that McGraw had stalled along in an aimless sort of fashion, considering the object of his visitor's call, putting this off with an irrelevant dissertation on the exaggerated reports of criminal operations.

It all looked worse and worse to Sandy and it made him hesitate in such vigorous action as otherwise he would have felt bound to pursue. He now felt sure that Enid was in the boathouse, probably unhurt, either frightened into silence or voluntarily preserving it. And if McGraw had actually framed this robbery of his safe Sandy had no wish to expose him. For one thing, it was none of his business to expose him, and for another he was under obligation to McGraw for past kindnesses and professional recommendation. There was also Heather to consider. Sandy was as much in love with Heather as it is possible for a young man to be with a girl whose claim upon his sentiment is limited to admiration.

She was of the physical type that had always most appealed to him, and he attributed her with spiritual and mental traits to correspond with the material ones that were so obvious. Actually he liked and admired her tremendously and he had come to the decision that he ardently desired to marry her. He was, in fact, persuaded that he loved her and would have denied what a wiser person would have told him, that he could not possibly be yet in love with her for the simple reason that he did not know her well enough. Her real state of soul was a book that he had only glimpsed from such pages as remained uncut. But the last thing he desired now was to plunge her father into any sort of difficulty or disgrace. Whether McGraw turned out to be honest or dishonest, sheer rogue or merely a desperately driven man, Sandy was prepared to defend and to help him to the extent of his ability. He did not carry his own personal scruples to the point of feeling compelled to expose or even to refuse assistance to a dishonest man who had befriended him.

This must be remembered in view of what now immediately happened and which under different circumstances would not have depicted Sandy as a brilliant hero and champion of a damsel in distress. He was hampered by his reluctance to take any strong course of action that might result disastrously for McGraw.

AS he stood under the boathouse listening acutely there came the faint crunch of footsteps on the gravel path, then the slither of felt shod feet on the short runway that led across from the brim of the bank to the door. This opened softly, then closed again. Through the floor planking Sandy was able to detect the murmur of voices in low and rapid conversation. Although he had not caught sight of the man who had just entered, Sandy knew it must be Luis, so that his suspicion was now verified.

The door opened again and Luis came out. He was over Sandy's head and invisible. Pausing on the threshold, he said to whoever it was inside guarding Enid, "Monday night." Sandy recognised the soft, vibrant voice as that of the butler.

Luis then passed around to the path that led to the jetty and down the slanting runway to the float. This brought him on Sandy's level, the tide being far out, and even in the darkness the man's maneuvers were discernible. He hauled the long speed launch up to the float, got aboard it, and appeared to be looking over the motor. Then, getting out, he cast off the painter of a cedar rowboat, the dinghey of McGraw's sea-going forty foot yawl rigged auxiliary yacht, a fine, stanch cruiser. McGraw was an experienced yachtsman, and he and Heather went frequently to Newport or Bar Harbor or some other point for cruises of ten days or a fortnight, their crew being only James the chauffeur and the butler to officiate as steward. The winter before they had worked south to Florida and the Bahamas with this boat.

Luis now took the painter of the dinghey and caught a few turns on the stern sheet cleat of the launch. Somebody evidently—and it was not hard to guess who—was about to make a run somewhere. Towing the rowboat seemed to suggest the intention to land at a point along the shore where it might be difficult to get off from the deeper drafted launch. Luis, having now got everything in readiness for this voyage, went back up to the house without stopping again at the boathouse.

Sandy felt himself compelled to take some drastic action. Whether McGraw was innocent or guilty of connivance with the affair, Sandy could scarcely stand by idly while a young and helpless girl, or even possibly the corpse of such, was carried off before his eyes. He did not think it probable that Enid had been seriously hurt or that any harm was intended her. The chances were, he thought, that the object of this abduction was to land her at some point sufficiently remote to give the thieves ample time to make their escape. Or perhaps they intended to hold her prisoner until "Monday night." The butler's parting words would seem to indicate this course. It was now Saturday night.

Sandy stooped and, putting down his feet with care so as not to slip or scuffle on the slimy stones, moved stealthily under the runway until he came to where three steps led down to it from the path on the brim of the bank. The short bridge was at this point about chest high, the beach mounting slightly. It seemed to Sandy that his best plan for interference would be to rise suddenly from under the runway, grab the legs of Enid's captor out from under him, and drag him under the rail, then to deal with him as conditions might require. Sandy was a powerful young man of little more than medium height, broad of shoulder, in good training, and he had been from boyhood an all round athlete, boxer, and wrestler.

He would, in fact, have welcomed this scuffle in so just a cause if it had not been for the uncomfortable feeling that he might be thereby rendering anything but a service to McGraw. So much the worse. Whatever his game might be, McGraw had no business to include in it manhandling and kidnaping of a young girl in the service of his house, and whose person he was bound in all decency to protect.

Sandy had not long to wait. The door of the boathouse swung open with a faint creak of hinges. Sandy shoved up his head a little to look. What he saw then sent a thrill of apprehension through him. A dark figure came edging out, carrying the body of the girl flung over one shoulder. Even in the murk there was a sinister suggestion in the limpness of this burden.

Sandy rose up a little. He was almost against a projecting spur of rock behind which was a dark, deep fissure. As he now waited, all set and tense to tackle this thing stealing off with the dead or living body of his victim, there came at Sandy's shoulder a sudden rustle. Then a low, husky voice, in the intonation of the slums and dives, said hoarsely: "Stick 'em up—and quick."

How Could Johnnie, the Poor Archaeologist, Hope to Win Fern—the Brilliant, Exquisite Fern—to Whom Thousands of Dollars Seemed As Just So Many Pennies?

IT embarrassed Johnnie Conover that he had let Lawrence Mallory know he was staying on in Manitou. It embarrassed him that he had met Lawrence at all; for from their earliest acquaintance Johnnie had always disliked him. At Stanford university their paths had constantly crossed; but their interests were worlds apart.

Lawrence went in for belles lettres and queening and Johnnie for science and sports. After their introduction at the freshman reception Lawrence had immediately been pledged by the richest and loudest of the fraternities; it was well into his junior year before Johnnie, whose eastern connections had gradually leaked out, was rushed by a fraternity at all; and then he had remained a barb on principal. For four years, passing each other on the squad, they had exchanged the perfunctory Stanford "Hello!" Sitting beside each other in the electric car leading to Palo Alto or returning to the university, their passing words had been shorn to the barest possible brevity. Indeed, Johnnie Conover had entirely forgotten, if he ever knew, that Lawrence Mallory belonged to the Colorado crowd and lived in Colorado Springs. Johnnie had come by flivver to Colorado Springs for a summer vacation which he had contributed to archaeological research in the Mesa Verde. He had spent the night at the public camp in Manitou; and when he met Lawrence he was scuttling about, making the purchases inevitable after two months in the wilds.

"Come over to our place this afternoon, won't you?" Lawrence Mallory had said unexpectedly. "We have a cousin from the east—from Vermont—staying at Hotel Wideawath that I want you to meet. She got in this morning and we're giving a little tea for her and dinner. It's too late to invite you to dinner. The table's filled. But my mother would like very much to see you at the tea."

Johnnie marveled at this sudden cordiality. The reason for it, as he afterwards discovered, lay in a long overdue bunch of mail which he had just received from the Colorado Springs postoffice. The Masonaita, the Stanford magazine, to which of course Lawrence would be a subscriber, contained a long account of his five years' archaeological labor in Assyria; in Ceylon; especially of a brilliant find he had made in Yucatan.

"Thanks! It's very kind of you," Johnnie accepted formally.

"I couldn't go to dinner, however. I have no dress clothes with me." Johnnie got the impression that Lawrence inhibited just in time an accent of his eyebrows. He reflected swiftly that it was not Lawrence's cold, correct, stout-ish handsomeness to which he most objected, but that trick of the eyebrows. It would be like Lawrence to think that a man could tour the country in a flivver and yet carry with him clothes for every occasion.

"We're not so awfully formal," Lawrence reassured him. "Everything goes here at the Springs—except, of course, at dinner."

Johnnie returned to the camp; ate his frugal lunch at a cafeteria in the gay, crowded, spectacular little town; lolled about the early part of the afternoon reading and amplifying his notes. He had intended to go to the Garden of the Gods that afternoon, but somehow his mood of high anticipation—for Johnnie was an artist as well as an archaeologist—had burst. He would flivver over to the Garden early tomorrow; get his first glimpse at sunrise, or better, late that night, when there would be a moon.

As he entered the wide house that afternoon two girls, who had just turned on the upper landing, came down the stairway toward him. Back of them the high landing window let in a pour of brilliant Colorado sunshine. The girl on the right it irradiated spectacularly. It turned her bobbed red fuzz to a golden aureole, her sea-green gown into a wave that had wrapped its foamy fragility about a statue of marble. The girl on the left—

It could do nothing spectacular to the girl on the left, although it ran over the elegant little head, like a golden liquid unsuccessfully seeking a crevice in the close dark hair; then dropped off in pale shimmers. Her skin was without color and the consistency of a thick cream. Her eyes, rather long but the greenest of jade, dropped a slow, richly-lashed glance. Her teeth had a pearly—was it phosphorescence? And the limpid scarlet of her lips! She wore white. Not transparent—lustrous. She was slim.

Lawrence appeared in one of the several doors which opened into the big, square hall. The bobbed, red-haired girl with an airy "Hullo, old scout!" disappeared at the left. "Ah, there you are, Johnnie!" Lawrence said. "Let me introduce you to my cousin, Miss Gray."

Johnnie bowed; murmured something. Miss Gray bowed—no, she produced a frosty movement of the head; murmured nothing. The three joined into a group and drifted, on Lawrence's fluent chatter, into a big, sumptuous drawing room at the right; passed through a huge shadowy library beyond, and on to a broad piazza at the back of the house. Everywhere sat groups of girls in brilliant sport costumes; everywhere stood youths in all possible varieties of summer wear. And beyond, a garden, crazy with color, seemed to tilt up to the purple marvel of Pike's Peak.

MRS. MALLORY, a handsome cross between a Roman and a British matron—ah, Lawrence had inherited that trick of the eyebrows from her—gave Johnnie a welcome of an untempered cordiality. Lawrence conducted him to a tea table, spread with every appetite provoking frivolity of tea hour; introduced him to his sisters, Molly and Nora. The girls, handsome, too, looked like each other; passed the resemblance on to Lawrence, and he seemed to lead it, in an ascending scale of correctness and stoutness, to its culmination in Mrs. Mallory. They welcomed even more enthusiastically than their mother the tall, lean, distinguished stranger, tanned by the mountain sun to a sun baked blackness and reduced by a summer of hard work to a whipcord thinness.

All else, so far as Johnnie was concerned, was blur; a gorgeously colored blur to be sure, and shot with the tinkle of glasses, the brittle clatter of teacups and bursts of gay laughter; but a blur in which Fern Gray with her lustrous white coloring stood out as the only clear cut figure. Not that Johnnie spoke to her! Only that covertly he watched her.

Her bearing held an incredible degree of hauteur. She was no taller than anybody present, and yet she seemed to tower. She maintained to everybody her cool air of superiority. The chiseled quality of her speech and her broad-A'd eastern pronunciation contributed notably to this effect. Yet people flocked; fascinated, clustered, charmed.

All except Johnnie!

For although Johnnie would have flocked and clustered as quickly as any of them, there was an expensive quality about her which recalled one type of American tourist of which his family had been most ashamed in the old Paris days. Girls de luxe had been the family name for them. Johnnie was not particularly versed in feminine apparel; but he had two sisters, Ann and Letty, with whom he was on the friendliest of terms. And he was enough of the trained artist to recognize lines. Nothing but Paris, be reflected, could have produced the casual, exact simplicity of that film of gown.

"When you see a gown that nearly puts your eye out," Letty had said once, "and if it is untrimmed and seems to consist of nothing whatever—Paris."

That string of pearls, too—a sheen like milk. The clasp had worked to the front of her neck—glitter.

"When there's a knot between each pair of pearls," Letty had informed him, "they're likely to be real. And if there's a clasp of silver or platinum with a tiny connecting safety chain, it's almost certain. And if, in addition, the clasp is set with diamonds—that settles it."

Nora Mallory held him in a tete-a-tete, which maintained an unchanging position on the outskirts of Miss Gray's conversation. Johnnie did not hear a word that he himself said; he could not hear a word that Miss Gray said; but he was acutely conscious of every movement she made and of the exquisitely expressive things her face did—at what variance these vivacious changes were with the hauteur of her repose—when she spoke. She seemed absorbed in her own conversation. Suddenly he was conscious that Lawrence had her ear. Out of their low voiced tete-a-tete came his own name. And—and yes, Mesa Verde. Lawrence was apparently giving her some sketch of his work. Inwardly he writhed.

"No," he was perfunctorally answering the steady flow of Nora Mallory's questions—in Nora the family eyebrow trick seemed less assertive—"I haven't seen the Garden of the Gods yet. I haven't had a minute today, but I may go tonight by moonlight. Or tomorrow at sunrise."

And then—how did the miracle perform itself?—Miss Gray was at his side. Nora had melted away.

"I haven't seen the Garden of the Gods either, Mr. Conover," she remarked, with almost a graciousness. "We ought to see it together."

"I shall consider that an engagement," Johnnie asserted. She did not actually confirm this. But, "Lawrence tells me you're an archaeologist," she went on. "Does that mean you will feel obliged to take all the joy out of the beauty for me by indulging in scientific comments?"

"No, it means you'll take all the beauty out of the joy for me," he replied, "by indulging in ignorant questions."

She produced a smile; but an icy one. "How did it happen," she went on smoothly, as though making idle tea talk, "that you came to Stanford? You, an eastern man! With Harvard so near—I mention Harvard first, of course, having had a course or two at Radcliffe—or Yale or Princeton."

This was a gage he always took up. Besides, now he had decided he would like to see those jade eyes flare. "I never can make up my mind which I object to most," he said, "that kind of talk from easterners which assumes that the west is black barbarism or the corresponding line from westerners which assumes that the east is a social north pole, an arid waste of formality and frigidity!"

The jade eyes changed—enigmatically—but they were not aflame. "Ah indeed!" she commented. And then, coolly, "But you haven't told me why you came to a western university."

"I thought I had," he declared seriously. "The real reason is that I had a wise mother. She had a theory that eastern men ought to go to western universities and western men to eastern ones."

"How quaint!" Fern commented. "Priceless!" she added, coolly.

Johnnie's rage evaporated after an interval. But the rest of the afternoon was a mere swirl of talk and laughter. He met girls and afterward talked with them. He talked with men and afterwards met them. He was introduced to the same girls twice over, forgetting that he had already been presented. He plunged into conversation with strange girls, not realizing he had not been formally introduced. But he was conscious always, wherever he stood, of Fern Gray's proximity; her exquisite slim completeness, her cool social competence.

Presently he realized that most of the guests had gone, another instant that those who remained wore evening clothes. He produced swift good-bys for the Mallory women, approached Miss Gray. Lawrence stood beside her. Leavening the frozen perfection of her manner came a faint farewell glow.

"When shall we go to the Garden of the Gods, Miss Gray?" he demanded.

"O, please don't wait for me!" she protested. "And don't let me set a definite time. I make engagements only to break them." A slow smile seemed to make virtue of this frankness. "O, by the way, Mr. Conover," she added, as though by an afterthought, "you know quite a bit about automobiles, don't you?"

"I don't call myself a motor expert," Johnnie protested, "although once when I was broke I did work in a garage for a whole summer. O, of course, I do know the different makes and I keep up with the improvements—if you mean that sort of thing."

"I am going to buy a car tomorrow," she went on. "Lawrence has offered to help, but I'd like to have two experts if possible."

"What make?" Johnnie demanded.

"I want an inexpensive car. I'm only going to use it out here. A Lackland, I think."

Inwardly Johnnie whistled! An inexpensive car! Three thousand bucks! A girl de luxe indeed! "I do happen to know the Lackland from the headlight to the license number!" he admitted. "Yes, I'll be glad to go with you."

"I've always driven a Murdleston," Miss Gray interposed languidly. "But I thought I'd like to try a Lackland. My friends are all so strong for it."

A Murdleston! That was two thousand dollars more expensive than the Lackland! "I like the Lackland better myself," Johnnie approved.

"Lawrence says you motored out here, Mr. Conover?" Fern—he was already beginning to think of her as Fern—went on. "What is your car?"

"A flivver," Johnnie answered.

"Ah, indeed!"

It seemed to Johnnie that the cool inflection which trailed that "indeed" must congeal before his eyes and fall through the air a drop of ice.

"I've driven every car at some time or other, of course," Fern concluded. "But I'm afraid I don't feel at all at home in a flivver."

"I'm at my brilliant best there," Johnnie asserted with conviction.

"I think," Fern went on, "I really like a Murdleston best."

"You don't mind, I hope"—Johnnie wondered if he overdid his solicitude, but he was spelled by the psychological adventure of discovering if she had a sense of humor—"if I quote the old vaudeville joke and say that's a good car, too!"

Not a glimmer lighted her eyes.

JOHNNIE CONOVER discovered that evening that he was impatiently anticipating the meeting on the morrow. He found himself waking up at intervals during the night, that anticipation working its pleasurable unease in his spirit. Miss Gray would not, it was apparent, bind herself to an engagement; but he had not after all gone to the Garden of the Gods by moonlight; nor did he go before sunrise. The prospect of a human beauty, more vivid and more subtle, curiously dulled that abstract desire.

Promptly at ten o'clock he drove into the whirlpool of shoppers; khaki-ed men, knickered women, motors, sightseeing busses, nouveau-riche Indian bucks, blanketed squaws from the oil-rich south, and souvenir hunting tourists from everywhere, which is the business nucleus of Colorado Springs. There he met Lawrence, by this time assuming an offensively protecting attitude towards Fern; and Fern herself, whose exquisite aloofness seemed equally oblivious of them both.

She had looked "expensive" enough yesterday afternoon, but somehow her sport costume—with its combination of extravagant detail from the saucy hat to the perfectly cut shoes—made her seem more than ever a girl of the de luxe order. His motor-trained eye caught on details. Conjecture apprised him how expensive were those elaborately clocked stockings, that delicately woven sweater, and his common sense the hexagon of diamond incrusted platinum which was her wrist watch.

And later, when after their protracted discussion of the car, she chose a Lackland roadster of the most expensive type, ordering with a languid abandon every necessary or unnecessary luxurious extra, the effect of a de luxe remoteness was confirmed. The sight of her special check book, black, initialled in gold, depressed him horribly. At her request, while Lawrence ran errands for her, Johnnie drove with her through the wide green boulevards of the town's suburbs. Her touch on the car's machinery was that of a master, sufficiently accustomed to be casual. They passed the tourist camp.

"How horrible these company tourists have made the west!" she exclaimed plaintively once. "Don't you loathe running into them everywhere?"

"On the contrary," he declared, "it delights me. Do you realise that we're the only country in the world where any Mr. Average Citizen will suddenly pack his whole family into a car and tour a few thousand miles of country? In area, you know, it is as though a Frenchman were to tour Europe."

"But those terrible camps——"

"I'm enjoying the one at Manitou. I learned more about the political feeling of the country at the campfire last night than from all my newspaper and magazine reading of three months."

"What did they talk about?" Her tone poured disdain.

"Russia, the Ruhr, the Ku Klux Klan, the Volstead act."

"But the horrid crowding—the hideous proximities."

He was conscious of a mounting rage, but he controlled it. "I write and read there as easily and quietly as anywhere else," he said.

"But, surely——" She produced the delicate shudder of correct ladyhood. "You don't approve—artistically, I mean—of those terrible women in knickers?"

His rage burst. "Please don't annoy me by using that word approve," he snapped. "I don't approve or disapprove of things that aren't my business. But I jolly well know that I'm glad the women tourists have freed themselves from the tyranny of skirts. If you had to climb over a camping outfit out of a flivver fifty times a day, you'd find yourself depositing your skirts in the camp dump by the second morning."

But nothing broke her marble composure. "Indeed!" she commented with a clipped contemptuousness, "how quaint!" And then, "Priceless!"

With an effort of the will Johnnie inhibited an explosion. She brought him back to the center of town, deposited him in front of his rusty flivver, picked up Lawrence. "O, by the way, Mr. Conover," she exclaimed just before they started towards Widelands, "did you go to the Garden of the Gods by moonlight last night?"

"No; too tired."

"Nor at sunrise this morning?"

"No."

"I haven't seen it yet myself. And as long as you haven't gone, would you mind waiting until I can have a picnic there? You and I are the only strangers in this crowd. It does seem as though we should see it for the first time together."

"Certainly," Johnnie acceded. He tried to veil his eagerness in mere assenting politeness.

"How long are you going to be here?" Miss Gray went on.

"O, about a month," Johnnie answered.

"O, then it doesn't make any difference when the picnic comes. I'm so busy I may not find time to arrange it this week. You can't fancy what an inconvenient thing it is to be a woman. No matter where you go, or how many clothes you plan, you never seem to have the right things. Of course one can't—be as intelligent as one will—visualize an alien climate. And I find I must buy some more clothes. Fortunately there are charming shops here."

Lawrence dropped a quick laugh. It was palpable that he approved; Lawrence would. Lawrence would expect a girl to be expensive. The more de luxe she was especially if her beauty justified it . . . "Molly and Nora say that you have two huge chestfuls of clothes."

"Well, I certainly haven't enough sweaters," Fern declared, a touch of plaintive impatience in her voice. "I gave some away before I started and I find I've only ten. I must have at least five more. O, by the way, Mr. Conover—I'm so glad I remembered! Saturday night they dance at my hotel. Won't you come? We're forming a party. And do you play golf?"

"Yes."

"Well, won't you come to Widelands tomorrow afternoon?"

"I shall be delighted."

THE afternoon and evening were intervals of extreme unrest for Johnnie Conover. He explored the neighboring country in his flivver, sedulously avoiding the Garden of the Gods. He walked. He read. He wrote. But an inner excitement blazed through all these avocations. A face, milky white, eyes jade green, lips geranium scarlet, kept coming between him and the landscape, between him and his book, between him and that gray curtain which sleep had always before so promptly unrolled to his senses. He even went to the Manitou postoffice on the possibility that a note—he could actually visualise the de luxe stationery, even the de luxe handwriting—would summon him to the picnic in the Garden of the Gods. It was not there, however.

The following afternoon he presented himself at Widelands. He was the first to arrive, but the others came soon in Lawrence's car; Mary and Nora, Doris Markham, the Ellerbe boys, Lawrence.

When Fern emerged from the elevator, Johnnie's mind registered another despairing "de luxe." Again, from the top of her severely correct golf hat to the heel of her perfectly cut golf shoe, she suggested carelessly careful expenditure. Somehow, beside her, all the other girls looked ready made. May and Nora had even a department store air. As Johnnie took her golf bag from the elevator boy, he noted with an amused impatience the undue number of clubs within the smart black and white leather cylinder.

"This golf outfit probably cost," he reflected, "more than my whole month at Manitou." They walked through the back of the hotel, past a pool, so thick with reflections of the vivid garden which surrounded it that it was like a watery tapestry. The links seemed tapestry, too, or a carpet of a velvet woven from green glass stretching miles away to a purple barrier of the mountains. Just as Fern had had the expensive quality of driving the car perfectly, she had—although, curiously enough, she was not particularly good—the de luxe quality of perfect form at golf. After the first drive, Johnnie—he had been paired with Nora—met her casually here and there on the links as their balls happened to fall together; walked with her a bit before an unsympathetic mid-iron stroke separated them. The exertion and the brilliant sun produced no impression on the thick milkiness of her skin, but it seemed to deepen the jade of her eyes—they showed the depths of ocean caverns, seemed to work a veritable incandescence on her lips—they played like a scarlet flame about her teeth. Her form continued to be perfect. Other players paused to watch her drive. Fern and Lawrence, who happened to draw her for a partner, won the match.

Later, having changed into an afternoon gown of a flesh colored charmeuse—her appearance produced an involuntary silence among the girls—she drove back to town with them.

"Do you mind stopping with me at Zeppar's?" she asked as they approached the center of town. "They advertise a sale of aquamarines in the morning paper, and I'd like to look them over. There may be something there I'd like."

There was. In a brief time she had made a swift but careful examination of the collection. She asked Johnnie's advice, and his selection corresponded with hers. She chose a huge pendant—an irregularly shaped lump of aquamarine, as blue as the heart of an iceberg—incised with Chinese figures. The familiar black gold initialed check book appeared. Three hundred dollars in a scribble. In another instant the aquamarine was hanging about her neck.

"I hope you haven't seen the Garden of the Gods yet, Mr. Conover," she said at parting.

"No," Johnnie answered briefly.

"O, I'm so glad!" she went on, "because I do want to have a companion in admiration when I go there. So do wait just a bit longer. I'm an awful brute to ask it of you, I think."

Johnnie thought she was a brute, too; but he did not tell her so. And he could not refuse. Beside, he wanted particularly now to explore the Garden with her. When she turned on him the deep gaze of that pair of jades, there was only one thing he wanted to tell her. . . . But it was the only thing on earth he could not tell her.

"All right," he said. "I'll wait for your picnic."

"But do come to Widelands tomorrow night and dance."

HE went. Fern danced as she did everything—perfectly. But the days went by and still there was no picnic in the Garden of the Gods. Nevertheless, he saw a great deal of Fern-Gray. Not so much as he wanted, of course, and only at rare intervals alone. Equally he saw a great deal of Lawrence. A great deal more than he wanted, of course, and never, when he could avoid it, alone. Lawrence, he felt, grew more insufferable with every meeting. The Mallory girls were uninteresting. They were at the same time jealous of Fern and exceedingly monopolizing, as far as she was concerned. They were superficial. Mrs. Mallory was the fountain head of all these qualities. There were more dinners at the Mallorys', more dances at Widelands, more picnic suppers in the open. Johnnie managed in return hospitality a trio of dinners at The Peaks for the group.

One week floated by, two weeks, and Johnnie's vacation was half over; three weeks and it was a third over; four weeks—and still he lingered. Life seemed to have resolved itself into long periods of watching for a snatch of tete-a-tete at a dance here, or a quiet walk at a picnic there. It was Johnnie who maneuvered these happenings. He told himself nightly that his presence or absence made no impression on Fern. If he were to disappear suddenly from Colorado Springs, she would scarcely remember he had been there. By this time, too, he realised that Lawrence was definitely in love with her. They were, he discovered, cousins of a much more distant relationship than he had at first imagined. Fern was, however, no more gracious to Lawrence than to anybody else. Nevertheless, Johnnie had a feeling which increased as the days went by that Lawrence would win out. And why not! He had an assured position. Moreover, he could—and with a double certainty if her income supplemented his—maintain appropriately this exquisite and expensive being. These thoughts engaged Johnnie's subconscious mind when he was busy; they surged back and forth in his conscious mind the instant he was idle.

In the lower mind he was doing a great deal of thinking. He discovered that, when irrelevant pictures from the past, when broken imagined dialogues of the future came bursting, like the wreckage on a swollen river, over the threshold of consciousness into the upper mind. He found himself reliving with a deep sense of love and understanding the long-ago winter scenes in their Cape Cod homestead; the summer scenes in the little stone house in Normandy. What people his father and mother were! What happiness they extracted from the wandering, haphazard painter's life, the slowly arriving, erratic painter income!

What girls his sisters were! How blithely they made and remade, pressed and dyed their clothes. And what an air they always had! They had both married able but poor men—Ann a young lawyer in Boston; Letty a young architect in Tacoma. But what a romance they made of the sordid adventure of poverty. Their letters were marvels of humor and happiness. He would squeeze out a pair of modest checks for them by the first of the month. Somehow the present situation gnawed at his self-respect. And that feeling of a shattered pride grew each day more difficult to endure.

He closed his eyes one night—he had spent an irritating afternoon trying to find a moment when Lawrence was not glued to Fern's side—with an acute sense of humiliation. He opened them the next morning to a feeling of serenity. Something had happened. He probed his mental processes. He discovered that some time during the night he had come to the determination to leave Colorado Springs. He packed hastily. That afternoon he called up Widelands; Miss Gray was spending the afternoon with the Mallorys. So much the better. He could say good-by to them all at once.

"Dear me, are you really going, Mr. Conover?" said Mrs. Mallory; "how we shall miss you!" The girls murmured negligible murmurs of regret—they were not sorry, Johnnie guessed, to lose a companion so obviously enthralled by their beautiful cousin. Lawrence also produced a little speech of remonstrance; but Lawrence, Johnnie knew, was relieved to see him go. Fern was the least concerned of any.

"And to think I've never had that picnic in the Garden of the Gods yet," she remarked with a languid regret. "I hope it didn't happen to be of interest to you archaeologically?"

"Not especially!" he returned with a smiling grimness. "I can assure you I should not have waited if it had."

"Now you won't see it at all," she commented with a faint regret. "I do feel," she added in the tone of one who has excused herself for anything, "quite a rotter."

"Don't give the matter another thought," Johnnie said, "I'm going out to the Garden tomorrow at sunrise before I start for Denver."

"You're going east in your flivver?" she asked. And her eyebrows—had she caught the trick from the Mallorys?—made a slight upward leap. "How quaint!" she commented. "Priceless!"

"Yes!!" Johnnie said. Suddenly the

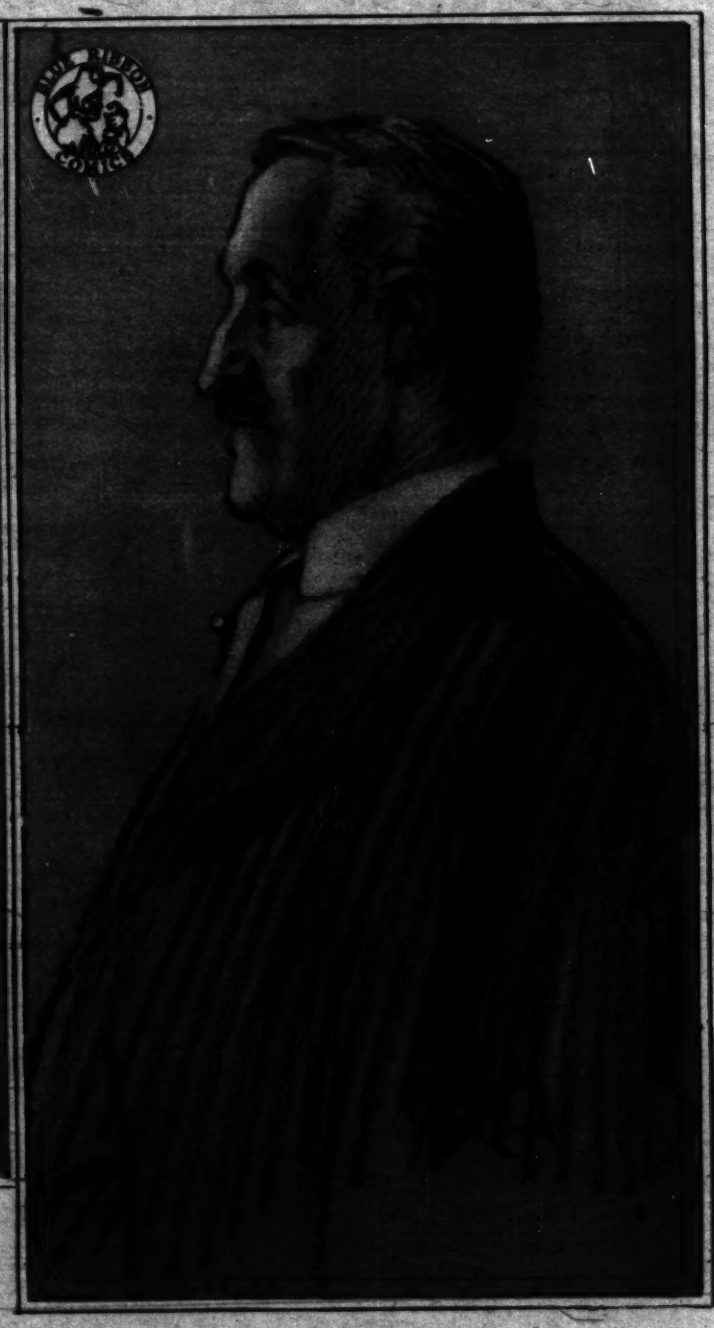
The sentimental wedding guest who loves to console the bride's mother with many tears and sighs. "To think," the wedding guest will say, "your little dove has left its nest—O, how CAN you bear it—your one little dovelet!" And if the punch is strong enough the wedding guest will say it over and over.

Sentiment in the movies. A little street waif clasping the lifeless form of her only friend, a stray kitten, while the augmented orchestra renders "Old Dog Tray" in heartrending minors will send any movie audience, man and child, into paroxysms of homely sentiment.



Successful business man, getting all het up emotionally over mention of the little gray home in the west (with no plumbing), the old swimming hole and the little red schoolhouse days.

Sentiment in the drama. Four members of a Saturday matinee audience getting all ready to snuffle and choke. Would you believe it, the little wife in the act she has just said, "Arthur, I have something to tell you." And Arthur, who was going to leave with the other woman for parts unknown, stops to listen. Then the little wife, who is too full of emotion to speak, bows her head and holds up a tiny little baby garment. At that Arthur—he is the leading man, so no one really believed he was a bad one—falls on his knees with a sob. "O, I didn't know. I didn't know," he cries, and buries his head in the little wife's lap. Then the little wife says, "See, Arthur, it is almost day, outside; it is the dawn of a new day!" "Our day," says Arthur, clasping her to him, and the curtain falls slowly.

A TRIBUTE TO HER MOTHER

whole situation became unbearable to him. He arose with an abruptness that almost startled Fern out of her cool calm; made his swift farewells, and departed.

NEVERTHELESS when he awoke the next morning his heart was as heavy as lead. But he pitched his belongings into the flivver with a resolution that showed no signs of weakening; turned in the direction of the Garden of the Gods. He would enter by the gate nearest Manitou, he decided, and after his hour or two alone he would leave by the Colorado Springs entrance, make through the town and away to—to suffering, of course—he did not disguise from himself that he was not happy—but to freedom also; and to a freedom which would permit him to fight suffering.

The day was beautiful. The dawn had come; yet ghosts of the night lingered. The mountains presented great sun washed flanks that gleamed like the hides of a herd of resting animals fresh from their morning swim. The thick woven blue sky arched with a surprising mountain closeness over her head. The crumbly, red Colorado road bed crunched with an agreeable mountain hardness under his wheels. From the distance he caught far away glimpses of the strange, beautiful joke nature had played on the world. Far away two rows of stone camels were descending a mountain slope with a stately but airy lightness. As he drew nearer its spell, reinforced by the magic of that ghostly hour, soon overpowered him. Arresting shapes lifted slowly out of the bushes on both sides of the road. An eagle? No, an owl. A horseman? These forms, airy as they were, cast deep shadows on other shapes equally airy. The universe turned into a phantasmagoria in which misty shapes and purple shadows struggled equally for reality. Ah! he was approaching the center! Blue pinnacles pierced the rose dawn. A rose colored castle of an enormous bulk floated into the blue air; a pair of colossal camels rubbed noses in a silky, white mist.

He was going to have this God's garden to himself. But, no, another tourist had had his thought. A girl who was sitting, sphinx-like, by the roadside lifted herself to a slim height; moved to the middle of the road. She wanted a lift. Johnnie was off girls for the moment, but he slowed accommodatingly as he approached. Knickers! Yet it needed but a single glance at their adroit tailoring. A tourist de luxe. But, of course, she was Fern Gray.

The flivver came to a full stop.

"I thought I might catch you!" Fern said this in the most collected, casual sort of tone; but as she went on her phrases were a little disjointed. "I've been here since before daylight—I walked. Do you mind stopping for a little while? There is something I want to tell you. I hope you're not in a great hurry—that you have time."

"I've not only all time," Johnnie asserted recklessly, for he was conscious, above that flame of curiosity, of a tremendous excitement, "but eternity." He had by this time leaped out of the flivver; was standing beside her. "Shall we walk or do you prefer to sit in the car?"

"I think I'll sit in the car," she decided.

By a common impulse they took the back seat.

"It's wonderful—the Garden," she said dreamily into the patch of grotesqueries which lay about her, "but still I'm scarcely seeing it. Later, perhaps—— I want to tell you first. You see, I don't remember my father at all. I had no brothers or sisters. Only a mother." She paused.

"What in the world." But Johnnie did not break in.

"That word 'only' is misleading. She wasn't only a mother. She was all of a mother and very much of a person; extraordinarily humorous and picturesque in her impulses. I adored her. That will be all about this, though; for sometimes I find myself loathing not only the people who talk about their mothers but the mothers themselves. I can't tell you how much I liked you when you stopped short that time you started to tell me about yours."

She came to a full pause as though her flow of speech had ceased. Johnnie felt he ought to say something. But he was as astounded by the turn of the conversation as by the turn of events. He could think of nothing to say. He waited.

"Aunt Nora—Mrs. Mallory—was my mother's cousin, a second cousin. They lived in the same town—Melhara. Aunt Nora was—well—I won't go into that; but she was the same kind of young girl she is woman. She had everything—horses, carriages, and, subsequently, motors, dances and week end parties, tennis, and golf. My mother had nothing. And Aunt Nora not only did not share any of her pleasures with my mother. She ignored her as though she did not exist. Aunt Nora married first; a rich westerner; left for Colorado Springs. My mother never saw her again."

Johnnie cleared his throat with the sense that now he must say something. But again the comments that occurred to him seemed so feeble, that, one after the other, he discarded them.

"My mother married later and moved away to Rockford. She married a poor man. And he was never successful in a business way. My mother really never had anything, but she was happy—O, awfully happy. I think my father must have been a fine man for so fine a woman as my mother to be always so much in love with him. But I don't remember anything about him. My mother died two years ago. I didn't realize that she was going to die; but I think she must have known. For a few months before the end she made the most interesting confession to me, the most amazing, the most humorous confession."

Again words seemed to run out in her. And again comments did rush to Johnnie's lips; but again he found them all fatuous.

"She said that for years, ever since her marriage, in fact, she had been in correspondence with Cousin Nora. I knew she wrote to her, but I never saw the letters. Of course, I never suspected. However, mother had represented us as having a great deal of money; all the money in the world. She did that because she knew all Cousin Nora's canons of success were worldly ones; and she could not endure to have her think my father was a failure. Mother had drawn pictures—purely imaginary pictures, of course—of the entertaining I did; my motors; my clothes; my smart visits, and my smart visitors. O, everything you can think of that sounded rich and exclusive and—and—insufferable. Mother concluded by saying to me, 'I'm not the least bit sorry I did this; I'm only sorry it isn't true. I tell you about it so that if you ever do meet them you will be prepared. There is nothing on earth I should enjoy so much as to have you go out there and cut a dash before them.' Those were her exact words—'cut a dash'—quaint old phrase, isn't it? 'I should like that,' she said again and again, 'more than anything else in the world.'"

THIS time Johnnie produced an inarticulate murmur. He began to guess what was coming. He scarcely heard the rest of the explanation, and yet its salient points burned in acid on his mind.

"... haunted me ... a year later a distant relation died, leaving me ten thousand dollars ... I didn't need money ... could always earn enough at publicity.... said to myself here was the opportunity to do the one thing mother wanted ... come out to Colorado Springs and 'cut a dash.' Well, perhaps you can guess the rest ... never driven a car ... took lessons in driving ... lessons in department store golf ... why my form is so perfect and my results nil ... clothes ... my little string of pearls ... the Lackland ... the aquamarine ... There was one thing I was determined to do and that was to present an aspect of an aristocratic exclusiveness so snobbish, so offensive, that I'd reduce the Mallorys to a mush of awe. I hope I pulled it off."

"You did that all right," Johnnie started to say. But he only thought it. He was possessed now not only by a tremendous excitement but by an anticipation so frenzied that he could not speak, only—and in great exalted leaps—think.

"Last night," she went on, and now her voice was low as though she were afraid some one would hear her, "after you went, I rushed back to Widelands at once and packed my trunk. I left notes for Cousin Nora and the girls saying that I had been suddenly called to Denver on business, was motoring down by night. I called up the motor people and asked them to sell my car. They said they could."

Her voice was getting lower and lower and lower. "When I get the check for the car it will be all the money I have in the world. But I have the pearls and the wrist watch—and, O, our aquamarine and clothes enough to last for five years—and, and if you can't know what to say next, I'm sure I don't."

Johnnie knew.

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

— The Great Miracle.

THE cablegram of Barry Allison from Vera Cruz found Mary Westlake at home at Deneville—where he thought she had remained during his absence. The message itself was noncommittal, brief: "SAFE SUCCESSFUL COMING DIRECT."

Mary Westlake met that message at the door. She turned, the paper crumpled in her hands. "Mother!" she cried. "Mother! Look! Look!"

Mrs. Westlake, now in spite of her only partially restored health returning to her household duties, gave up her exercise with the carpet sweeper.

"Well, daughter, what is it now?" she inquired.

"Why, it's Barry! Barry! He's alive! He's coming back!"

Her mother smiled slowly, a smile conveying her doubts.

"He says he's successful. I suppose——"

"Yes, I suppose, too! He hasn't been gone quite a year. If he has made a fortune in that time he has made it mighty quick. I would rather know where he is than what that is, if I were you."

"I don't even know where he is, mother."

"Vera Cruz. That's in old Mexico, on the gulf. He's coming over. Yes, I suppose so. He'll explain everything to you once more and all over again, won't he? Well, I'm glad we got out of Mexico alive. That's no place for such as me. I'm not going to foreign parts ever again—home is good enough for me."

Her somewhat enfeebled hand began once more to push the carpet sweeper. She turned, however.

"You haven't heard anything from Randall Trent, have you? I see in our papers right along something about how he seems to have disappeared with a young fellow in an airship. They left from some place—Magdalena, I think it was—not far from where we were. Then the bottom seems to have dropped right out, and no one seems to have known what became of him or the young fellow that went with him. That was Thompson, they say in the papers—William D. Thompson, a young chap, he was—and their airship was Z-78—right out of the army fleet, it was. And it's disappeared. The army's right anxious to know what's become of it.

"Now, what do you suppose made Randall Trent get in an airship and fly off that way across old Mexico? No man ever made his fortune that way, that's sure. But Ranny didn't need any fortune. His father left him plenty, and he's been successful in business ever since. He's got a fine house ready built and waiting. You know whom it's waiting for, too. And you know what your Pa and I want you to do. And here——" she turned once more, desisting from her labors on the parlor carpet—"you come to me with a message from that other man! You say he's alive; and you act right glad about it!"

"I am glad, mother! Why shouldn't I be? It's everything in the world to me. I can't tell you how I felt—waiting all these months, and not a word."

"Mary, tell me one thing." Her mother eyed her fairly. "Are you going to marry Barry Allison? I hope not. He's somehow shiftless, according to my way of thinking. Gone a few months and made a fortune! Oh, no! Things don't happen that way, my dear. And this sort of thing that you've got, saying he's alive and successful, that don't buy no potatoes, daughter."

"But wait!" said the girl. "Wait!"

But she herself would not longer tarry for the old arguments with her mother. A sudden mad impulse came to her once more. She flew off to her own room, opened a certain little used drawer, and drew out from it the crystal sphere, by gazing into which, always with a feeling of guiltiness, she sometimes had sought the comforts of amateur divination.

She put the clear crystal on the black cloth on the empty table top and sat before it, as once, twice, she had done before. Long, long she gazed, and was almost at the point of despair, until at length there began to appear the faint, white threads, the films within the center of the sphere. But what she saw was no picture of anything definite. Only turmoil was there! The mysteries of milky white moved as by some hidden force. But there was nothing coherent. There was no form. It was a jumble and confusion. It was chaos!

The girl wondered how this could be, since always before she had been successful in these efforts at her scrying. But at length she gave it up and hid the sphere forever.

But what did this mean in regard to Barry Allison? Surely not much of peril could have come to him, since he had sent his message from the gulf coast. And surely he would send other messages—and she must wait. Tears came to her eyes. Silent and moody, she went on with her own household routine, not speaking much with either of her somber and dour parents, who had their own opinions of their daughter and her wisdom in the serious affairs of life.

She heard her mother at breakfast the next day discussing the daily dispatches with her husband.

"Surely enough," said Mrs. Westlake, "it's time they got word about those folks, if they are ever going to. They have been lost for days and days. Now, that's a big country, and we know it's right wild. I wouldn't put it past to have happened that they'd come to some kind of trouble down there—no one can tell what. Now, no word has come out. And yet——"

Her husband's eyes, turned moodily upon the daughter just entering the room, ended what she was about to say.

But Mr. Westlake also knew that Barry Allison, not wholly persona grata here, might be expected one of these days to arrive, to enter that very door, perhaps to expect a place at this very table. That, however, did not come out in the event precisely as Mr. Westlake had forecast, although the essential truth remained.

MARY WESTLAKE did get further messages—one from New Orleans, one from Memphis, one from Chicago. And so, one evening in the early autumn, when the leaves of the maples were just beginning to show a different color on their edges in the little city park, when Mary Westlake heard the whistle of the incoming train from the west, she rose without any word to any one of the household, quietly donned street wrap and hat and gloves, left the front door, and walked down the brick walk to the front gate. Walking slowly, with her own easy dignity, she turned along the sidewalk that led toward the business portion of the town.

Came now sudden wheels of a taxicab. Perhaps she suspected something of the sort. And then, as she turned, her eyes shining, there happened what else she must have expected.

A young man flung open the door, sprang

"Barry! What have you done!"

As wonderful for a brilliant polish ... as Cutex is for smooth cuticle

After years of fastidious experiment the famous house of Cutex has perfected a wonderful new Liquid Polish that is as splendid for a brilliant lasting polish as Cutex is for soft, even cuticle.

This ideal Liquid Polish spreads smooth and thin. It dries almost instantly into such a lovely gleaming smoothness. It never leaves ridges or brush marks and it would never think of cracking or peeling off.

You will be simply delighted with its dainty rose lustre that lasts a whole week. Even dishwashing will not dim the brilliant polish.

Here is another convenience. You need never again have the bother of a separate remover to take off the old polish. Just a touch of the polish itself wiped off while still wet will leave the nail smooth and free and ready for the new application.

Cutex Liquid Polish, like all other Cutex preparations, is 35c separately. Or you can get it in the $1.00 and $3.00 sets. Sets with other Cutex polishes are 60c and $1.50.

out, hurried across the pavement to her side. He was a tall young man, thin, eager eyed, brown with sunburn. His hair was edged with gray. His cheeks seemed much sunken. Could it be he—the man who had left her less than a year ago? Why, this man seemed older by years! Yet it was he—her lover—Barry Allison!

He saw the startled look, wistful, yearning, almost pathetic, in the girl's eyes. But he answered all her questions by the sound of his voice, the clasp of his hand. Indeed, forgetful of all conventions, he caught her to him in one swift embrace, his lips against her cheek.

The taxi driver smiled, but waited gladly enough. After a time the young man led the young woman back, entered the car. "Drive around," said Allison. "Pull up over by the city park after a while—it can't be so cold."

But now reason and propriety had come to them both. They sat, silent, not even venturing a glance, one at the other, until after a time they found themselves altogether alone in the little formal space above the lake bluff, dignified by the name of park. The band concerts now had been discontinued. Blown easily along the ground, the red leaves made the only sound; the little iron seats were empty. Beyond lay the wide blue of the lake itself, marked with its usual long trails of steamer smoke.

Allison dropped his handbag at the end of the seat—all the luggage he had with him.

"You've come to stop over the week-end, haven't you, Barry?"

"I've come to stop over until the end of the world, my dear," he rejoined, evenly.

Neither of them dared ask the great questions which were in their hearts. He seemed content just to let his hand rest on hers, and to look out over the lake at the blue smoke trails. She was the first to speak.

"You're back, Barry, aren't you? That's fine! I'm so very glad. And successful! Are you sure?"

"Are you not here, my dear? Yes, I'm sure. I am successful, if you let me sit here by you."

His eyes regarded her face. He did not see one flicker of regret or surprise. Yes, she seemed as content as he.

So at length, himself contented now, he went on: "You shall judge about it all, my dear," he said. "We found the great treasure—I don't know that I can ever tell you all about it. But, so far as merely being rich is concerned, why, yes, I am rich. I've got in that little handbag enough to keep you and me as long as we live. You can have everything you want, my dear, now. We can travel, we can see the wealth of the world, and the art of the world, and the good things of the world. Yes, I reckon maybe we can help the misery and the suffering of the world, as well. It would be like you to want to do that if you were rich, wouldn't it, Mary?"

She nodded. He could not see, in the corner of her lips, in the corner of her eye, any interest in this. Only her hand was not withdrawn from his.

"You don't believe me, do you?" Reaching down, he lifted up the little handbag, set it on his knees, opened it, obliging her to look in.

Her eyes opened in wonder, then almost in terror. "Barry!" she said. "What have you done—what have you done!"

"This is only a part, my dear," said he, quietly, for by this time he had become somewhat used to the feel of these precious condensations of wealth which he had carried with him all this time. "I have got some in safety vaults in New Orleans, and some in Chicago.

"It's the treasure, my dear—we found a treasure house the Aztecs had—we found that other thing—but I am not going to tell you about it—we can't understand it—I can't understand it—I can't believe it, or even remember it—I don't trust myself at all beyond this, right here, that we can see and feel and know is true."

He went on, stumbling, blunderingly, his hand still upon hers, clasping the long fingers closely, trying to tell her something of the experiences through which he had gone.

"It was true, Mary," he said; "what you saw in the crystal ball was true. There is such a valley—or was at one time such a place. Two of my friends who started with us never saw it. One was killed; the other died. I'll tell you all about it. But the other—that was Hallock—and I stood in that very place and we saw the treasure of the Aztecs. Here is a part of it. Of course, it's all a lie—it can't be true. It's all a dream—it can't possibly be true. I don't ask you to believe it. All I ask you to believe, Mary, is—I love you. Is that enough?"

She nodded slowly, gravely, as her wont. Free of coquetry, of all pretense, as ever had been her way, "Yes," said she, distinctly, "that is enough."

It was enough for Barry Allison also. For a long time they sat, the treasure casket open before them, neither looking at it, neither thinking of it. There seemed in the world something far more worth while, far more marvelous. At length, after a long time, he turned up the collar of her coat.

"You mustn't get cold," said he. It seemed to her the first time that any one ever had really cared for her, really had tried to do something for her, to try to add to her personal comfort. Her father and mother lived in a world where each creature fended for itself. They were practical. They saw things as they are, so her mother always had said. But now Mary Westlake was beginning to see things, not as they always are—but as they always ought to be.

After a long time, she brought herself to ask him certain questions—spoke of Trent and his strange disappearance. At first, she could not understand her lover's sudden silence; but at length he turned to her.

"My dear," said he, "we've been working in miracles. There have been forces carrying you and me and all of us along—things we never will understand. Listen: Randall Trent will never come back to you! The world will never know what has become of him. I would far rather that some other man had to tell you this than myself."

"You don't mean——" she turned her face, horrified, upon him.

"No, no. I had no hand in it. But what I escaped he did not escape."

And now, haltingly, brokenly, confusedly, he tried to tell her of what he had seen on the evening of that terrible day, which came to him in memory now only as an awful and broken nightmare, a distorted dream which gladly he would have put out of his memory forever.

"Let it stand as it is!" said Barry Allison, at length, solemnly. "I shall give no story to any one but you. Let it be said that he disappeared somewhere in Mexico with that young man of the army. I can tell you now—could tell them all—that no word will ever come back from Randall Trent, or the man who carried him on his last journey."

FOR a time they sat, looking out, a trifle moodily, at the steamers' smoke. One or more of Randall Trent's own boats might be plying out there—plying its way in the accepted commerce of the world about them. The girl herself, always self-controlled, reticent, made no comment at all; nor could her lover find much ability or much need of speech. They did not know how long it was before his voice again broke the silence.

"Why, gold!" said he, and he spread out his hands.

Still shy, silent, not knowing what to do with love, now that it had come to her, Mary Westlake did not speak. Only the firmer grasp of her fingers within his told her actual emotions.

"Well, I took my chances," said Barry Allison at length. "I risked everything I had in all the world. I might have lost. It was worth the risk. I have been saved by a miracle, my dear—it was the marvel and the miracle of——"

"What is it, Barry?"

"It is love, my dear," said he. "That's the only thing in the world that sent me out; it's the only thing in the world that's brought me back. It's the only thing in the world worth while."

"Don't kiss me yet, Barry, please," said she. "I want to think for a while."

Her fingers, infinitely gentle, infinitely tender, were brushing at the gray edges of his hair.

At length she drew a deep sigh. "You've been through something, Barry," said she. "I'm not sure that I can understand all of what it was. But I know you're back again. Yes, it's been a miracle!"

"A very great miracle, my dear—the one great one—the greatest that ever happens in all the world."

CHICAGO FURNISHES TWO OLYMPIC SKATERS for the championships next February at Chamonix, in the French Alps. Left to right are William Steinmetz and Harry Kaskey, both of Chicago, and Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, N. Y., the speed stars chosen for the Yankee team. Steinmetz was 1922 international champion. Kaskey is the present national and Canadian champion. Jewtraw now holds the international title.

Warned she would ruin it

The winter sports girl still has the kind of complexion men bow to

When girls started on a headlong career of winter sports, everyone warned them they would eternally ruin their complexions. But they just did not. After several seasons of skating and wild tobogganing the modern girl still has the kind of complexion men bow to. Because, as she would say, she goes in for taking the proper care of it.

Why her skin does not coarsen or chap

This is one thing the modern girl has proved. Give your skin these two indispensables, and no amount of sun or ice, dryness or dampness can alter its fineness—

The special kind of cleansing that will keep that transparent freshness for years. And the particular way of protecting it that will prevent any coarsening of its loveliness. Women who use daily the two different creams which Pond's developed to fill these two vital needs, are entirely free from worry about the weather. Their faces are fine-textured and supple. Begin today to try this famous method.

* * *

Every night. With the finger tips apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it is able to penetrate every pore. Let it stay on a minute—now wipe it off with a soft cloth. Do this twice. The black on the cloth shows you how carefully this cream cleanses. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple again.

Then in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream lightly over your whole face. How smooth and velvety your face feels. The worst weather cannot roughen or redden it. Buy both creams today. The Pond's Extract Co., 131 Hudson St., N. Y.

Edwin Bower Hesser

Ruth Roland who does so much outdoor work, says, "Pond's Cold Cream leaves my face very soft and supple. Then I use Pond's Vanishing Cream by day to prevent any roughness through the day."

Remove those film-coats on your teeth. See how clean teeth can shine

This test has won millions to a new way of teeth-cleaning. It will win you and yours.

You see the results in every circle—in whiter teeth, in teeth you envy, maybe. Let this test show you how they may come to you.

Film—the great foe

The greatest foe that teeth have is a film. That viscous film you feel. Under old methods, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

You have only one chance in fifty of escaping such troubles, so you should fight that film.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Pepsodent

The New-Day Dentifrice

Advised by dentists everywhere. Now used by careful people of some 50 nations.

Dental science has in late years found two ways. One disintegrates the film, one removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved the methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists the world over now advise that method. Careful people of some 50 nations are employing it today. It means a new dental era.

Invisible effects

Pepsodent brings other great effects. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva, to digest starch deposits on teeth.

Thus every use of Pepsodent gives manifold power to these great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

You'll be amazed

The results of Pepsodent will amaze and delight you. They can be seen and felt. They are quick and convincing.

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will know then that this method means whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. And you will always want them. Cut out coupon so you won't forget.

THEN and NOW

YOUNG JAKE SCHAEFER wasn't much older than this when his dad, the famous "Wizard Jake," first introduced him to billiards. The elder Schaefer was champion for years.

WILLIE HOPPE was a boy wonder at billiards, too. He's the smaller chap, at the right, with the cue so very much bigger than himself. (Both photographs from P. H. B.)

AND NOW WE FIND THESE YOUNGSTERS battling for the world's 18-2 championship in the international tournament in New York. Only six players, rated the world's greatest, were in the competition. Left to right are Edouard Horemans, Belgium; Jake Schaefer, Chicago; Willie Hoppe, New York; Welker Cochran, Los Angeles; Erich Hagenlacher, Germany; Albert Cutler, referee, and Roger Conti, Paris. Now—for "BUCKWHEATS"

a ready-mixed flour based on the famous AUNT JEMIMA recipe!

"I'se in town, Honey!"

THESE are mornings for buckwheat cakes. And you can have them—buckwheat cakes that are sure to be fluffy and tender; as fine as Aunt Jemima Pancakes, and made as easily. Aunt Jemima "buckwheats"!

With Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour thousands of families have found a welcome change in their regular breakfast menus, so it is with pardonable pride, we hope, that we invite you, too, to the treat.

What a flavor!

For there is in this flour the same distinctive quality which has made Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour so famous—that distinction of surpassing flavor.

It is based on the famous Aunt Jemima pancake recipe, but it has just enough fine buckwheat flour added to give the buckwheat taste you've longed for, without the effects so many people associate with the old-fashioned buckwheat cakes.

It makes cakes that are as healthful as they are nutritious.

And, being ready-mixed, you need add nothing to Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour but water (or milk), and your batter is ready. There's no fussing with yeast and all the other ingredients, no setting over night—just easy mixing, baking; done in no time.

Just add water, mix and bake

Try some Aunt Jemima "buckwheats" tomorrow morning, Tuesday morning at the latest. See how your family enjoys them. Your husband has probably been hankering all fall for cakes with this flavor. Don't tell him. Surprise him.

Your grocer has Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour. It comes, you notice, in yellow Aunt Jemima packages. 'Phone him for a package now or the first thing tomorrow morning.

Or, if you want a trial package first, and care to delay your treat a week or two, accept our special offer at the right. We want you to try this flour, for we know you'll like it. Aunt Jemima Mills Company, St. Joseph, Mo.

No fuss, no bother to make fine buckwheat cakes this way. A cup of water or milk stirred into a cup of Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour—your batter is ready for the griddle. And watch your husband smile when you stack 'em up—"buckwheats!"

Special Offer

In return for this coupon and 6c in stamps or coin (to cover cost of special packaging and mailing) we will send you a sample package of Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour, a sample package of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and an interesting recipe folder telling how to use it in making fine waffles, muffins and special pancake treats. If you want the jolly Aunt Jemima family of 4 rag dolls, too—all in bright colors, ready to cut and stuff—send 30c in stamps or coin.

The Odds Are 4 to 1 Against You

Heed Nature's Warning —Bleeding Gums

Don't gamble with your teeth and health. You have far too much at stake. More, the odds are too heavy against you.

Teeth-destroying, health-sapping Pyorrhea strikes four persons out of every five that pass the age of forty. And thousands younger, too. The chances are 4 to 1 it will strike you unless you are vigilantly on guard.

Heed Nature's warning when she gives it. Bleeding gums are the danger signal. Act at once. Don't wait. For Pyorrhea works fast. The tender gums recede. The teeth loosen, drop out or are lost through extraction. Pus-pockets form at the roots and often flood the system with infection.

Go immediately to your dentist for teeth and mouth inspection. Brush your teeth, twice daily, with Forhan's For the Gums. This healing, time-tested dentifrice, when used in time and used consistently, will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress.

Forhan's For the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S. It will keep your teeth clean and white, your gums firm and healthy. It is pleasant to the taste. Buy a tube today. At all druggists, 35c and 60c.

Only one thing will keep teeth clean day and night

Your mouth glands will keep your teeth clean and safe—but you must use a tooth paste that will make these glands active

Lejaren A. Hiller Studios

Beautiful white teeth remain beautiful and white only if the mouth glands are active. Your tooth paste must do more than clean your teeth—it must help the mouth glands to keep them clean.

HEALTHY, active mouth glands are the one thing that can check the acids that are always forming in your mouth and eating away the enamel.

But you must use a tooth paste that makes the mouth glands work properly, for they have grown too weak to protect your teeth as they should. They need the exercise of chewing, which soft modern foods do not supply.

How this tooth paste makes the mouth glands keep the teeth clean

Pebeco gives the mouth glands the gentle stimulation they need. It restores them to healthy, normal action.

Pebeco no sooner enters the mouth than the glands begin to pour forth a full flow of their protecting fluids. As fast as the mouth acids form, these fluids neutralize them and wash them away.

The fluids from these glands go into every crevice, in between the teeth where the tooth brush cannot penetrate, carrying away food particles, checking the acids, keeping the teeth clean and safe all the time.

By brushing Pebeco over the gums as well as the teeth you get the full benefit of its stimulating action. It will have a tonic action on the entire mouth, extending, some doctors say, even to the tonsils.

It leaves the teeth white and shining

Pebeco cleans the teeth as thoroughly as a dentifrice can. It leaves them white and shining. And its constituents are so mild that it cannot injure the enamel or the edges of the gums.

Send for a free tube

Nothing is more important to your health and happiness than the condition of your mouth. Send today for a free sample tube of Pebeco and start immediately to get your mouth into a healthy, clean condition. With this tube we will send a booklet which explains how Pebeco overcomes the dangers of acid-mouth by keeping the mouth glands active.

Warmth and Protection with Light Weight Comfort

With Duofold, you can give yourself the extra warmth and protection so advisable during the winter, without sacrificing comfort!

Because Duofold's unique fabric takes advantage of the well known principle of the storm window. Its two thin, separate layers, with air space between, are much more effective in shutting out cold and keeping warmth in than a single layer much thicker. It provides warmth without weight.

The comfort and the sense of well-being that you will experience from Duofold will be more than you ever expected from underwear that can give you such warmth and protection against winter's rigors.

Choose from all cotton or mercerized numbers. Or, if you prefer the added protection of wool, you can get Duofold with comfortable cotton in the inner layer and wool in the outer layer, where it can't itch.

Sold at most good underwear counters

Mothers: For infants and children, Duofold made with cotton in the inner layer and wool in the outer layer is ideal. Soft, soothing cotton next the tender skin—warm, absorbent, health-protecting wool away from the skin where it can't irritate.

Ask for helpful, interesting booklet—"Health Protection for Infants and Children"—at any underwear counter where Duofold is sold. Or simply drop us a postal and we will mail you a copy.

What particular skin problem are you facing?

2. If your skin has a tendency to blackheads—use treatment No. 2 given below

Have you an oily skin?
Large pores?
Blackheads?
A dull sallow color?

By giving your skin the care that meets its individual needs you can free it from faults that have troubled you for years

3. The treatment for an oily ... is given on page 4 of the ... "A Skin You Love to Touch"

1. For blemishes—use treatment No. 1 given below

BEGIN today, to have a really beautiful skin:

A skin without a flaw—clear, fresh as the morning.

You can have a beautiful skin if you will.

You can see people's faces light up with pleasure when they look at you.

You can look better—younger—prettier than you have ever looked before.

It is a matter of will-power, first of all.

You must have faith in your skin. No matter what faults it has—no matter how unattractive it seems to you when you look at it in a strong light—say to yourself that you can and will overcome these faults.

How it can be done

You can do this through the famous Woodbury skin treatments which have been developed expressly to meet women's different skin problems.

These treatments are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. No matter what your personal skin problem is—you will find the answer to it in this booklet. Are you troubled with excessive oiliness? Is your complexion dull, sallow—darkened by ugly little blackheads or disfigured by blemishes? Are the pores too large?

You can't look your best as long as any one of these conditions exists. Begin today to use the special treatment that will rid you of this trouble.

Why the skin of your face needs special care

It is a well-known scientific fact that the nerves that control the blood supply are more sensitive in the skin of your face than elsewhere—and consequently the skin of your face is more liable to disturbances. Haven't you noticed that it is nearly always the face that skin troubles occur?

For this reason the soap that you use daily on your face should be of the highest quality obtainable.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter—begin using it tonight and see how almost immediately your skin will begin to improve.

Day by day it will grow softer, smoother, more brilliant with life and color. You will be proud of your fresh lovely complexion.

A 25 cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or two weeks for regular toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for regular use. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

Two famous Woodbury treatments for overcoming common skin troubles—republished from the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

1. How to free your skin from blemishes

JUST before you go to bed, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

2. How to overcome blackheads

EVERY night before retiring, apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough wash cloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the wash cloth in this treatment. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

YEAH, BUT IT' WAS TH' BIGGEST HAT IN TH' STORE AN' LOOKIT ALL TH' MONEY IT'LL HOLD WHEN WE PASS IT IN A CROWD !!!

FINE HATS

I AM DELIVERING A SERIES OF FREE LECTURES OUT IN THE OPEN! MY SUBJECT IS "CHILD CULTURE" AND I HAVE A GREAT MESSAGE TO PARENTS AND THE MODERN CHILD!!

OH, HOW WONDERFUL, PROFESSOR NUTT! I MUST TAKE MY LITTLE BROTHER PERRY TO HEAR YOU!!

WE'RE IN A FINE PICKLE, FELLERS! IF WE DON'T GET SOME MONEY TOGETHER SOON, TH' RINKEYDINKS MIGHT JES' AS WELL BUST UP !!!

GEE, I'VE THUNK OF ALL KINDS A' WAYS TO GIT TH' JACK, BUT NONE OF 'EM WORKS!

LEMME SEE NOW- UH-UH-

OH NO, YOU'RE NOT GOING TO STAY HERE! YOU'RE COMING WITH ME TO HEAR PROFESSOR NUTT LECTURE ON CHILD CULTURE AND YOU MAY LEARN SOMETHING!

I HEAR ENOUGH LECTURES FROM YOU — !!!

AW SHE MAKES ME SICK!!

YEAH! SHE DON'T GIVE ME NO APPETITE NEITHER!

YOU'LL BE MUCH BETTER OFF IF YOU HEAR THIS LECTURE THAN YOU WILL BE, PLAYING WITH THOSE ROUGH RINKEYDINK CHILDREN!!

IDEA

-ER-ER- W-WAIT A MINUTE WINNIE!!

JES' 'CAUSE THEM KIDS IS POOR AIN'T NO REASON WHY THEY SHOULDN'T HEAR TH' LECTURE AN' MAYBE LEARN SUMP'N TOO!!

PERHAPS YOU ARE RIGHT PERRY! WE'LL GO BACK AND GET THEM !!

DO LIKE I SAY AN' COME ALONG TO THIS LECTURE AN' YOU'LL LEARN SUMP'N!! I AIN'T KIDDIN' YA, NEITHER!!

AW GEE, LECTURES IS JES' TH' SAME AS GOIN' TO SCHOOL!

SOMETIMES I REALLY THINK PERRY HAS SOME NOBLE QUALITIES !!!

THE SUBJECT ON WHICH I AM GOING TO LECTURE TO-DAY IS "CHILD CULTURE"—

DON'T GO FAR AWAY BOYS!

NAW, WE'RE ONEY GONNA STAND OVER HERE, WINNIE !!!

BLA— BLA-A-BLA —BLA

NOW HERE'S WHY I BRUNG YOU'SE HERE! WHILE THIS GUY IS LECTURIN' WE PASS TH' HAT IN TH' CROWD!! THEY'LL THINK WE'RE COLLECTIN' FOR TH' PROFESSOR AN' WHATEVER WE GET IS OUR'N! D'YA GET TH' IDEAR ??

OH BOY, THAT'S GREAT! YOU'RE TH' GUY CAN THINK 'EM UP PERRY !!!

IT'S FOR TH' STARVIN' RUSSIAN BABIES!! WON'T Y'HELP TH' CAUSE ALONG??

BLA— BLA-AA— BLA— BLA BLA-A-BLA— BLAAAA—

HELP TH' HOMELESS AFRICUM ORPHUM BABIES PLEASE?

WON'T YA DONATE SOMETHIN' FOR TH' CRIPPLED CHINEE BABIES?

5'A GOOD THING TH' CROWD DIDN'T KNOW WOT THA PREFESSOR WUZ TALKIN' ABOUT! I COLLECTED $2.10 !!

OH BOY! I GOT $1.85!

I BEAT YOU'SE! I GOT $2.75!

AN' I GOT $3.65! THAT MAKES $10.35 ALL TOGETHER FOR TH' RINKEYDINKS

I'M GOING RIGHT OVER TO THE OTHER SIDE OF TOWN AND DELIVER MY LECTURE THERE!!

WE'RE GOIN' ALONG AN' HEAR IT AGAIN!

I COULD LISSEN TO DAT LECTURE ALL DAY!!

BEST LECTURE I EVER HEARD!

I DIDN'T THINK THE CHILDREN WOULD UNDERSTAND IT !! IT'S REALLY REMARKABLE !!

'FOLLOWING IS A REPRINT OF THE RIDDLE WHICH SO MANY THOUSANDS OF OUR READERS FAILED TO SOLVE. THE TEENIE WEENIES.

A BLIND BEGGAR HAD A BROTHER AND THE BROTHER DIED. WHAT RELATION WAS THE BLIND BEGGAR TO THE ONE WHO DIED?

ANSWER - A SISTER.

WOW!

OH MY THUMB!

TEE HEE.

HEE HEE

ARE YOU LAUGHING AT ME, YOU LITTLE HEATHEN?

I COULDN'T HELP IT PAPA. YOU MADE SUCH FUNNY FACES.

I'LL TEACH YOU NOT TO LAUGH AT PEOPLES MISFORTUNES.

I COULDN'T HELP IT.

THE LITTLE SAVAGE IS MEAN ENOUGH TO STONE A FUNERAL.

WHAT'S THE MATTER YOUNG MAN

MY PAPA HIT HIS THUMB WITH THE HAMMER.

NOW THAT'S MIGHTY KIND AND SYMPATHETIC OF YOU TO CRY BECAUSE YOUR PAPA HIT HIS THUMB.

I'M NOT CRYING BECAUSE HE HIT HIS THUMB.

I'M CRYING BECAUSE I LAUGHED.

WM. DONAHEY.

HATS

YEAH! SHE DON'T GIVE ME NO APPETITE NEITHER!

TIMES I THINK PERRY OME NOBLE LITIES !!!

DON'T THINK THE DREN WOULD UNDER- ND IT !! IT'S REALLY EMARKABLE !!

WHERE YOU GOING, KITTY?

I'M GOING TO A PARTY WITH MATT.

WELL, PUT ON A LOT OF ROUGE AND A ROSE-BUD MOUTH OR YOU'LL LOOK LIKE A GHOST IN THIS DRESS.

I WILL NOT! MATT DOESN'T LIKE THAT MAKE-UP STUFF!

DON'T LET HIM KID YOU! THEY ALL SAY THAT BUT YOU WATCH WHO THEY FOLLOW AROUND!

GO!

I BELIEVE PET'S RIGHT! MATT'S DANCED ABOUT HALF THE TIME WITH GERT BEAMER AND THAT GIRL'S BEAUTY PARLOR BILL WOULD BUY HER A NEW DRESS EVERY MONTH!

WELL, IF IT'S PAINT AND POWDER HE LIKES, THAT'S EASY!

WHAT'S THE RUSH? WHY NOT WAIT 'TIL THE PARTY'S OVER?

YOU DON'T MIND GOING A LITTLE EARLY DO YOU MATT? I WANT TO STOP AT THE DRUG STORE.

I WANT THREE DOZEN LIP STICKS, SOME DAYLIGHT ROUGE AND SOME FOR AFTER NIGHT- A BOTTLE OF MASCARA AND TEN POUNDS OF THAT COMPLEXION CLAY!

WANT THIS SENT?

NO, THIS GENTLEMAN WILL CARRY IT!

SAY, KITTY, WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA! I HOPE YOU ARE NOT GOING TO USE THAT DOPE.

WELL, I GUESS I'M IN DUTCH AGAIN. GOSH, BUT WOMEN ARE QUEER! WHAT DOES A GIRL LIKE KITTY WANT WITH THIS DOPE?

YOU SEEM TO LIKE IT ON OTHERS AND I AIM TO PLEASE.

ABLAUGH—

WHAT ARE YOU SO SORE ABOUT ? AND AFTER ME GNING YOU YESTERDAY AFTERNOON OFF TOO !!

AW

©1928 CHICAGO TRIBUNE

YES-IVE GOT TO GO OUT OF TOWN, SO I WON'T BE HERE THIS AFTERNOON.

YESSIR

NOW IF YOU CAN FINISH ALL YOUR WORK BY ONE O'CLOCK I'LL LET YOU HAVE THE REST OF THE DAY OFF

I'LL FINISH IT, BOSS!

OH BOY! WATCH MY SPEED! I'LL FINISH UP ON TIME ALL RIGHT! THEN I CAN PLAY FOOTBALL WITH THE GANG THIS AFTERNOON !!

IT WONT TAKE ME LONG TO CLEAN UP THIS PLACE

NOW TO MAIL THESE LETTERS AND THAT'S ANOTHER JOB OUT OF THE WAY!

GEE-THERE'S MORE WORK THAN I THOUGHT-I'M NEARLY ALL IN-BUT I HAVENT MUCH MORE TO DO AFTER THIS

AFTER I GET THIS BOTTLE TO STAND UP STRAIGHT I'M FINISHED!-GOSH-I MUST HAVE DONE A PILE OF WORK!

WELL BOSS-I'M THROUGH! WHEW! SOME JOB !! I NEVER WORKED SO HARD IN MY LIFE-IT'S A GOOD THING THERE WASN'T ANY MORE WORK OR I'D DROP-IT WAS TOUGH GOIN' BUT I FINISHED!

THAT'S FINE! NOW THAT YOU'VE CLEANED UP EVERYTHING YOU CAN GO

YES SIR

WHEE! I'M OFF FOR THE REST OF THE DAY !! BUT BELIEVE ME, I WORKED FOR IT!

AS SOON AS I GET ON MY UNIFORM I'LL GO OVER TO THE LOT WHERE THE GANG IS PLAYIN'

SO!

NT DING A RLY DO T? I STOP DRUG E.

YOU SEEM TO LIKE IT ON OTHERS AND I AIM TO PLEASE.

ISN'T MOON A DEAR? I ASKED HIM TO TAKE PAPA OUT FOR A RIDE WITH HIS FRIENDS AND HE DID.

MOON MULLINS

ZZ#?

MOON DEAR- PAPA BOUGHT ME A PIANO, AND HE'S TRYING TO MOVE IT IN HIMSELF, BUT THE LANDLORD IS AWFUL FUSSY AND THREATENS TO SUE PAPA FOR ANY DAMAGE DONE. WON'T YOU GO HELP HIM?

COTAINLY.

SAY STUPID- YOU CAN'T TAKE THAT IN THE FRONT DOOR- YOU'LL HAVE TO HOIST IT IN THROUGH THE WINDOW.

YOU HOLD THE PIANO A MINUTE MOON, WHILE I GO GET SOME ROPE AND RIG UP A DERRICK.

WHY IN TH' NAME A MUD, IF YOU GOTTA TAKE MUSIC LESSONS, DON'CHA TAKE UP TH' JEW'S-HARP HONEY?

ALL RIGHT MOON- NOW PULL!

THAT'S IT.

LOOK OUT!

WHOEE! I JES' LET GO A THAT ROPE IN TIME.

WHY DID YOU DO IT?

I THOUGHT IT WUZ GONNA BREAK AN' I HAD SENSE ENOUGH TO LET GO BEFORE IT DID

YES PAPA

IS THAT BIG BUM MULLINS UP THERE?

WELL, TELL HIM TO GET OFF. I GOT ENOUGH ON MY CHEST WITHOUT HIM.

IT DIDN'T BREAK ANY BONES DID IT PAPA?

NAW, I DON'T THINK SO. BUT I GOT A LUMP UNDER MY BACK WHICH DON'T FEEL SO GOOD.

YOU'RE CRAZY! I'M NOT A LUMP I'M TH' LANDLORD!

!?

NOT MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR—

AUNTIE, YOU'RE A DEAR TO GO WITH ME TO SEE HAROLD WORK!

I FEEL AS THOUGH I'M WASTING MY TIME- I'M DOING IT JUST TO PLEASE YOU, HONEY!

SHEIK-I WANT YOU TO DO YOUR BEST-IT'S YOUR BIG CHANCE TO IMPRESS AUNT EMMY!

WATCH ME DO MY STUFF—ITS MY FIRST REAL PART, SHEBA!

ISN'T THIS COSTUME A BEANER- I'M DOIN' A REGLAR CHARACTER PART!

DON'T YOU THINK HE HAS A WONDERFUL FUTURE?

BEHIND HIM!

GOSH! QUEEN-I WISH YOU WUZ GONNA PLAY PRICILLA AND ME JOHN ALDEN!

THIS IS YOUR BIG CHANCE, HAROLD— WHO CAN TELL?

WHY DID YOU DO IT?

HOW THRILLING TO THINK YOU'LL HAVE YOUR NAME ON TH' CAST!

COME, AUNTIE WE'LL GO TO TH' SET I'M TO WORK ON!

TEE! HEE! AREN'T THOSE MONKEYS FUNNY!

THIS PART IS SO SIMPLE, A CHILD COULD DO IT- SIMPLY WALK ALONG WHISTLING LIKE A GROCERY BOY CARRYING THE TURKEY!

WISH HE WOULDN'T TALK SO LOUD!

WHISTLE! DON'T GRIN LIKE AN IDIOT!

WHISTLE

TEE! HEE!

GOOD GRAVY!

MY CAMERA!

GRAB HIM! Y'BIMBO!

HAROLD! SAVE ME!

COME, LILLUMS!! THIS SPECTACLE HAS GONE FAR ENOUGH!

POOR SHEIK! IT WASN'T HIS FAULT!

HERE'S YOUR TURK, MISTER DIRECTOR!

GET OFF TH' LOT- OHHH! MY POOR NERVES!

BETTER TAKE A MONTH OFF, BOSS!

TH' TURKEY HASH AM VERY SUPERIOR!

I HATE TURKEY- GIMME A BOWL O' CHILE!

OYSTERS STEWED OYSTERS FRIED EVEN OYSTERS WHO HAVEN'T DIED
